ESCAPERS SHOT IN HOLD-UP BID

MONTREAL (CP) — Two of five men who escaped from St. Vincent de Paul penitentiary Oct. 23 were shot by police today at the scene of an attempted robbery. There were conflicting reports about whether one of the men was killed.

Reports from the scene, a Royal Bank branch in the city's northeast end, said Jean-Paul Mercier had been killed. A police lieutenant said later at a nearby hospital that the escaper was still alive but in critical condition.

Two other would-be bandits — one believed to be Richard Blass, who also took part in the St. Vincent de Paul break-out — escaped on foot.

A number of employees and customers were reported injured.

Blass and a fourth escaper Edgar Roussel are wanted for questioning in a double gang-land-style slaying in an east-end nightclub Wednesday morning.

At least one of the five is also being sought for armed robbery of two loaded cigarette trucks last week.

"We are following up every lead," a Montreal Urban Community police detective said Wednesday night.

"We are leaving no stones unturned. Blass is a man of violence and is extremely dangerous. We just can't afford to have him on the loose.

He Lost His Job, But Saved His Life

As a result, he lost lost his job — but saved his life.

Berger, 25, had been looking for work in the north to help pay some bills and a contracting firm put his name down with six others, one of them Roy Ericksen, a neighbor who lived one block from him.

The plane crashed Wednesday, killing 32 persons.

His wife Mona, 20, said she remembered him saying he had a "weird feeling" he shouldn't go, adding that he had a premonition "the plane is going to crash."

He climbed into his pickup for the drive to the airport. A few minutes later the vehicle lurched toward the ditch. The right rear wheel had rolled off.

It took him about 30 minutes to make repairs and he still could have made the flight, but for some reason he couldn't explain, he headed home.

"I still haven't come up with any answer. Why didn't I catch a ride with my neighbor who was killed?"

Later, when he telephoned the contractor, an official told him he was fired under company policy that anyone who failed to show for a flight could not work for the firm again.

"All they said was 'You've got your life, so count yourself lucky.' "

Riots Shake Saigon

SAIGON (WP) — Widespread violence broke out here this morning and much of the city was closed off by police as large groups of anti-government protesters tried to converge on the downtown area.

In suburban Gia Dinh, thousands of Roman Catholics gathered and hundreds of them charged police barricades. Pitched battles broke out between the demonstrators armed with sticks and the riot police dressed in military uniforms and wielding bamboo shields and iron clubs.

Two police jeeps were burned. More than 30 demonstrators were wounded by 11 a.m., five critically. Helicopters carrying top police and military commanders hovered over the scene.

Acting Archbishop of Saigon Huinh Van Nghi went to the scene and asked officials to lift the barricades to let the people march to the National Assembly building. Officials refused.

Closer to the downtown area 200 Buddhists, including Sen. Vu Van Mau, head of the new Buddhist peace front, clashed with police at another barricade. Mau and others were wounded when police threw stones at them.

Speed Cut Effective Monday

Pat Bay Highway motorists will have to tread lightly on the gas pedal after 9 a.m. Monday.

Highways Minister Graham Lea will erect the first 50 mph speed limit sign then to launch the province's new reduced speed limits program — to be effective when and where signs are posted.

The first sign will appear at Island View and the Pat Bay Highway and a department of highways spokesman said all speed reductions should be made in the area within three weeks.

The new limits will be introduced throughout the rest of the province as signs are manufactured in the department's Langford sign shop and shipped to regional department offices.

Cost of manufacturing and installing the 2,000 signs is estimated at $20,000.

Big Hike Forecast For Beer

OTTAWA (CP) — A poor 1974 barley crop and soaring world demand for malting barley will mean higher beer prices across Canada, the president of a Winnipeg malting company said today.

C. F. Edwards was elaborating in an interview after he and other members of the Brewing and Malting Barley Research Institute had presented a brief to the Senate agriculture committee.

"Because of the generally poor quality of this year's crop and the strong world demand . . . prices and premiums have been at record levels," Edwards told the committee.

Asked later what this would mean to beer-drinkers, he said brewers are faced with "very steep" cost increases, not only for malting barley, but also for other ingredients and for labor.

"They'll likely go to the provinces and ask for higher prices."

William Sisler, managing director of the institute, told the committee the government should watch the situation closely because there is a potential world market for 100 million bushels of Canadian malting barley.

Nixon Stable, Still Critical

LONG BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — Richard Nixon's condition is stable but tests indicate he still is loosing a little blood in the abdomen and he remains on the critical list, his doctors said today.

The former president's spirit and mental attitude are "excellent," the doctors said.

"He is alert. He is oriented to everything going on around him and he is co-operative," the doctors said in their medical bulletin shortly before 10:30 a.m.

Home Cash Gets Ottawa Priority

Times News Services

OTTAWA — The possibility of federal action to encourage the redirection of capital and labor from "non-essential construction" to such areas as housing was raised by Prime Minister Trudeau following a five-hour meeting here with the 10 provincial premiers.

Several of the premiers had indicated they would take unilateral action to "slow down construction projects in non-essential sectors," he told a news conference.

The federal government, he said, "is also thinking along the same lines and directing itself along the same lines."

Trudeau's comments came as Housing Minister Barnett Danson said major government announcements "within the next few days" could trigger an upswing in Canada's sagging housing market.

He told the Commons he would "welcome any innovative thinking on how to bring down mortgage interest rates without spending still more money."

Efforts are afoot to make more money available at lower interest rates and to expand the Assisted Home Ownership Program, he said.

Finance Minister John Turner said on the premiers' meeting, he thought the private session had afforded an opportunity to explain the federal viewpoint and "the problems of dealing with 10 premiers."

On the suggestion that action should be taken to encourage the transferral of funds and labor from "non-essential construction," Turner said that the issue had been raised by several of the provinces.

Some of the premiers, he said, felt it would be useful to adopt a scheme whereby spending would be concentrated on construction of housing and construction-producing plants.

One of the premiers clearly in support of this scheme was Saskatchewan's Allen Blakeney.

He suggested that non-essential construction would include such things as shopping centres and post offices.

Dave Barrett of B.C. also mentioned post offices as an example of the kind of construction which could be postponed in order to re-direct resources to essential areas, such as housing.

Barrett said he thought Ottawa was "on the right track" in its economic policies. He termed the meeting "one of the most productive hearings I've attended" and said it was apparent that the participants had done their homework.

Barrett said the provinces were given "a very fair hearing" at the meeting.

Barrett, the first premier to emerge from the afternoon meeting, said Trudeau and Turner listened attentively to all economic policy proposals put forward by the premiers.

The response of the federal leaders was fine, Barrett said, but it was impossible to guess how many ideas put forward by the premiers would be accepted when Turner brings down his budget next month.

Eight other premiers also pronounced themselves pleased with the closed conference.

The 10th, a tight-lipped Premier Peter Lougheed of Alberta, had no comment on the meeting.

Lougheed, who held private talks with Turner and Trudeau after the general meeting, said he had a duty to report to the Alberta legislature, now in session, before commenting publicly.

The Lougheed meeting apparently was devoted to a general discussion of the contentious issue of sharing of petroleum revenues.

600 CALVES BURIED in a pit Wednesday were the bloody contribution of farmers in the St. Bruno region of Quebec to the growing protest over low prices paid Quebec livestock producers. The farmers first used a stun gun on the calves, then slit their throats before dumping them in the pit, which was later filled with earth. Producers say animal buyers have paid only 15 to 40 cents a pound for live veal at fall auctions while it costs 60 cents a pound to raise them. (See story on Page 39.)

Planned 100% Assessment Likely Dumped for '75

A return to the old property assessment and taxation system — abandoned earlier this year — is expected to be recommended to the B.C. legislature when it reconvenes Friday.

The recommendation will come from an all-party committee which has been studying property taxes and completed its meetings Wednesday.

The government is expected to accept the recommendations and present legislation to the house early next week.

A return to the former system would mean that the new Assessment Act, passed at the spring session, would be delayed for at least a year. New assessment rolls being prepared under that act would be held in abeyance.

Those rolls would have had all property assessed at 100 per cent of its actual value.

If the committee recommends returning to the old method, rolls prepared in 1973 for use this year would be used again for 1975. Those rolls have property assessed at 50 per cent or less of its actual value, depending on classification.

A return to the former system would also mean one more year for the Assessment Equalization Act, legislation which prohibits assessment increases of more than 10 per cent on any farm or residential property in any one year.

ANOTHER BARRETT

There'll be more than one Barrett in the legislature when the session resumes Friday. The premier's teenage daughter, Jane, is one of 14 pages who has been brushing up on rules of the house in preparation for the sitting.

Professor John G. Cragg, the man who prepared a one-man report for the B.C. cabinet after studying the rental situation, said today landlords should be given most, but not all, of what they are asking. For Cragg's reasoning on this and other aspects of the rental dilemma, see Page 39.

B.C. SUGAR TAB TO JUMP AGAIN

VANCOUVER (CP) — The price of sugar in British Columbia has jumped $2.50 a hundredweight this week and further increases are expected immediately.

Bill Davies, B.C. Sugar Refining Co. general sales manager, said Wednesday the price has gone to $51 from $48.50, "and it will probably be up again today."

A Canada Safeway spokesman said the company has not yet increased the retail price following the latest wholesale increase.

Safeway now sells a two-pound bag of white sugar for $1.17, a five-pound bag for $2.75, 10 pounds for $5.49, and 25 pounds for $13.55.

"The market is spiralling upwards and the latest flurry of increases is due to reports from eastern Europe that sugar crops are not going well and that those countries are coming into the world market to buy," said Davies.

Canadian sugar prices, he said, are based on the London, England, market figures, "and at the moment we're $3.60 behind them."

He said the Toronto and Montreal price Wednesday was $54.60 a hundredweight.

Meanwhile in Ontario, George Higgs, former president of the defunct Ontario Sugar Beet Board, said Wednesday that re-establishment of the industry "should be looked upon as vital" to the economy.

"What we are going to pay for sugar in Canada in the future will shock you — it'll simply knock you off your feet," said Higgs, a farmer.

BCFP Earnings Down Sharply

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Forest Products Ltd. announced earnings during the thigd quarter of 1974 of $3.3 million or 41 cents a common share, down sharply from second quarter earnings of $1.17 a share. The reduced earnings were blamed on further deterioration of the lumber and plywood markets and the continuing impact of inflation.

Three Killed In House Fire

VANCOUVER (CP) — Three people were killed in a fire at a rooming house in downtown Vancouver early today. The blaze brokeo ut at about 7 a.m. and quickly engulfed the top floor of the old two-storey building, inhabited primarily by elderly roomers.

Massive Rent Hike Faces PNE Land

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Pacific National Exhibition has been hit with a proposed rent increase of $899,999.

City council proposes an annual rent of $900,000 in lieu of taxes. The present lease provides for an annual rent of $1.

Jeans Makers Blue Over Grants

TORONTO (CP) — Grants totalling more than $2 million to two United States-based manufacturers of blue jeans from the federal and Ontario governments are squeezing Canadian casual pant manufacturers out of business, a member of the Canadian industry said Wednesday.

"We're phasing out our plant because my tax money was used to help our American competitors put us out of business," Richard Sinclair, vice-president of Hamilton Carhartt Manufacturing Ltd., Toronto, said in an interview.

Sinclair said his firm will shut down early next year and he predicted almost all other Canadian manufacturers either are, or soon will be, in the same position.

Morton Shulman (NDP-Toronto High Park) brought the issue to the floor of the legislature Wednesday, calling the situation "a damn scandal."

The federal government announced in August, 1972, an outright grant of $867,000 to Levi Strauss Canada Inc., a subsidiary of Levi Strauss Inc. of San Francisco.

In return, Levi Strauss, the largest manufacturer of garments in the world, promised to build a plant in Cornwall, Ont., now in operation — which would employ more than 350 Canadian workers.

The H. D. Lee Co. of Canada Ltd., a subsidiary of H. D. Lee Co., Inc. of Shawnee Mission, Kan., which is a subsidiary of VF Corp. of Reading, Pa., was named recipient of a federal grant May 11 for $1,136,400 to build a plant in North Bay, Ont., now under construction. It will employ 640 persons in addition to the 135 employed now at the Lee plant in Napanee, Ont.

Shulman charged Wednesday that the Ontario government also gave at least $10,000 through the Ontario Development Corp. to a Levi Strauss subsidiary for expansion in Brantford, Ont.

The Brantford plant is known as Great Western Garment Co. of Canada, a branch of an Edmonton-based company wholly owned by Levi Strauss Inc. They make jeans known as GWGs.

"The situation is so absurd that even my own kids wear Lee's and Levi pants," Sinclair said. "They've been

MITCHELL 'APPROVED' PLAN

Magruder Sticks to Story

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — Former Nixon election campaign aide Jeb Stuart Magruder stuck by his story today that John Mitchell had approved a political intelligence plan that led to the Watergate break-in.

But he described it as "never an enthusiastic approval."

Plato Chacheris, counsel for Mitchell, the former U.S. attorney-general, questioned Magruder closely about a meeting March 30, 1972, at which Magruder has said Mitchell approved the political intelligence plan.

The meeting was the third and final planning meeting on an intelligence gathering plan drawn up by G. Gordon Liddy, campaign finance counsel, for the 1972 presidential campaign.

"As you sit here in this courtroom today, do you have a specific recollection of Mitchell approving the Liddy plan?" Cacheris asked.

"Yes," said Magruder, who served as Mitchell's chief deputy when the former attorney-general was managing the Nixon campaign.

"I have a recollection of Mitchell saying 'go ahead and give him (Liddy) $250,000 and let's see what he can come up with.'"

Cacheris Wednesday pressed Magruder on what caused him to drop out of the cover-up and start telling the truth about the break-in.

"Did you speak words of perjury to the jury?" asked Cacheris.

"Yes, sir," replied Magruder.

"John Mitchell didn't speak those words for you, did he?" asked the defence lawyer.

"No, sir," Magruder said.

Cacheris cited several occassions on which Magruder had lied under oath, and each time asked him whether he had been charged with perjury by the special Watergate prosecutors.

Magruder, who pleaded guilty Aug. 16, 1973, to a single count of conspiracy to obstruct justice and promised to co-operate with the prosecutors, replied that he had not been charged with perjury.

"Yes, sir," replied Magruder, who currently is serving a 10-month-to-four-year sentence in prison.

brainwashed through advertising like other Canadian kids to buy the American pants.

"Yet we manufacture exactly the same pant from exactly the same raw material, only we don't have the same label on them."

Claude Bennett, minister of indistry and tourism, replied to Shulman statements by saying it would be "naive" to think the U.S. jean companies would not export their products into Canada even if there were no grants.

"The grants enable us to have Canadians employed in their manufacture here in our country and at locations in the province where we feel the jobs are most needed."

He said the government was willing to make the same loans available to Canadian firms that were willing to locate in similar areas.

Shulman said the Levi corporation has built plants in Mexico and Hong Kong with capital made available by the Canadian grants and then has exported the cheaper jeans to Canada.

Teachers Set Monday Strike

COQUITLAM (CP) — Teachers in the Coquitlam school district voted Wednesday to begin closing schools next week.

Teachers in Campbell River also decided to work-to-rule next week in their district.

Both groups are supporting the British Columbia Teachers Federation stand against the B.C. School Trustees Association bid for province-wide contact negotiations.

Les Phillips, president of the Coquitlam Teachers Association, said his group has asked for negotiation meetings since September, but the board has refused.

"The teachers have been overly-patient, but there are barely two weeks left to negotiate and we will not be defauded of our basic rights by the BCSTA," he said.

Unsettled contracts must go to arbitration Nov. 15.

"We are prepared to call off the protest as soon as meaningful negotiations start," said Phillips.

Teachers will walk off the job on a rotating basis beginning Monday, he said.

Sharon McMorran, Campbell River Teachers Association spokesman, said the work-to-rule decision means teachers "will arrive at school 15 minutes before classes start and will leave 30 minutes after school ends."

"There will be no supervision during the day outside of class," she said.

provided that no improvements or changes in status have been made to the property.

The session, already the longest in the legislature's history, adjourned June 20 and reconvened Aug. 9 for a five-hour sitting to pass legislation to get striking lower mainland firemen back to work.

The fall session is expected to be only 10 days so Premier Barrett can leave for China on schedule Nov. 15. Evening sittings are expected.

Rent controls are also expected to be a major consideration during the sitting, stemming from the government's action earlier this year of imposing an eight-per-cent ceiling on rent increases.

Revisions to the Landlord Tenant Act to include a rent review commission are likely and Attorney-General Alex Macdonald has promised to establish a new rent ceiling effective Jan. 1 when the current ceiling is lifted.

Also predicted are amendments to the Municipal Act to allow voters omitted from enumerator lists in unorganized territories their chance to cast ballots Nov. 16.

Some concessions in woodchip prices and stumpage rates could also be in store for independent saw mill operators reeling from a slump in the forest industry.

Opposition leaders are growling, however, because of the short amount of time allocated for debate on other issues.

Conservative Leader and lone Tory, Dr. Scott Wallace called Wednesday for the government "to show some degree of understanding" and allow debate on financial issues that are "distressing the taxpayer."

The taxpayer, he said, "is entitled to a better accounting of finances than the government has chosen to give."

Wallace, representing the Conservative party alone while Hugh Curtis takes his seat in the middle of the Socred backbench, said he's confident the session could be lengthened and the house could get along without the premier when he leaves, "though I don't think he shares that view."

Although Liberal Leader David Anderson thinks a debate on rising unemployment in the forest industry would be a waste of time, Socred Leader Bill Bennett thinks differently.

Bennett said the forest industry, as well as the whole issue of housing in the province, should be aired in the house.

The eight per cent rent increase ceiling, said Bennett, was "unrealistic and has accentuated the housing crisis."

The province should move into construction of more rental units.

"There are no 'in-the-meantime' solutions here. If there are more rental units available and the tenant is buyer and the supply is up then the buyer is king," said Bennett.

Bennett rejects "the fact that we must work to a timetable to suit the government. We're going to initiate discussion in the major problem areas."

The session opens at 10 a.m.

A NIPPY TREAT

The weatherman advises trick-or-treaters to wear long johns under those Halloween costumes tonight as temperatures are likely to drop to the low 40s by 6 p.m.

Raincoats won't be necessary as the cloud cover will break up to reveal a witch's full moon by nightfall.

Persons not gathering sweets or chanting spells are invited to public bonfires scheduled in various locations throughout municipalities.

Bonfires not listed in Wednesday's Times are on at Kinsmen Park and another at Kinver Beach, both sponsored by local Lions clubs. Most bonfires begin at 7 p.m., and some will feature fireworks.

Italians Won't Pay Increases

ROME (AP) — Consumers in Rome Turin and Milan are attempting to fight inflation by disregarding higher utility bills and bus fares.

Powerful labor unions leading the movement say about 40,000 families in Turin, a car-building city, paid only half the amount charged on their current light bills.

They say 60,000 more have pledged to do the same at the next billing in three months.

"Our fight is going well," said Franco Frasca, a union leader.

"The electricity company will be forced to learn that workers will refuse indiscriminate price increases without consulting labor."

The company has not followed through on threats to cut off power to families who pay only part of their bills.

In Milan, bus riders successfully defied a fare increase by refusing to pay more than the old rate of $2 for a weekly commuting ticket. The private bus company rescinded a 50-cent increase.

LOW-COST EGGS FOR PENSIONERS?

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Egg Marketing Agency (CEMA) is working on a plan to provide old age pensioners with low-cost eggs.

Agency chairman Phil Eldridge of Calgary told the special Commons egg inquiry Wednesday that the egg marketing organization had been working on the plan since June.

"But we ran into problems with the mechanics."

"The moment adequate mechanics are in place we will fulfill our promise," he said.

A weakening weather system gave a few showers to southwestern B.C. overnight. In other areas the cloud cover was very variable with patch fog in the central interior.

The disturbance will be accompanied by a narrow cloud band and a few showers as it crosses the interior today. A ridge of high pressure following the disturbance will give sunny skies in many areas.

The next Pacific weather system will bring more cloud and rain to the north coast on Friday. The cloud will reach the central interior and the south coast during the afternoon and will be followed later by a weakening band of rain.

Winds in exposed coastal areas will become quite strong and gusty ahead of the disturbance.

A PARK CREATED

Shirley Wilde says the school board donated use of the land and the residents — both young and old — pitched in to complete it.

Many businessmen donated the use of trucks and equipment and the men put up the ropes and tires.

The fence also doubles as a "hitching rail" for the children who ride their horses to the playground.

Wilde, president of the ALBERT HEAD Ratepayers Association, says there is some money put aside for tennis courts which will be constructed next.

No date has been set on this part of the program.

How Much Land Set Aside?

How much land in the Royal Oak area will be zoned light industrial under the proposed official plan of the Capital Regional District?

This is the answer being sought by the Royal Oak Ratepayers Association in a letter to the regional board.

Secretary Mrs. Ruth Clay today said the association has asked the region "exactly how much land is set aside in the plan for industrial use" and to date the region has failed to come up with an answer.

"No one knows how much power the regional board has in zoning matters so we, as ratepayers, must get these answers before anything is forced on us."

In other business at an executive meeting Wednesday night, the association is asking the department of highways to come up with proper screening along Pat Bay Highway.

It is felt that with screening traffic noise to residential areas will be reduced.

Go Go-Carting

Teenagers in Vic West will be able to join a mini-bike and go-cart club next Wednesday night, but they'll have to wait a while before they may drive their vehicles in the area.

The idea of setting up a club on Sea Cadet property on Rober' Street originated with Victoria police constable Ken Dibden, as a result, he said, of "pressure put on me by kids in the area."

The public works committee of city council has approved the idea of using the property's facilities as a garage and clubhouse, but not as a track for the vehicles.

The committee feared noise would disturb neighbors.

Dibden said he and department of human resources worker Shirley Wakeham checked with residents in the area of the property and they did not object to allowing the property to be used.

The club, which has backing both from police and the Vic West neighborhood centre, would let police work right with kids, Pat Griffin, Vic West neighborhood director said, and he added, the project "certainly gives the kids a chance to see the police in a different light." The meeting starts at 7 p.m. at the centre.

Dibden said 30 machine owners have shown an interest in forming a club.

He said he is looking into ways of letting them drive their vehicles, but no decision had been made about what approach to take.

What exactly is happening concerning an acute care hospital for the Saanich Peninsula was discussed at an executive meeting of the EASTERN DISTRICT — NORTH SAANICH Property Owners Association.

Secretary George Soellner reports that president Jim Cumming, who also is a member of the Penninsula Hospital Board, spoke on the inactivity of the government or the regional hospital board in coming to some kind of a decision.

"We would like to know exactly where the acute care hospital will be located. We have heard it could be added to the existing extended care unit on Mount Newton X Road; it could be located in Sidney or at a site still unknown to us," says Soellner.

He says there is a great need for an acute care unit to replace Resthaven Hospital in Sidney.

The executive is sounding out the members to see if a general meeting should be called.

Due and Careful Consideration

Members of the British Columbia legislature understandably may not be wholeheartedly taken with the idea of coming to Victoria this week for a short fall session, nor will they be overjoyed at the proposed single-item agenda — property taxation.

It's a complex subject, which easily becomes blurred in confusion. Politicians and the public want some easy solution to the current mess, but there isn't any. We can expect the usual partisan overtones — the opposition will blame the present government for moving too quickly, the present government will blame the former government for neglecting the matter so long.

The special legislative committee, given a generous five weeks or so to come up with the answers, will table its report in the house. It will probably call for some stopgap measure this year and recommend that the committee be reconstituted again after the session ends with a much longer deadline. Or the problem could be dumped into the laps of a royal commission or special inquiry, the usual destination of controversial matters. Enough task forces, boards and probes have been appointed in the last two years that one more wouldn't be out of place.

And it should be given enough time to do a proper job. That's one area where the present government may be faulted, acting too hastily. The New Democratic Party wanted to reform at a stroke the existing inequitable system, which puts a proportionately heavier burden on individual homeowners. It brought in a new 100 per cent market value assessment plan — supported by all parties.

At the same time it began to remove the school tax from property — a 1972 campaign promise —with a five-year plan of "resource grants." And it tinkered again with property taxation by bringing in legislation allowing elderly homeowners to defer taxes until death or sale of the property.

The all-purpose beast of burden which property taxation has become — with all kinds of things heaped on which can in no way be described "services to property" as are sewers or roads — deserves a lightening of the load; it's a regressive tax falling heavily on those least able to pay. But the piecemeal approach taken to date just won't do. It's an important matter which deserves more careful consideration.

"... if inflation, unemployment, over-population, global food shortage, irreversible pollution, dwindling natural resources don't scare people much, how do you expect to scare them with a silly mask ...?"

Kiss and Make Up

"Mountains tend to restrict the horizons of the mind," pioneer psychoanalyst Carl Jung said once. Others closer to the Canadian scene have commented on the eccentric, Alice-in-wonderland nature of politics as they are practised in our "sea of mountains" west of Alberta. More evidence that British Columbia is the slightly crazy bumpkin of Confederation was supplied in this week's conclave of B.C. members of parliament with Premier Dave Barrett down in Ottawa.

To quote news reports, the meeting "degenerated into a partisan shouting match." Following a lengthy opening statement by the premier on resources, health care, ferries and oil tankers, there were mutterings from Ron Huntington, the millionaire Tory who defeated Environment Minister Jack Davis, that they were being used for publicity purposes. Barrett accused him of political jockeying. Loudmouth Liberal Simma Holt shouted that Barrett was "bloody insulting." Freshman Iona Campagnola, Liberal member for Skeena, called him a hypocrite on Indian land claims. Stuart Leggatt, a member of Barrett's own party, said both Ottawa and B.C. were guilty of foot-dragging on different issues. All exit, stage right.

These are grown-ups? They seems more like kids squabbling in the sand pile than elected representatives going about the people's business. They should be ashamed and embarrassed. It's no way to run government.

Meanwhile, how to cure the malady? Is it caused by the mountains, perhaps the rain, or the isolation, the fact that B.C. is the end of the line for the rest of the country's kooks, and misfits? For starters, a few lessons from Emily Post wouldn't do any harm.

Addressing the Problem

The provincial government is in drastic need of a new postal policy. Here's the address one department gives you if you want information on beverage can refunds: Department of Lands, Forests and Water Resources, Water Resources Service, Pollution Control Branch, Parliament Buildings, Victoria, British Columbia. By now, you've run out of envelope space. Why not something like Pollution, B.C.? Or in the manner of the federal government (Statscan, Infocan etc.), something along the lines of Popcans, Victoria? Think of all the recyclable paper it would save.

MARJORIE NICHOLS

Cracks in the Common Front

OTTAWA — Finance Minister John Turner's recent tour of the western provinces was, from the federal viewpoint, a productive exercise in the art of federal-provincial diplomacy.

Turner garnered few headlines, scored no major victories, presided at no breakthroughs in the continuing stand-off between Ottawa and the provinces on the contentious resource taxation issue.

The western foray was a success simply because Turner's advance expectations were more than fulfilled. At each stop, the finance minister carefully repeated the message that he had come, not to negotiate but to discuss. The message itself precluded expectation of any startling conclusions. What Turner returned to Ottawa with was firm evidence of cracks in the solidarity of provincial opposition to federal policies as detailed in the May 6 budget, and signs of a newfound philosophic camaraderie on the part of Manitoba, and, to a degree, Alberta.

Revised Form

In brief, the finance minister managed to carve out more manoeuvring room as he addresses himself to writing a new budget, now expected sometime in mid-November. The question is whether Turner will re-introduce intact, amend or rewrite the controversial resource tax proposals of the May 6 budget, which bought the defeat of the government in the house.

Based on the Turner tour, a guess is that the original proposals will be brought back in a revised, but fundamentally unchanged form.

This conclusion derives, not from any actions on the part of the federal minister, but from the reactions on the part of the provinces. Manitoba Premier Ed Schreyer handed Turner an unexpected bonus with his public endorsation of the federal tax position.

As late as September Manitoba had stood, publicly at least, with the other nine provinces in opposition to the May 6 budget. Schreyer signed a communique issued at the conclusion of the premiers conference in Toronto, which labelled certain of the budget provisions "contrary to the spirit of Confederation."

The Manitoba premier vehemently denied that his belated endorsement of the federal arguments constituted a flip-flop. And that probably is true. Other sources said Schreyer was a reluctant party to the Toronto communique. But the public about-face in the Manitoba stance afforded Turner an important psychological tool as he winged his way on to the other three provincial capitals.

The meeting, with members of the Saskatchewan government was civil, but unrevealing. The cabinet ministers assigned by Premier Allan Blakeney to meet with Turner re-stated the Saskatchewan view that Ottawa's initiatives had violated the terms of the federal-provincial oil agreement.

There was a concession, however, that Ottawa's concerns about the continued health of the resource industries in the wake of the federal-provincial taxation dispute were well-founded.

The finance minister, at each stop, carefully reiterated his two themes: Ottawa is not receiving "a fair share" of resource revenues under current arrangements, and the resource industries themselves will be the victims if an understanding is not reached on an equitable split.

JOHN TURNER
... personal diplomacy pays

It is significant that B.C. alone among the four western governments rejected outright the argument that a continuation of the taxation stalemate could prove counter-productive if the resource industries shut down their operations.

Premier Dave Barrett argued, in fact, that the resource companies were being grossly under-taxed, and he repeated demands for the establishment of an inquiry into resource taxation across the country.

Furthermore, said Barrett, B.C. will not withdraw its own new mineral tax legislation, even if Turner reintroduces the May 6 proposals intact. The federal minister pointed out that if the May 6 budget had been adopted the effective rate of taxation on production profits of B.C. natural gas would have been 85 per cent — 18 per cent to the federal government and 67 per cent to the province.

Turner's disappointment at the intransigence of the Barrett government was, however more than balanced by the reaction in the Alberta capital.

Though the Manitoba endorsation cannot be dismissed as completely inconsequential, the federal delegation was acutely aware that it is Alberta which still holds the major cards. And Alberta gave Turner, if not cause for rapture, at least justification for a small flush of optimism.

At a news conference following their meeting with the federal finance minister, two Alberta cabinet ministers conceded that the province may have to amend its own royalty legislation to accommodate the new federal budget.

Almost Nothing

Simply stated, the Albertans said that if the issue comes down to a choice between maintaining a healthy petroleum industry or continuing the jurisdictional fight with Ottawa over revenue sharing, the industry will get the nod.

The main item of dispute between Ottawa and the provinces on the resources issue is the so-called deductibility clause of the last budget.

Under this provision, the resource companies would no longer be allowed to deduct provincial royalties from federal corporation taxes. Turner argued that some of the royalties being imposed by the provinces are not royalties at all but "disguised provincial taxes," the net effect of which is to cut Ottawa out of its share of resource revenues.

At each capital, Turner unsheafed figures supportive of the federal view that the national treasury's share of the riches will diminish to almost nothing if action is not taken.

If the federal minister made any closed-door offers to the provinces to spur the new-found conciliation there was no evidence. Perhaps the real moral to the story is that personal diplomacy pays. A major, if secondary, objection by the provinces to the original budget was the lack of advance discussion with the provinces.

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

Curtis Replies

May I protest, as forcefully as possible, the news story which appeared on page 11 of The Times on Saturday, October 26. The headline, as well as a paragraph attributed to David Anderson, indicate that I had been involved with "three (political) parties in three years."

This is simply not supported by the facts, as would be apparent to anyone checking your own newspaper files for past years.

It is true that I was a member of the Liberal party for a few years in the latter part of the 1960s. However, in 1969, and in anticipation that I would become president of the Union of B.C. Municipalities in September, 1969, I terminated my membership in the party. This was reported in the press at the time.

I carried no membership card for any party from that date until the spring of 1972, when I joined the Progressive Conservative party of B.C.

It should also be noted that I was a most inactive member of the Liberal Party during the period referred to earlier. I did not seek a nomination for any elected office, nor did I ever attend a Liberal convention — provincial or federal.

The situation outlined here probably appears insignificant. However, I am annoyed that the statement carried so prominently on Saturday was incorrect and that, to the best of our knowledge in the family, no one at The Times attempted to check the statement with me before it went into print.—Hugh A. Curtis, MLA, Saanich and the Island.

(Editor's note: The Times headline and story was based on the Liberal leader's statement which Mr. Curtis says was inaccurate. We apologize for any annoyance or embarrassment the story and headline caused Mr. Curtis.)

Alcohol Education

Thank you for printing Mr. Sidney Katz' account Canada Has Become a Problem Drinker and the emergency situation he presents.

Please keep this situation before our eyes. If possible, please forward this account to our school board requesting alcohol education, beginning in the primary area. Children must have the facts so they can develop a firm stand at an early age. To me, this problem takes precedence over the family life program now in existence as it is the cause of so many of our "family life" problems.

Education regarding drug and alcohol problems must begin at an early age. — Mrs. Newton Campbell, 3379 Salsbury Way.

Civic Wunderkind

By announcing his political retirement at this premature date, it seems that Mayor Peter Pollen is psychologically removing himself from the consequences of his office before his elected time is up — for no apparent reason. What sort of commitment can one expect from a man in the onerous position of mayor if he knows in a few short months he will be back in private business. (I can never reconcile the wunderkind of pedestrian malls with a purveyor of automobiles, but perhaps I can't appreciate paradoxes.)

Mr. Pollen's stance re-emphasizes the frightening point about city politics, in that major, far-reaching decisions regarding the character, environment and very nature of our city are indelibly made by civic non-professionals, usually business oriented, in the few short years they are in office. The decisions are dropped into the perpetual and self-perpetuating bureaucracy of city hall which proves itself inflexible in the face of concerned citizenry and changing urban demands. Hence, we have ideas and policies, hatched in the 1950s, obsolete in the 1960s and still kicking around in the 1970s. The pre-eminence of more and better streets and roads; urban renewal as complete destruction and rebuilding (Rose-Blanshard); the prettification of urban areas with no solid social reasoning behind it (the squares) other than business considerations; the persistent refusal to bring permanent residents into the downtown core; the encouragement (covert and overt) of large firms from outside Victoria to invest funds in large buildings that destroy our city and increase their profits.

Elected officials of the Haddock regime initiated programs that still affect us today and have precipitated the present city council into much of its reflex behaviour. The latest appears to be the upcoming Nordal Mall.

Mr. Pollen used an interesting phrase in his description of the controversy surrounding the destruction of the B.C. Land building. He called it "counter-productive emotionalism." This is a paradox I can understand. I believe it means that the electorate is becoming more foresighted than the elected. I wonder what the legacy of the Pollen council will be? — T. Pulfrey, 3158 Jackson Street.

Banana Republics

I should like to comment on the letter from Mother of Four headed "Simplistic Solution."

Your correspondent talks of Canada becoming a banana republic but I would point out that we are already a so-called banana republic and in fact more of a banana republic than many of the countries we loosely classify in that way.

(1) These so-called banana republics would never allow their unions to be controlled from abroad as we do here in Canada.

(2) These so-called banana republics do not permit a foreigner to own land within three kilometres (about two miles) of water-frontage. Here in Canada there are no restrictions in this respect.

(3) We are in fact more in the control of foreign capital than many of the so-called banana republics and these countries are taking active steps to control their own economies whereas here in Canada we continue to give away our oil and other natural resources and thereby deprive Canadians of employment. The vast majority of decisions governing the everyday lives of Canadians are made in the board-rooms of foreign countries.

I still maintain that the power of the chartered banks and the other financial companies is detrimental to the progress of our country as they are not prepared to take any risks and this creates an invitation for U.S. capital to fill this gap. This is not in the interest of an independent Canada. — M. P. B. Wrixon, 1701 Cedar Hill X Road.

Puzzled

Surely if the public feels strongly about trade with South Africa, the products would not sell. Will you also have all the diamonds sold in B.C. checked to confirm they are from a source other than South Africa? Will you refrain from selling any of our raw or processed products to South Africa? If your government is pro-Arab, will you also prohibit the import of Israeli goods? Will you try to stop Vancouver from being used as a port for shipping goods to Red China, the U.S.S.R., etc. and boycott sale of their imports? And what about Northern Ireland — why not show your displeasure with both sides and refuse the import and sale of products to England and Ireland?

Political Wine

So the citizens of British Columbia are to be denied inexpensive South African wines because the NDP (Non-Democratic Party) does not approve of the South African government's internal policies. Surely the citizen has the right to make this decision for himself. If this policy is to be taken to its logical conclusion we will also be denied South African fruit, jams and diamonds. Will Rothman's cigarettes also be banned since they are a South African company? I understand Rothman's have a controlling interest in Growers Wine so presumably their products will also be taken off the shelves. If trade is limited only to those nations whose internal policies the NDP approve there will be a lot of bare shelves in other stores.

What if countries who disapprove of our native Indian policies refuse to buy our lumber, wheat and minerals?

Despite the French atmospheric nuclear tests and the Greenpeace incidents there is no hint that French wines will be delisted. How come Mr. Barrett — too profitable to give up for the sake of principle? This is woolly thinking and bureaucratic bumbling at its worst. Let the citizens exercise their democrataic right to buy from whatever country they choose. Remember boycotts can work both ways! — H. H. Macartney, 2809 Burdick.

Defraying Costs

So Highways Minister Graham Lea has reduced the speed limit on B.C. highways to 60, 55 and 50 mph. Since there is no fuel emergency in British Columbia as was the case in the U.S., could this be a governmental ploy to round up multitudes of motorists in a hurry, earning wholesale demerit points and paying correspondingly high penalties thus swelling the ICBC treasury to the tune of millions of dollars annually to help defray the ever-increasing Autoplan deficits — pardon us, overruns? — L. W. Meyers, Vancouver.

Half-Way Measure

It is with great enthusiasm that we applaud the recent decision of the Barrett government to reduce the speed limit on the island highways from 60 mph to 50 mph. Although unpopular with a few, it was a positive move in the right direction illustrating a great concern for the safety and well being of all British Columbians.

Since the kinetic energy of all moving objects (automobiles, passengers) is a function of the square of the velocity, a further reduction of the speed limit from 60 mph to 40 mph would reduce the force of impact on collision by more than one half, which would further reduce the number of tragic automobile fatalities.

It is clearly evident that the Barrett government has enacted yet another half way measure. — R. G. Trumble, Dale Brophy, 3996 Cedar Hill Road.

Federal Recipe

Who says we do not have concerted action in the Federal cabinet?

First, Prime Minister Trudeau tells his constituents' to mangez la merde, then Marc Lalonde tells us to heat it to 160 degrees before consuming it.

Perhaps (expletive deleted) ex-president Nixon's assessment of our noble leader was a bit more perceptive than we realize, or could it be I'm also a little behind?—Malcolm Watson, 784 Lavender Avenue.

60 YEARS AGO

From the Times of October 31, 1914.

City council has been faced for weeks past with the same problem as every municipality in Canada. The German and Austrian reservists whom the government will not allow to leave the country, and who have been required to register with the police of their respective districts, have created a special demand on the resources of the community, already handicapped by exceptional demands for charity and Victoria has been forced to take steps to meet the emergency. The matter however has been given a new turn by the announcement from Ottawa this week that the government contemplates the creation of concentration camps in the various districts into which alien enemies of the empire can be gathered during the time of strife. City council decided to wire Ottawa that it is strongly of the opinion that the Dominion government should take charge of the aliens.

In a World Out of Kilter, the Poor Suffer

By RENE DUMONT

(Dumont is an author and professor of agriculture in Paris. This article appeared in the UNESCO Courier.)

Tens of millions of children in the poorer countries are being deprived of normal brain development as a result of a serious lack of essential proteins in their diet. This is perhaps the most heart-rending crime of our time, though it may not be the most spectacular or the best known. If present inequalities in food distribution continue, untold millions of children will suffer cerebral underdevelopment in the decades ahead.

Those who for a long time have opposed any kind of contraception, and who still reject certain forms such as abortions in the early stages of pregnancy, unwittingly bear a large share of responsibility for this intolerable situation. But they are not alone. The blame must be shared by all who help to perpetuate an increasingly inadmissible social situation.

The tragedy is that there would be more than enough protein sources in the world to satisfy the minimum needs of all today's children if these substances were distributed rationally and equally. What happens is that they are shared out almost solely in proportion to financial resources, and this leads to appalling waste.

Powdered milk, for example, is one of the best sources of protein, but much of it goes to animals. Over 30 per cent of the world fish catch is transformed into flour — and the percentage is rising — most of it is used for animal fodder. A good milk cow consumes six grams of vegetable protein for every gram of milk protein it produces. The wastage is even higher for beef cattle.

Thus, like mineral and petroleum reserves, which are also limited, the semi-rare protein resources of the world are being woefully squandered by wealthy countries at the expense of poor ones.

If proteins were distributed more fairly there would be enough to go round, but this would mean a certain amount of austerity in the eating habits of the rich, which in turn would presuppose a social revolution patterned to some degree on that of China.

A Food and Agriculture Organization nutrition expert has shown that if we tried to combat undernourishment simply by increasing production without altering distribution, we should have to increase the food production of the so-called developing countries sixfold between 1970 and the year 2000, a task which is obviously impossible.

The first conclusion to be drawn is this: if we really wish to overcome malnutrition, it is absolutely essential to improve food distribution by making it no longer depend on the buying power of the individual. It has been calculated that present world food production would only satisfy — or should we say gorge — a billion persons if they were all to eat as much as most people in the United States do. And the world's population is almost four billion already! Current industrial output, moreover, could only satisfy 600 million such avid consumers.

Our world has gone mad. It has lost all control, both over its population growth and its production techniques. In some places people are overworked, while more and more young people in the Third World are unemployed. Above all there is the unbridled rise of the consumer society, most blatantly exemplified by the cult of the private motor car.

Attempts to boost food production alone are therefore not enough, though they remain none the less an absolute must. This, of course, is the specific task of agronomists like myself.

When the FAO completed its Indicative World Plan in 1969-1970, it estimated that the "backward" countries would have to achieve an agricultural growth rate of 3.8 per cent per year in order to eliminate most of their malnutrition by 1985, the end of the period under consideration.

Twelve years have now gone by since the beginning of the base year, 1962, and in those twelve years these countries have fallen further behind. Although it is difficult to make a precise assessment, it seems more than likely that the poor countries are, on the average, as undernourished as they were before the Second World War.

It even seems quite probable that the poorer classes in India, Bangladesh and most of the Andean mountain regions are less well nourished than they were in the eighteenth century, periods of famine apart.

Gas consumption here affects food supply elsewhere

In 1970, which marked the beginning of the Second Development Decade, it was foreseen that an annual growth rate of four per cent in food production would be necessary in order to make up the accumulated deficit. But at the end of November 1972, Mr. A. H. Boerma, Director-General of FAO, pointed out that in the first two years of the decade the increase in food production had barely exceeded one per cent a year whereas population in the countries concerned had increased by over 2.5 per cent.

Unless an extraordinary effort was made, he concluded, unless a miracle took place, the Second Development Decade was already doomed to fail in agriculture. Miracles, alas, are not the Agronomist's specialty; he is much too realistic and down to earth to envisage such possibilities.

He can only issue a serious warning to any demographers who still think it impossible to bring about a rapid reduction in population growth and who consider the ageing of society more ominous than over-population. He may also address a timely word to governments responsible for civic education, a tool of which far more use could be made.

If the experts are unable to work out a co-ordinated program designed to halt population increase, then we face the prospect of a series of catastrophes, whose precise nature no one can predict at this stage. Everyone has a responsibility in this matter.

The Green Revolution, it is true, gave promise of miracles, and it would be wrong to underestimate its achievements. New tropical cereal seeds, including wheat, rice and maize, now have a potential comparable to those of their counterparts in the temperate zones — a dramatic change from the situation 20 years ago.

From Mexico to Pakistan and northwest India, the so-called Mexican wheat, cultivated in irrigated fields, often on a large scale, by farmers who have financial backing and new techniques at their disposal, has been a great success. In India alone wheat production jumped from 12 to 26 million tons in a six-year period.

The picture is more mixed in the rice fields. In the Philippines the rate of growth of the new miracle rice is still erratic. In Java, Sri Lanka (Ceylon), Bangladesh and India the yields of the seeds developed at the International Rice Research Institute at Los Banos (Philippines) have so far been extremely disappointing.

Too many rice fields in these countries are still only rain-fed, unlevelled and dependent on the irregularities of the monsoon. When the government builds an irrigation network, it sometimes leaves the farmers to install the final channels to connect their land to the water mains, and this they usually fail to do.

In Sri Lanka, on the other hand, irrigation water is provided free of charge, or virtually so, and hence it is distressingly wasted. Each hectare receives three or four times as much water as it needs, and this means that three or four fewer harvests are being irrigated. Employment is consequently on the down grade.

The existence of 800,000 unemployed in this little country caused its young "intellectuals" to revolt. In point of fact, they are more interested in a steady office job than standing barefoot in the mud of the rice paddies, like their Chinese counterparts.

In Bangladesh only 320,000 hectares, out of a total of nine million under cultivation, are irrigated in the dry season, yet this is the most favorable period for watering. If all the pumps and tubed wells that are available were fully used, it would be possible to irrigate three times as much land, but these facilities are rented to farmers for a tenth of their cost and only a third of their capacity is used. To cap all, a number of them are completely out of order and those in charge of them have little incentive to repair them, since they know that they will receive their wages in any event.

There are also 250,000 hectares of ponds and reservoirs in Bangladesh, but three-quarters of their area 190,000 hectares — have gradually become choked with earth. If they were excavated to an average depth of two metres or more, 4,000 million cubic metres of food-producing water would immediately collect, since these pools could be stocked with fish or used as irrigation reservoirs.

This project would provide 2,000 million man-days, or in other words, 100 extra days of work over a period of five years for four million landless men — who at present are unemployed for just a such a period every year.

The increase in the irrigation potential thus achieved would then bring about full employment — provided, of course, that the population explosion was halted. The cost could easily be met by levying a property tax on the rice fields and on disused reservoirs, and allowing for a moderate rate of inflation (as in Germany in 1933).

A report by the World Bank, however, states that "reasonable expectations" for Bangladesh are a population that will amount to 140-170 milion inhabitants by the year 2000, with "a total percentage of rural unemployment remaining constant at 30 per cent, in the 30 years between 1970 and 2000." The report takes no account of the possible mobilization of the labor of the rural population, and all the extensions to the irrigation system it foresees will be provided by external aid. Similarly, increased output will be the result of using chemical fertilizers and insecticides, with little effort being made to utilize organic fertilizers and other means.

How is it possible to turn the unemployment of this half of the population to account so long as most of their earnings continue to go to the land-owners, the money-lenders and tradesmen? Women are traditionally confined to the house and its precincts because they would be disgraced if they went out to the fields, yet in China, Vietnam and India, women take part in replanting, weeding and harvesting.

In the northern part of Senegal, in the region around Louga, when traditional methods of cultivation were used, the land was allowed to lie fallow for long periods of time and this kept the soil structure in good condition. With the unchecked increase in population and in the acreage which had to be devoted to the ground-nut crop, fallow land has been reduced — indeed, in the already overpopulated area inhabited by the Serer people, sometimes even totally eliminated — and thus the amount of humus in the soil has been reduced.

As a result, the less solid components, such as fine sand and loam, are not held firmly in the soil, but get blown away by the wind. What remains is mostly coarse sand which does not retain the water from the all too irregular and infrequent rainfalls. A similar situation is found in the semi-arid belt that stretches across Africa from Mauritania to Chad and the Sudan, and south to Tanzania.

The drought in these regions in 1972 caused a wholesale loss of cattle. Over-pasturing has destroyed all vegetation in the proximity of wells. Farther away some dry grass still grows but there is no water to drink. Some cattle are therefore doomed to die either from hunger or thirst. Meanwhile the inhabitants of these regions are suffering great privations and are dying in increasing numbers.

The vast agricultural expanses of the Soviet Union — one hectare per inhabitant plus extensive pasture-land and forests — can, of course, be greatly affected by cold and drought. Nevertheless, the country should have been able to accumulate enough grain reserves, after the excellent harvests in 1970 and 1971, to avoid the necessity of buying so much wheat in 1972-1973. What it did purchase, mainly because it feeds its cattle on grain, is no longer available for famine-stricken areas elsewhere, and these areas can no longer pay the high prices caused by world shortages.

The well-to-do countries eat too much meat produced from cereals and are therefore unable to give proper aid to the poorer countires. A world sugar shortage is also impending, and the scarcity of beef is going to make the inequalities between rich and poor even more glaring.

It was thought in 1950 that education was the key factor in all development, even more important than the accumulation of capital. It is indeed true that capital, to be used to good effect, requires a wealth of knowledge.

The crime of crimes was committed, however, when the schools began teaching — or at any rate instilling in students — a disdain for manual labour, especially that of the farmer, who was "soiled" with mud or dust, depending on the season. In a traditionally stratified society, work on the land was already generally considered sufficiently "degrading".

The farmer's children, anxious for social advancement, consequently — and in a sense, rightly — wished to rise above such "degradation" and this led them to see in school a means of escaping from their dependence on the land. As a result, schools in the tropics have been swelling the numbers of the unemployable.

The Chinese model is more interesting. In China all children begin their education in an environment where work and study are constantly blended, and this, together with their civic training, helps inculcate in them a respect for work — and for workers.

Wage differences are kept to a minimum, which prevents the importing of luxury items. "Relying on its own strength" and "walking on its own two feet," China is modernizing its technology only to the extent that this does not cause unemployment or require too much buying abroad. Out of necessity all by-products are used and therefore it wastes much less than richer countries.

This is not to say that I consider China to be politically and economically perfect. Its rate of agricultural development seems low to me, and even somewhat lower than I thought might be expected from the total re-organization of the agrarian structure and the wide extension of irrigation.

More than two-thirds of Chinese fields are irrigated, compared with only slightly over a quarter of the fields in India, yet China's harvest was only twice that of India, even in a dry year (1972), for something like 750 million inhabitants. China, however, is developing its agriculture without unemployment and without foreign aid. Admittedly an exact duplication of the Chinese model elsewhere would be ill-advised. Fundamental differences, such as historical heritage, traditional outlook, social structure, and especially recent political history, must all be taken into account.

China is not a country or a nation in the Western sense of those terms. It is a continent, very much larger and more populous than the whole of Europe. It has abundant natural resources — which it has skilfully located and learned to exploit — and lives largely cut off from outside influences.

Nonetheless, many of the principles followed in China deserve to be studied, to see whether, and to what extent, they can be adapted elsewhere. Let there be no mistake on one point, however: they will often require as an inescapable condition the abolition of privileges, and consequently a genuine social revolution.

Even without a revolution on the Chinese model, there are many ways in which education might be completely transformed, as it must be if there is to be the kind of general change in outlook that would lead to a more egalitarian society.

Too Late for Sacrifice?

By RICHARD NEEDHAM

Pride, anger, lust, avarice, gluttony, envy, sloth—those, in case you'd forgotten, are the seven deadly sins; and to all of them, save one, I've paid my tribute. The exception is envy. It has never bothered me that some other guy was richer than I, or stronger, or wiser, or younger, or prettier, or wrote better, or had — well, appeared to have — fewer calamities. I'm content with what God has given me and with what, for His own good reasons, He has decided to take away.

But this, I think, puts me in a minority. There's a streak of envy among most human beings; they like to see a rich man go broke, or a beautiful woman lose her looks. We in Canada had a fine dose of envy during the 1974 federal election campaign, and British writers refer to "the politics of envy"—the strong belief among many or most people in that country that everybody should be rendered equal with everybody else.

In a recent issue of Encounter, Mark Abrams told of surveys by his Social Science Research Council. These show that British people put good health as the first thing to be desired and after that, better pay — "A solid majority feel that the quality of their lives would be improved if they had more money; but with one very important provision — that in getting more money they should not be outdistanced by others." Here is the choice they were given—(1) you get five pounds more per week, and everyone else gets six pounds more; (2) everybody, yourself included, gets four pounds more per week. The overwhelming choice (85 per cent) was for the four-pound increase.

Before the war, says Mr. Abrams, British people were willing to accept social and economic inequality — "the rich man in his castle, the poor man at his gate". That's no longer the case.

The British people want equality, and they want it mainly in economic terms — the pay packet. "If," he says, "we are to avoid extreme social conflict, we shall have to move to much greater economic equality than we now have." It seems to me this can have only one result — that the British will all be equally hungry, equally cold, and equally ragged: the equality of poverty.

Back to North America. Writing in that lively weekly, New York, Andrew Tobias says the American people don't want soft, short-term compromises on inflation, they want a clear and firm way out of it — "If the sacrifices are spread evenly among us, who knows what the voters might tolerate?" But in peace or war, depression or prosperity, neither the hardships nor the benefits are ever "spread evenly". Human nature looks after that. Still, the myth of equality persists, and I found an instance of it last week in the New York Daily News.

Six New Yorkers chosen at random were asked if, in the event of a depression, they'd be willing to take a wage cut. (In the depression of the 1930s, most people took a 10 per cent pay cut, many took two of them, and some three.) Two of the six people interviewed said they would take a cut only if "everybody else" had their pay cut by a similar amount. This would seem a rather selfish attitude. I should think that if a company decided to cut wages and salaries, the higher-paid people should get a bigger cut than the lower-paid; and the older ones should get a bigger cut than the younger, with families to raise. (I'd get a bigger cut on both scores.)

A survey by the New York Times (10 people approached at random in each of of 15 cities) suggests that Americans won't make the voluntary cutbacks which President Gerald Ford has been requesting; they'll give up on their waste, their luxuries, only when they and "everybody else" are compelled to do so. The question is: Does the American (or the British, or the Canadian) government have the actual power to impose any sort of effort or hardship on its people? Has it really the authority to govern?

I'd say no. In Canada, in Britain, in the States, people are no longer willing to take orders — not even from the leaders whom they elect or who, as in Mr. Ford's case, have been constitutionally set over them. Andrew Hacker summed it up in his book, The End of the American Era, which is even more valid today than when it appeared four years ago, "It is too late in our history to restore order or to re-establish authority; the American temperament has passed the point where self-interest can subordinate itself to citizenship. Calls for enlightened attitudes and concerted action will continue, but with little effect. Our history shaped our character, and that history will now run its course."

I'd apply the same judgment to Canada and the U.K. The disciplines and the responsibilities which brought them through the war started crumbling as soon as the war ended; for close to 30 years there's been a long slide to moral disorder — of which political corruption, galloping inflation, and pervasive criminality are only the symptoms. The English-speaking world might, just might, make a comeback — but from some lower and more desperate point than it's at today. Such are the wages of irresponsibility.

B.C. 'Cheated' Of New Seats Tory Claims

OTTAWA (CP) — Conservative John Reynolds said Wednesday he will do all he can to stop a redistribution of Commons seats that he feels does not reflect British Columbia's growth rate.

A bill presenting redistribution plans is expected to be introduced in the Commons within two weeks and, if not passed by Dec. 31, it would result in continuation of the present system.

Reynolds Burnaby-Richmond-Delta, said that if necessary he will block passage by staging a one-man filibuster — taking the floor in the Commons and not relinquishing it to other speakers.

The redistribution plan the government has said it prefers would expand the Commons to 279 seats for the next election from the present 264. All provinces would gain seats, but Mr. Reynolds says the proposed B.C. gain of three — to 26 seats — is not adequate.

"B.C.'s growing faster than anyone else and I'm not going to let that through even if I have to be in the House every minute it's sitting."

A government spokesman said Reynold's position was contrary to that expressed by the House leaders of all parties that the method proposed earlier this year by former government House leader Allan MacEachen represents the best alternative.

"But if it's not passed by the end of the year we'll abandon it and continue the present system."

Under MacEachen's proposal, no province would lose seats. Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta would each pick up one in addition to the proposed increases for Ontario, Quebec and British Columbia.

Although its population does not warrant an increase under the new formula, the Northwest Territories would have two seats instead of one to take into account its vast area. The Yukon would continue with one seat.

The 279-seat Commons would be established for the next election, expected in 1978, with further expansion planned at lease until 2001 on the basis of Canada's population growth.

PLAN TO KEEP TREASURES AT HOME

OTTAWA (CP) — A bill aimed at keeping Canadian cultural treasures in Canada and stopping the import of similar objects illegally exported from other countries was introduced in the Commons Wednesday by State Secretary Hugh Faulkner. The proposed legislation would forbid the export of designated articles without a permit.

Parliament also would be asked to provide funds for the repatriation of such Canadian articles which appear on the international market.

Syrians Slammed On Crash

By IAIN HUNTER
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Defence Minister James Richardson suggested Wednesday that Syria has not co-operated fully in finding the cause of the crash of a Buffalo aircraft in the Middle East, killing nine Canadians engaged in peacekeeping duties.

Meanwhile, sources in his department confirmed that a two-and-a-half minute segment of a tape, recording communication between the Damascus tower and the aircraft at the time of the crash, was cut out before being submitted to UN investigators.

Gordon Fairweather (PC—Fundy Royal) raised the question of the Aug. 9 crash in the Commons, asking if the Canadian and UN reports on the accident disclose the gaps in the tape.

He also asked when the UN and Canadian reports on the crash will be made public to reassure families of those killed.

Richardson at first denied that the UN report had reached his department, but later corrected himself. Both reports are being studied, he said.

"This is a very grave matter and there are unpleasant aspects to it that I think should be cleared up," Fairweather stated.

Outside the Commons, Richardson said he was not aware of any gap in the Damascus tower tape because he has not yet read the reports. But the existence of such a gap was confirmed later by a source in the department.

ALL THAT REMAINS

OTTAWA (CP) — Spending 90 cents for registration would have prevented the loss in the mail of a small chest of cremated remains, Postmaster-General Bryce MacKasey said Wednesday.

He was reporting to the Commons that the post office has not yet found the ashes of Michael Klochko of Grimsby, Ont., who died about two months ago.

Klochko, 77, died in Grimsby and his ashes were mailed to Toronto, about 50 miles away, for burial beside his first wife. The ashes never did arrive at Toronto Prospect Cemetery.

"The chest would have been safe and sound for the sake of another 90 cents," MacKasey said. "That is why we have had registered mail for over 100 years."

A Nostalgic Last Hurrah

MARTIN . . . happiest in House

OTTAWA (CP) — Only 15 spectators dotted the Senate public gallery Wednesday as Paul Martin officially ended his 39-year career on Parliament Hill.

Martin, his right arm in a sling as the result of a playful run-in with a grandchild, bowed out on a nostalgic note after announcing his resignation from the Senate.

The veteran politician, who has been appointed high commissioner to Britain, recalled some of the men and events he encountered during a career that spanned five prime ministers and four cabinet portfolios.

He told the Senate: "I feel something like Charles Fox, who said that he was never happier than when he found himself on the floor of Parliament."

Martin represented the former riding of Essex East in the House of Commons from 1935 to 1968 before becoming government leader in the Senate. He was dropped from the cabinet and replaced by Ray Perrault this summer.

His appointment to the post of high commissioner allows him to pursue a life-long interest in foreign affairs.

"I am grateful to the Prime Mnister and the members of the government who have thought that I might serve in a public capacity in addition to the role that I have already had," he told the Senate.

He served as external affairs minister under Lester Pearson from 1963 and 1968. In 1964, he was the catalyst behind establishment of a UN peacekeeping force in Cyprus, sending Canadian troops to the Mediterranean island and getting other nations to contribute.

In the volley of tributes that followed Martin's resignation announcement Wednesday, Senator Allister Grosart (PC—Ontario) said "He is the architect of our present renown in the world as a military peacekeeper.

Grosart also credited Martin with establishing "our present system of social security which is the envy of the world"

Senator David Walker (PC—Ontario) said Martin was at his best sitting in opposition to the Conservative administration of John Diefenbaker.

"He was like the devil incarnate in opposition," recalled Senator Walker.

"I do not suppose there is anyone of this generation — other than Diefenbaker, of course — who is a greater parliamentarian."

Walker mentioned Martin's two unsuccessful attempts to win the leadership of the Liberal Party and admitted: "I subscribed $200 to his campaign to see if he could beat Pearson."

Martin, who spent all but 10 of his years on Parliament Hill as a cabinet minister, said in his farewell address that Parliament should be streamlined — "we must make it more functional.."

"However, the basic institution of Parliament — imperfect as it is — is sound," he said.

CEMA Bid to Take Egg Rap

Times News Services

OTTAWA — The Canadian Egg Marketing Agency (CEMA) attempted Wednesday to accept full responsibility for the destruction of 28 million eggs it bought from farmers as surplus, then left to rot in poor storage.

However, MPs on the 14-member special Commons committee studying egg marketing in the country continued to press arguments that much of the blame for the waste rests on Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan.

"Whelan's not off the hook by a long shot," Progressive Conservative consumer affairs critic James McGrath (St. John's East) said after the three-hour committee session.

There had been a "deliberate determination on Whelan's part to tell CEMA to 'go in there and do penance'."

McGrath commented following statements by Phil Eldridge of Calgary, chairman of CEMA, that the year-old agency was fully responsible for the destruction of the eggs.

But Eldridge added that he felt the severity of the problem had "been overemphasized to a marked degree."

Further, he said that he did not feel over-production by farmers who refused to abide by quotas set by the marketing agency were to blame.

"Very few farmers in this country did in fact rip us off," the elderly, soft-spoken chairman said after the meeting. The agency never felt it was burdened with "uncontrollable surpluses."

The problems that led to the destruction of the eggs arose primarily from international market pressures. "When egg prices dropped on international markets, "we did not adjust to them as fluently and as rapidly as we should have done," he said.

"It's goddamned time we got the truth and congratulations for telling it," exclaimed Allan Lawrence (PC—Northumberland Durham).

FOOD BOARD TO BE BREAD WATCHDOG

OTTAWA (CP) — The food prices review board likely will be the government watchdog on a proposed wheat subsidy designed to offset rising bread costs until 1980, Otto Lang said Wednesday night.

Lang, minister responsible for the wheat board, was commenting in an interview on a New Democratic suggestion in the House that there is no way to ensure the subsidy will be passed on to consumers.

"The board has been watching bread prices very carefully," Mr. Lang said. "I think that answers it."

Les Benjamin (NDP—Regina Lake Centre), the only member of his party to speak on the proposed subsidy legislation, which received Commons approval in principle, had said Lang and Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan should watch the subsidies carefully.

"It is time for them to get tough. I know they are both tough people and when the going gets tough, it is time for tough people to get going."

The new bill will affect bread prices for the next six years, Lang said.

MILK GRANT PASSED ON TO PUBLIC

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal subsidies on skim milk powder are being passed on to consumers in practically all retail outlets, Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan said Wednesday in the Commons.

Latest reports have found almost all retail outlets are passing the saving on to consumers, he told John Rodriguez (NDP — Nickel Belt).

Last week, the food prices review board reported that the 24-cents-a-pound subsidy was not being reflected in retail stores.

During questioning by Rodriguez, Consumer Affairs Minister Andre Ouellet disclosed that Whelan was ready to withdraw the subsidy if reports had not indicated "the very great majority" of retail stores were passing on the saving.

Employee Stock-Sharing Plan Announced by Texasgulf Inc.

NEW YORK (CP) — Texasgulf Inc. announced Wednesday a wide-ranging employee stock-sharing plan which it said will make all its employees, half of whom are Canadians, shareholders in the company.

The more than 4,000 full-time employees of the multinational mining and chemical concern—senior officers excepted—will receive from one to 50 Texasgulf shares this year, depending on years of service.

The more than 2,000 Canadians include approximately 1700 employees of the company's Kidd Creek mine near Timmins, Ont., kingpin of Texasgulf operations and one of the richest copper mines in the world.

They also include more than 300 working in Texasgulf offices and mining properties in Toronto, Calgary and Vancouver. Texasgulf operates three sulphur plants in Alberta.

The initial disbursement of stock, to begin in late November, will include slightly more than 40,000 shares. With Texasgulf shares currently trading on stock exchanges at more than $26, this first stage of the program involves stock worth more than $1 million.

Texasgulf said it estimates employees will receive an additional 50,000 shares during the next five years.

Texasgulf which derives more than 60 per cent of its income from copper, zinc and silver mining at Kidd Creek, was involved in a major take-over battle last year when Canada Development Corp. successfully carried out a tender offer for 8,250,000 Texasgulf shares at $29 a share. The coup gave CDC a 30-per-cent interest in Texasgulf and effective management control.

Employees with less than five years of service will get one share; those with five to 10 years, five shares; 10 to 15 years, 15 shares; 15 to 20 years, 30 shares; 20 or more years, 50 shares.

In addition, starting next year, each employee will receive one share of stock per year of service on each fifth employment anniversary. As employee service increases, the plan has a cumulative effect. An employee with five years will receive five shares as his initial award and on his 10th anniversary, he will receive an additional 10 shares for a total of 15.

Charles F. Fogarty, board chairman, said Texasgulf believes that "owning a part of the company will give each employee a greater awareness of why profits are so important."

Lytton Minerals

Lytton Minerals Ltd., a 58-per-cent-owned subsidiary of Anglo American Corp. and Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting Co. Ltd., both of Toronto, has signed an agreement with the Mexican government and a private firm in Mexico covering a $93-million development project for the La Verde copper deposit, about 200 miles west of Mexico City.

Lytton has a 48-per-cent equity interest in Minas Del Otono SA, the Mexican company that owns the mineral rights at La Verde with agencies of the government and Sociedad De Fomento Industrial SA, a privately-owned company.

Amcan and Hudson Bay Mining will provide technical assistance for the project.

U.S. Steel

PITTSBURGH, Pa. — U.S. Steel Corp. reports third-quarter earnings of $213.6 million, a record high for any three-month period in the company's history.

The profits, more than double the net income for the same period last year, come on record third-quarter sales of $2.51 billion.

U.S. Steel board chairman Edgar Speer said the company's ninth-month earnings of $463.4 million and sales of $5.13 billion were also record highs.

The third-quarter income was equal to $3.95 a share of U.S. Steel's common stock, a return of 8.5 per cent on each sales dollar.

That compared to 1973 third-quarter income of $87.3 million, or $1.62 a share, on sales of $82 million.

Nine-month income this year equalled $8.56 a share, a return of 6.7 cents on each sales dollar, against income of $4.09 a share and a return of 4.3 per cent for the same 1973 period.

U.S. Steel also reported third-quarter shipments of 6.2-million tons, down from 6.4-million tons for the same 1973 period.

However, nine-month shipments totalled 19.8-million tons, a new company high, compared to 19.2-million tons for the same 1973 period.

The firm noted that despite its record for sales and income, the percentage returns on sales were below those of the mid-1950s when profits averaged 8.9 per cent on sales.

Alcan

Aluminum Company of Canada Ltd. has announced an issue in Canada of $75 million of 20-year sinking fund debentures.

The debentures, dated Nov. 15, will be issued at par, carry an interest rate of 10¾ per cent and will mature Nov. 15, 1994, the company said in a statement.

The debentures will be issued through a group of investment dealers headed by A. E. Ames and Company Ltd. and Wood Gundy Ltd.

NW Sports

Northwest Sports Enterprises Ltd. reports profits for the year ending June 30 were up more than $108,000 over the previous year.

Net income included extraordinary items totalling $517,600 from income from NHL expansion and tax credits on previous losses. For 1973, extraordinary items of $14,200 were reported. Earnings were eight cents a share before extraordinary items and 52 cents a share after extraordinary items.

Total revenue for the year was $5.6 million, compared to $5.1 million in 1973.

Simpsons

Simpsons Ltd. reports net earnings for the nine months ended Oct. 2 of $13,807,208 or 29.4 cents a share compared with $11,455,616 or 24.6 cents during the corresponding period in 1973.

Net sales were $323,650,514 compared with $291,068,624 a year earlier.

In a release, the company said sales were affected during the third quarter by transit strikes in two major trading areas, Toronto and Montreal.

FORD PROFIT DOWN 51%

DETROIT (AP) — Ford Motor Company's third-quarter earnings were $47 million, down 51 per cent from the same 1973 period, despite record sales for the quarter, the firm said Wednesday.

Earnings were 51 cents a share, down from 98 cents a share in the 1973 period.

Ford President Lee Iacocca blamed the earnings drop on labor disruptions and component shortages that decreased production from scheduled levels.

World wide sales were a record 1.29 million units, up four per cent from the 1.24 million sold in the 1973 quarter. Dollar sales were a record $6 billion, up about 21 per cent from $5 billion in 1973.

For the first nine months of 1973, income was $339 million, or $3.62 a common share, compared with $850 million or $8.55 a share in the corresponding 1973 period.

World wide sales were $177.5 billion, up from $17.4 billion in 1973.

Unit sales of cars and trucks in the United States were down seven per cent at 609,000 in the third quarter, and down 16 per cent at 1.81 million, for the first nine months.

Iacocca used the opportunity to take another shot at federal fuel economy, pollution and safety requirements.

They would "add substantially to the price, weight and fuel consumption of our products within the next few model years," he said.

OAKVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Despite a slump in earnings in its American parent company, Ford Motor Co. of Canada Ltd. reports continued high sales and earnings for 1974.

In a report to shareholders, Ford of Canada says consolidated net income for the first nine months was $126 million or $15.14 a share, up from $108 million and $13.06 in the corresponding period of 1973.

Consolidated sales increased to $3.14 billion from $2.71 billion a year earlier.

The results include the company's Canadian operations and those of its overseas subsidiaries.

For the third-quarter, net income rose to $35 million or $4.19 a share from $24 million and $2.85 in 1973. Dollar sales were $1.13 billion, up from $852 million in the 1973 period.

President Roy F. Bennett said growth in earnings largely reflected the record level of car and truck sales and efficiencies in manufaacturing operations.

Broadcaster Dies

VANCOUVER (CP) — Roy G. Chapman, a long-time Okanagan broadcaster died in hospital here Tuesday after undergoing open-heart surgery. He was 54.

Chapman had been president and general manager of CHBC-TV Kelowna since it began operation in 1957.

He was also a former part owner of radio station CKOK Penticton.

Urban Zoning Cost Impedes Short Takeoff Air Service

VANCOUVER (CP) — Incalculable costs of urban zoning is a major problem standing in the way of developing downtown Short Takeoff and Landing (STOL) airline services in Canada, Walter McLeish, federal director general of civil aeronautics, said Wednesday.

McLeish added that the government's Montreal to Ottawa experiment in downtown-to-downtown STOL service was already pointing the way to improvements in navigation, safety, mountain flying and the possibility of quicker provision of instrument landing systems to airports for sparsely settled communities.

He spoke at the annual meeting of the Air Transport Association of Canada.

"A developer is threatening to put up a couple of towers right off the centre line of the existing runway at the Montreal STOL port," he said. "There is no way we can stop him."

He said the experiment would have finished its two-year term before the towers could interfere with flights but it pointed to frightening costs of zoning for STOL ports.

McLeish said the STOL experiment will cost about $20 million, not the $158 million recently estimated by Ian Sinclair, chairman of C.P. Air.

The government's program to develop a second generation STOL airplane to succeed the Twin Otter got a boost Wednesday from four airline operators at the transport association meeting.

Norman Gold, president of Airwest Airlines Ltd., of Vancouver, which operates downtown harbor-to-harbor Twin Otter services between Vancouver and Victoria and Vancouver and Nanaimo, said the four operators were prepared to buy about 10 of the $3 million DHC-7 quiet STOL aircraft being developed by government-owned De Havilland Aircraft of Canada Ltd.

He said the other carriers were Bradley Air Services Ltd. of Ottawa, Time Air Ltd. of Lethbridge, Alta., and Calm Air Ltd. of Lynn Lake, Man.

Gold, who hopes to operate DHC-7s out of Vancouver and Victoria stolports not yet disclosed, said the planes had many other applications to British Columbia flying.

The DHC-7 is expected to go into production in 1976.

Medicare $6.6M Into Red

The B.C. Medical Services Plan, under which doctors and allied medical services are paid, had a $6.6 million deficit in its last fiscal year.

A report shows that for the year ending last March 31, the plan had income of $178,517,650, about half from subscribers' premiums and most of the balance from federal and provincial grants.

But fees and other costs paid out totalled $185,150,292, producing the deficit operation for the year and reducing the contingency reserve to $17,809,137.

While income for the last financial year was up $11.6 million, costs rose by $24.3 million. The previous year the plan had an operating surplus of about $6 million.

Export Tax Threatens Alberta's Heavy Oil

EDMONTON (CP) — The "whole heavy oil industry in Alberta is in serious jeopardy" because of the federal government's export tax, Bill Dickie, mines and minerals minister, said Wednesday.

Asked in the legislature if Alberta's clude oil production was continuing to decline, Dickie said heavy crude oil production, with a capacity of 60,000 barrels a day, was down to 35,000 barrels in September.

Outside the house, Dickie said that the heavy oil industry was already using most of its storage area, and that if companies don't get "a definite answer" within two or three weeks on a reduction of the export tax, they may shut down their operations.

About 72 per cent of heavy crude oil production is from the Taber area of southern Alberta, and 23 per cent from Lloydminster, which straddles the Alberta-Saskatchewan border.

Dickie said an estimate of about 1,000 jobs lost in Lloydminster alone was "not out of line," but he had no hard figures.

Dickie said the United States had cut back on its imports of Canadian heavy crude because, with the export tax, the crude cost about $2 more than that available from other countries.

The national energy board has recently announced that heavy oil buyers can apply for a rebate of 50 cents a barrel, but the price differential is still too high, said the minister.

Light and medium crude oil from Canada is affected to a lesser extent because the price differential is only about 50 cents, he added.

Struggle Looms To Get Roberts

By ERNIE FEDORUK
Times Staff

Victoria Cougars may be in for a long and difficult struggle in their attempts to clear defenceman Gord Roberts for play in the Western Canada Hockey League.

And an angry Pat Ginnell, Victoria's manager-coach, doesn't anticipate any support from a few of his league rivals because of the remarks of Regina's Del Wilson.

Wilson, chairman of the board of governors last season, was quoted Tuesday as saying "there is no way" Roberts will be allowed to play in the WCHL without an approved transfer from the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

The American-born Roberts last year played for Detroit in the Southern Ontario Junior League. Because the Detroit team is affiliated with the Ontario Hockey Association, the 17-year-old requires an east-to-west transfer to play for the Cougars.

Sudbury Wolves of the Ontario Major Junior League drafted Roberts. Although Roberts insists he will never play for Sudbury, it was the Wolves' protest to the CAHA that resulted in the declaration that the defenceman is ineligible to play for the Cougars.

Wilson, in Victoria with Regina Pats for their games here Sunday and Tuesday, said the WCHL supported the CAHA for one reason:

"It took our league four years to get together with the Ontario and Quebec leagues. We're not going to jeopardize that relationship because of one player.

"If Ontario waives its claim on Roberts, then we'll approve of Roberts playing for Victoria."

Ginnell was especially piqued at Wilson's reply when asked to comment about the threat of legal action by Victoria or the player.

Wilson was quoted as saying the WCHL will uphold the suspension "despite any order from any court."

At the moment, Ginnell is exploring all avenues and doesn't discount the possibility of having Roberts cleared at the weekend.

The OHA will meet in Toronto Saturday to make its decision on the Roberts' case.

Thorburn: The Kid Comes Home—As Champ

A couple of years ago there was the story here about the kid and the champ. The kid was Cliff Thorburn, Victoria raised and a dropout from Oak Bay High School at age 16 because he would rather play pool. The champ was John Spencer, from England, who had come to Canada for an exhibition snooker series. And sure enough, gentleman John eventually defeated the kid, Thorburn, in a snooker match.

So experience is the great equalizer and often the difference between winning and losing. And, as the kid said afterwards: "He (Spencer) was wearing a suit, vest, tie, cuffs, the whole bit. He had class. It looked professional."

CLIFF THORBURN

At that time, too, Thorburn, who was just approaching national rating, also expressed the wish that his goal in life would be the World snooker championship; and the North American championship, which was upcoming, might be the push he needed to help him over the top.

So time marched on, and the kid came home again on Wednesday. And Thorburn, he once described himself as "a skinny 6' 1", 155-pounder," is still slim, his face just beginning to crack and fade, and he now wears the vest, the high collar, the tie, the cuffs, the whole bit; and if he hasn't crossed the threshold of world greatness, he's standing on the doorstep, waiting to get in.

Thorburn Wednesday laid his jacket on the settee and his cue on the table at the Keith Olson home on Beach Drive, prowled the table, smoking, sipping a cool drink, but always relaxed and obliging for the media group invited to meet the Canadian champion.

The Best Since Chenier

It was a pleasant homecoming even if Thorburn is nearly always listed as "from Vancouver" while his parents reside here, and hopefully another big step in the long and sometimes disjointed campaign to make something profitable of this complex and absorbing game.

Because here is a Victorian, who, it might be said, is almost there. Two years ago he competed in the World Open in England for the first time, and last year he did likewise and reached the final eight. This is no mean feat, and, at that time, Thorburn was ranked No. 10 in the universe.

So the next time out, in the world this spring, he blew his cover, lost his second match, and was dropped to 16th. "It was no secret," he said. "I'd just as soon forget it," he added.

Since then, of course, he's made a shot or two, has won the last three tournaments in which he has been entered, has taken the Australian championship and then returned home to win the Canadian title and a Toronto event.

Now he's simply the best Canadian snooker player since former Victorian George Chenier, once his idol and a member of Canada's Hall of Fame.

Still, there's a little more to be said for this year's Australian title, won by Thorburn. Six of the world's top eight players were there, and he beat them all. And insofar as money winnings are concerned, "in snooker, you have to win," he said candidly. But just for the record the Aussie title was worth $4,000 the Canadian $1,500, and protracted for the future, well . . .

"I think if I did everything right," he explained — "I do have sponsorships such as with the 'Mr. Billiards Company' — I think I could make between $30,000 and $50,000 a year."

Snooker's Grand Prix

And if the game is on the upswing, particularly in Britain, "there's also going to be a Grand Prix," he said, "starting in 1975. The sites are England, Australia, South Africa, Singapore, of all places; and Canada, but where in Canada, I don't know yet."

So it's been a long haul and now Cliff, who is all of 26, is making a buck or two. In Australia he commands about $230 for an exhibition — the game, lecture, trick shots, the whole thing; in Canada, a little less; and simply by winning the Canadian he gets preferred treatment like travel expenses, etc. In Toronto, too, the man he beat was Dennis Taylor of Blackburn whom he described, in all fairness, as "a fellow like me, still struggling."

Next for Thorburn is the World Open in London on Nov. 17, London again for the "Pot Black" TV series, on Dec. 27 and 28, and then the World in Australia in April.

Meanwhile, he made a few balls and missed the odd shot on the Olson table. Then someone asked about perfect games — a 147 break. And it seems Thorburn may be superior there. Because, according to available information, only 25 perfect games have ever been shot in official competition, and he is the owner of six, a record which is considered very good.

How good? Victorians will be able to judge for themselves Sunday at the McLaurin building at UVic when Thorburn will take off his jacket and lay down his cue on the table in the College academy for an exhibition.

And he does deserve the recognition he should get.

Tie Not Good Enough

By The Canadian Press

It seems that Billy Reay, veteran coach of Chicago Black Hawks, is not an easy man to satisfy.

Sunday night, after the Hawks completed a 19-goal outburst in weekend games against Toronto Maple Leafs and St. Louis Blues, Reay said he was worried about his next game.

The next game was Wednesday night at the Montreal Forum against the Canadiens and the Black Hawks came from behind to tie Montreal 4-4, one of three ties in four National Hockey League games.

In other action, New York Islanders and New York Rangers played to a 1-1 tie, Atlanta Flames downed California Seals 4-1 and Boston Bruins and Minnesota North Stars played to a 3-3 tie.

The tie gave Chicago a one-point lead atop the Division II standings, but Reay still was not satisfied.

"I would have sooner it stayed at 0-0," Reay said. "I think four goals on the road is too much to have scored against you."

Montreal took a 2-0 lead in the first period on goals by defenceman Larry Robinson and Guy Lapointe. The Hawks rallied on goals by Dennis Hull and Germain Gagnon before Guy Lafleur put Montreal ahead 3-2 with his first of two goals at 17:55.

Cliff Koroll tied the score for Chicago at 4:45 before Lafleur got his second of the night with four minutes to go in the middle period. Koroll then popped his second of the game and fourth of the year with 1:44 gone in the third.

Meanwhile Lou Angotti resigned as coach of St. Louis Blues job last Feb. 15 replac- Blues Wednesday. Angotti took over the Blues job last Feb. 15 5replacing Jean-Guy Talbot and there have been reports he was having some difficulty getting along with some players.

Angotti plans to pursue his playing career but it will not be with St. Louis as he has requested an unconditional release.

Lynn Patrick, former coach and now senior vice-president of the Blues, will coach the club tonight when it meets the Kings in Los Angeles. Patrick will continue to coach until a replacement for Angotti is named.

Stevens Win in Overtime

Bob McFarland sank a basket with only 15 seconds remaining in overtime Wednesday night to give Stevens Interiors a 73-71 victory over Victoria Junior Men at Victoria High School in a battle between winless Victoria Senior "B" Men's Basketball League squads.

In the only other game, Hotel Douglas climbed into a tie for second place with James Bay Athletic Association by defeating the latter club, 66-56.

Juniors, who trailed 33-31 at half time, bounced back to tie things up 63-63 in the final minute of regulation time on a basket by Thad Newman.

Doug Irving topped Junior scorers with 18 points.

John Lauvaas scored 20 points, all from the floor, to pace Hotel Douglas while Harry Hunter led JBAA with 19 points.

Late Counter By Bergman Clips Gulls

Les Bergman's second goal of the game, with only 54 seconds left in the final period, gave Stockers North Americans a 6-5 nod over James Bay Athletic Association Gulls in a South Island Big Six Hockey League game Wednesday at Juan de Fuca Arena.

The goal capped a comeback effort by Stockers, who had started the third period with a 4-2 advantage. Gulls rallied for three goals within two minutes and 10 seconds early in the frame to take a 5-4 lead but then apparently ran out of steam.

Rugs Pritchard hammered in the tying goal at 6:04 and set the stage for Bergman. Other Stocker marksmen were Ron MacNeil (2) and Ted Cobiello.

Perry Head led Gulls with two goals and singles were added by Cliff Wiest, Doug Harding and Dennis Head.

Reg Wonnenberg had an outstanding game in the James Bay goal, making 45 saves, including 18 in the opening period. Ken Olson of Stockers only had to make 24 stops.

Toros Finally Bite the Dust

By The Canadian Press

Toronto Toros' six-game winning streak — the only unbeaten record in the World Hockey Association — came to an end Wednesday night with New England Whalers beating the Toros 5-2.

In other games, Vancouver Blazers whipped Edmonton Oilers 8-6, Houston Aeros blanked Chicago Cougars 1-0, Winnipeg Jets beat Phoenix Roadrunners 6-5 in overtime and the Minnesota at Cleveland game was postponed by further difficulties with ice-making equipment at Cleveland's new Coliseum.

New England, beaten 6-2 by Toronto in its season opener two weeks ago, worked hard for its win over the Toros who were playing their first game of the season on the road.

The Whalers outshot Toronto 42-28 in the game and 17-10 in the third period when New England came up with a three-goal rally by Tom Webster, Thommy Abrahamsson and Mike Byers.

At Winnipeg, Bobby Hull scored his third goal of the game at 9:19 of the 10-minute overtime period to give the Jets their fourth win in five starts.

Anders Hedberg and Mike Ford scored for Winnipeg in the last half of the third period to force the overtime.

Rusty Patenaude and Ken Baird each scored twice for Edmonton which twice had a two-goal lead. It was only the Oilers' second game of the season and they have yet to gain a point.

At Cleveland, the ice in the new $28 million Colseum wouldn't harden properly and the Crusaders had to abandon their second attempt to open at the new facility.

Toronto's scheduled game at Cleveland on Sunday was also postponed by an equipment failure.

AERIAL PITFALLS AVOIDED

By The Associated Press

College football coaches who build winners with ground attacks are fond of saying that there are three things that can happen when you throw the ball — incompletions, interceptions and being sacked, and none of them are good.

But it was the aerial route Wednesday that the winners in the World Football League took.

Southern California Sun defeated Charlotte Hornets 34-25, Birmingham Americans beat Florida Blazers 26-18, Philadelphia Bell topped Chicago Fire 37-31 and Memphis Southmen clinced a tie for a division title by edging the Hawaiians 33-31.

Rookie quarterback Tony Adams riddled the Hornets' defensive secondary with 13 completions out of 24 attempts for 234 yards.

At Birmingham, Ala., the Americans' Al Jenkins caught five passes for 168 yards to lead the victory over Florida. Jim "King" Corcoran collaborated with Willie Franklin on a 90-yard pass play in the final two minutes to set up Philadelphia's winning score.

John Huarte passed for three touchdowns in pacing Memphis to its victory over the Hawaiians before a crowd of 20,544 in Honolulu — the largest of the season for Hawaii.

$10 Million Just a Start

KINSHASA, Zaire (AP) — Muhammad Ali's going price is rising — $10 million for starters and, would you believe, $20 million?—as indications grew that the heavyweight boxing championship may become a world-girdling road show.

"Rio de Janeiro is a hotly talked spot for the next big fight and, believe it or not, we've even heard suggestions of Tibet," said Don King, mastermind behind Wednesday's spectacular here in the heart of Africa.

"There are many foreign possibilities as well as New York's Garden and the Houston Astrodome. The best matchup now would be a third fight between Ali and Joe Frazier."

Ali became the catalyst in all future fight negotiations when he knocked out George Foreman and regained the title in a bout in the pre-dawn hours at the Stadium of the 20th of May.

Despite its unique 4 a.m. local starting time, the bout apparently was a financial success. Closed circuit ticket sales were reported heavy in the United States and England with a $30 million gross anticipated.

The victorious Ali, who regained the crown taken from him because of his resistance to the military draft in 1967, was up and moving a few hours after his sensational victory.

He gave a series of nonstop news conferences, starting at N'Sele and climaxing at the Inter-Continental Hotel, in which he teased inquisitors over his original vow to retire.

"Why should I retire now?" he asked. "I am the champion again. I want to enjoy it. I want to travel the world and let all the people see the greatest fighter who ever lived."

Ali said he already had one offer of a flat $10 million guarantee.

"The man had an English accent," Ali said of the phone conversation.

"Who you think I should fight?" he asked. "Frazier, Foreman again. What have I got to prove? Does anybody believe that Frazier can beat me the way I whipped that awkward amateur Foreman?

"I punished him silly. I punched him into submission. I crucified him. He's a rank amateur. You saw me crumble that man."

Steam Power Motivates Kings

Times News Services

Norm Johnson found what it takes to motivate his Brandon Wheat Kings on the road.

A little steam.

As a player in the old professional Western League, Johnson was a centre who relied on intelligence and ability instead of fire. As Brandon's coach in the Western Canada Hockey League, he isn't above letting off some steam.

He did it Tuesday as the Wheat Kings lost their third straight road game, 6-4, to the Oil Kings in Edmonton. After the Wheat Kings drew their 16th penalty, Johnson reportedly threw a hockey stick at referee Darryl Haverlock.

Their actions may have motivated the rest of the Wheat Kings. Brandon ended its losing streak Wednesday by defeating Calgary Centennials, 4-3.

In other games, Kamloops Chiefs edged Regina Pats 6-4 and Lethbridge Broncos defeated Flin Flon Bombers 6-3.

Wednesday's win moved Brandon, in the midst of an eight-game road trip, into a tie for the Eastern Division lead with Saskatoon Blades. Brandon plays in Kamloops Friday night and makes its first appearance in Victoria on Saturday.

Honor Surprises Catfish

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Being selected as the top pitcher in the American League by winning the Cy Young Award hasn't eliminated Jim (Catfish) Hunter's troubles with his boss, Oakland A's owner Charles O. Finley.

Hunter said in an interview after his Cy Young Award selection that Finley "still owes me $50,000 on this year's contract."

Asked about this and the possibility he might claim free agent status, Hunter said that and the salary matter would be discussed at a meeting between his attorneys, Marvin Miller of the baseball players' association and Bowie Kuhn, commissioner of baseball.

"They're going to decide what's going to happen on that," Hunter said.

When Finley was asked about the dispute, he declined comment. "Why ruin a great day for Hunter," he said.

Finley said he was "very proud and happy" for Hunter whom he described as "one of the finest gentlemen in the game."

The 28-year-old pitcher appeared mildly surprised that he won the award over Ferguson Jenkins of Texas Rangers, who received 75 points from a 24-member panel of the Baseball Writers Association of America to 90 for Hunter.

Hunter said he learned of his selection Wednesday afternoon when his wife told him after he returned from a fruitless deer hunt.

"I thought Ferguson Jenkins might get it instead of me," Hunter said. He pointed out that both of them had 25 victories last season and that Oakland had won the World Series.

"His team was not as good; so he had to pitch a little better, maybe," Hunter said.

Hunter agreed that the Cy Young Award was the greatest honor to come to him during his 10-year career in the majors.

"I think when a pitcher comes into baseball the first thing he wants to do is win 20 games, the second is to win a World Series and the third is to win the Cy Young award," he said.

Hunter was the only pitcher named on each of the 24 ballots, and he received 12 first-place votes to 10 for Jenkins of Chatham, Ont.

California Angels' Nolan Ryan came in third with 28 points and one first-place vote. Cleveland's Gaylord Perry got the other first place vote and tied with Luis Tiant of Boston with eight points. Baltimore's Mike Cuellar had six and reliever John Hiller of Detroit Tigers had one.

Last year's AL Cy Young winner was Jim Palmer of Baltimore; who did not receive a single vote this time.

Who Will Own Seattle in NFL?

NEW YORK (AP) — Real estate developer Tom McCloskey, who lost a bid several years ago to purchase Philadelphia Eagles, was awarded the new Tampa franchise at Wednesday's National Football League meetings.

NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle said that Tampa and a Seattle team would begin play in the 1976 season. He said the 26 NFL owners also agreed to add another two teams which could conceivably begin play in 1976.

The owners have not yet selected a buyer for the Seattle franchise, but Roselle said the selection would be made within the next month.

(One Seattle group, headed by Hugh McElhenny, has relinquished its bid for the franchise. The Seattle Kings Football Club recommended the bid of the Seattle Professional Football club, headed by Herman Sarkowsky, be accepted.)

Rozelle said McCloskey is paying $15 million for the franchise, as will the eventual Seattle owners. The commissioner said the price of the other two franchises has not yet been determined.

"The consensus is that 30 teams is the ideal," said Rozelle. It allows for each team in the same division to have almost identical schedules.

English Side Finds Touch With Manipulating Pilot

By The Canadian Press

England delighted new manager Don Revie with a 3-0 win over Czechoslovakia in its opening match in qualifying group one of the European nations' cup of soccer Wednesday night.

And it was two shrewd substitutions by Revie that released a flood of goals after England had been held scoreless for over an hour. He replaced Martin Dobson and Frank Worthington by Dave Thomas and Trevor Booking in the 63rd minute, and the move exposed the flaw in the Czechoslovak defence.

Thomas needed nine minutes of his international debut to spark England to victory. A teed-up free kick by Norman Hunter in the 72nd minute gave him the chance to direct a perfect, tantalizing cross towards goal, where Mike Channon rose to head home from close range.

Wales scored twice in the second half to beat Hungary 2-0.

The Magyars used a four-man back line and a sweeper, but were constantly in trouble against the pace of brilliant Leighton James and the height of John Toshack.

After 57 minutes James pounced on a mistake by sweeper Baliant and slipped the ball to Reece, whose low cross was thumped home by Arfon Griffiths, making his first international appearance on Welsh soil at the age of 32.

In other games, the Republic of Ireland defeated the Soviet Union 3-0; Yugoslavia blanked Norway 2-0, and in exhibition play, Scotland scored a 3-0 win over East Germany.

Power Shows In Hoop Loop

VANCOUVER — Vancouver BuzzBombs and Simon Fraser University both scored one-sided victories in Senior "A" Women's Inter-City Basketball League play here Wednesday.

Buzz-Bombs tripped Vancouver Jonos 72-38 and Simon Fraser slammed University of British Columbia Jayvees, 80-31.

Gail Klaver and Bev Bland scored 20 and 19 points, respectively, to lead the Simon Fraser attack.

Key Games Friday In School Soccer

The four playoff teams are known but only the order of finish remains to be settled as Greater Victoria High School Soccer League teams move to the final matches of the regular season.

The regular schedule winds up Friday with four games.

Greatest interest will hang on games involving Victoria High Tyees and Spectrum. Tyees, holding second by a one-point margin over Spectrum, play league-winning Reynolds while Spectrum faces eighth-place Esquimalt.

Spectrum closed to within one point of second by pulling out a 3-3 draw with Mt. Douglas Rams Wednesday.

A goal by Stu Holroyd with about 11 minutes left in the game salvaged the point for Spectrum. Holroyd was awarded a penalty shot but goalkeeper Terry Davies, a standout, made the stop but couldn't contain the rebound. Holroyd had no trouble banging the rebound into the net.

Dan Hood counted the first two Spectrum goals to tie Victoria's Ron McGovern for the individual scoring lead. Both have 21 goals.

Richard Hunt, Joe Achdinha and Bill Myles scored for Mt. Doug.

BCJHL Hands Out Fines, Suspensions

KELOWNA (CP) — British Columbia Junior Hockey League president Bryan Couling has assessed a number of fines and suspensions following several incidents in recent league games.

Couling fined Bellingham Blazer coach Lawrence Gingras $100 and suspended him for one game after a game in Penticton was called with nearly 10 minutes remaining on Sunday. Bellingham captain Paul Enquist will sit out two games for his actions toward Referee Jim O'Neill during that game.

An altercation at the end of a game in Langley Friday resulted in one-game suspensions to Langley forward Lori Gail and Nanaimo forward Rod Guimont.

Parsons' Goal Beats Spectrum

Esquimalt nipped Spectrum 1-0 Wednesday night in a Greater Victoria High School Hockey League game at Memorial Arena.

Terry Parsons connected with what turned out to be the winning goal around the midway point of the first period. Brock Davies blocked 20 shots in the Esquimalt goal while Eric Dawes made 32 saves for Spectrum.

Aztecs Bought

NEW YORK (AP) — Controlling interest in Los Angeles Aztecs of the North American Soccer League had been purchased by a group of investors headed by John Chaffetz, NASL Commissioner Phil Woosnam announced Wednesday.

SEILING TO CAPS FOR WAIVER PRICE

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Rangers announced the sale Wednesday of veteran defenceman Rod Seiling to the expansion Washington Capitals for the $30,000 waiver price.

Seiling has been used sparingly this season and was informed of the National Hockey League move several hours befor the Rangers' scheduled game Wednesday night against New York Islanders.

He had been a regular since being acquired in a trade with Toronto Maple Leafs in February, 1964.

Seiling was drafted by St. Louis Blues from the Rangers in the 1967 NHL expansion draft but the same day was traded back to New York for Gary Sabourin, Bob Plager, Gord Kannegieser and Tim Ecclestone.

Seiling, 29-year-old native of Elmira, Ont., was benched early this season after deflecting two opposing shots into New York's net in successive games. Fans booed him and he said fans in New York didn't know what they were booing or cheering about. That outburst was followed by his benching.

UN Veto Pressures S. Africa

JOHANNESBURG (AP) — The white-minority South African government is expected to make major changes in its racial policies next year as a result of international pressure, a leading South African newspaper says.

The United States, France and Britain, whose vetoes saved the country from exclusion from the United Nations in a Security Council vote Wednesday, will have special influence, the Johannesburg Star says.

The newspaper, quoting informed sources in Cape Town where parliament is in session, says the vetoes have strengthened the hand of Prime Minister John Vorster to initiate change.

The government and Vorster's ruling Nationalist party have made no official comment on the saving votes of the three Western powers.

"Britain, France and the United States — which now command some extra leverage on us through their rescue act — will want, firstly, to see more evidence of our disengagement from Rhodesia and South-West Africa," the newspaper says in an editorial.

"But more than that, the vital test still remains how we treat our own Africans, blacks coloreds (people of mixed race) and Indians," it adds.

"Nobody, perhaps not even our most vociferous critics, expects us to transform our society overnight. But they do expect urgent and meaningful deeds, as distinct from words, toward dismantling racial government."

In Cape Town, opposition leaders in parliament warned the government must prove quickly the vetoes were justified.

The Security Council voted 10 to 3 Wednesday in favor of throwing South Africa out of the United Nations. The resolution was defeated only because the three Western powers who voted against it are permanent council members, and their negative votes count as vetoes.

Costa Rica and Austria abstained on the vote.

It was the first vote on the specific question of expelling a member country in the 29-year history of the world organization and the first triple veto.

The council president for October, Michel Njine of Cameroon, said South Africa "remains a member of this organization only because of the veto power."

The General Assembly for the last several years has rejected the credentials of South Africa's delegation, but it cannot expel a member without a recommendation from the Security Council. On Sept. 30, the assembly voted 98 to 23 to reject the credentials and took the additional step — by a vote of 125 to 1 — of asking the Security Council to take up South Africa's future in the world organization.

Speeches during the assembly and council debates made clear that the South African government will be under pressure to get it to change its policies.

U.S. Ambassador John Scali said the South African policy of racial segregation, known as apartheid, is evil and ugly. He called on the ruling white minority to end it and create a society of equality.

But Scali said expulsion was an "all-or-nothing policy" that would make it harder than ever to influence the South Africans to change. He said they "should continue to be exposed over and over again to the blunt expressions of the abhorrence of mankind for apartheid."

Vancouver Electors Facing Long But Not Record Ballot

VANCOUVER (CP) — City voters will face a lengthy ballot, but not a record one, in the Nov. 20 civic election.

At the noon deadline Wednesday, 104 candidates had filed for aldermanic, school trustee and parks board seats.

Mayor Art Phillips, 44-year-old investment analyst, will seek re-election for The Electors' Action Movement (TEAM) against three contenders: secondary school-teacher George Puil, 44, of the Non-Partisan Association (NPA); college teacher Brian Campbell, 30, of the New Democratic Party and a late independent entry, artist Vincent Trasov, 27.

Twelve vied for mayor in 1970, and the record year for aldermen was 1972, when 55 person ran.

Trasov provided nomination day excitement in the city clerk's office when he appeared to file wearing a Mr. Peanut costume. He would not comment on his platform but a spokesman said he would be the Peanut Party candidate because "people are used to electing nuts to council."

There are 44 hopefuls for 10 aldermanic seats, 31 candidates for nine school board posts and 25 seeking the seven parks board spots.

Party affiliations will appear on the civic ballot for the first time this year where candidates have requested it. In addition to TEAM, NPA and the NDP, the Committee Of Progressive Electors (COPE), the League for Socialist Action (LSA) and the Federated Anti-Poverty Groups (FAPG) are fielding partial or total slates.

Too Many Dacks—So One Quits

KAMLOOPS (CP) — The possibility of confusion with two Dacks on a ballot caused Heather Dack to abandon her bid for school trustee in the interest of her husband Howard's campaign for re-election as alderman.

"Originally we thought Howard would run unopposed but when another candidate filed just before the deadline it changed the whole thing," she said.

She said she wasn't sure if the complete first names would be on the Nov. 16 ballot or whether it would just show the initial.

U.S. Oil Firms Rebate $1M Of Price Gouge

SEATTLE (AP) — Gasoline and heating oil firms accused of price gouging have made refunds totalling nearly $1 million in Washington, Oregeon, Idaho and Alaska, the United States Federal Energy Administration reported Wednesday.

The FEA said service stations made some $750,000 in refunds by rolling back prices, while heating oil dealers made cash rebates totalling $62,940 and users of other petroleum products refunds totalling $104,000.

A BALANCED DIET FOR CANADIANS

Millions of Canadians suffer from malnutrition, says a major national study, not because of poor or insufficient food but from plain ignorance. More than half of all adult Canadians are too fat, making them prime candidates for heart disease. Auto Claims Pregnant Woman

VANCOUVER (CP) — A 26-year-old pregnant woman was killed Tuesday when she was struck by a car while walking in a crosswalk.

The victim, Rebecca Wallace, was from the Mount Currie Indian Reserve and had been referred to a Vancouver doctor for a Caesarean section delivery by her physician in Pemberton.

The operation was to be done Wednesday.

After the accident she was rushed to the hospital, but doctors were unable to save her or the child.

STRIKERS SEEK PAY

FRASER LAKE (CP) — Striking employees of Endako Mines Ltd. here have submitted the pay claims of 10 workers to the Labor Relations Board as a test case aimed at extracting paycheques stalled behind the union's picket line.

It is the latest attempt by the striking members of Local 17 of the Canadian Association of Industrial, Mechanical and Allied Workers to recover about $152,000 in back pay held up in company offices.

Local union president Tony Haynes said Wednesday the union has submitted a list of 10 employees who have estimated the amount owed them for work performed in an 11-day period prior to the strike at the mine, 100 miles west of Prince George.

A total of 430 employees have had their paycheques held up when the union refused to permit non-union office staff to cross their picket lines.

Haynes said the company has been given eight days in which to counter the claims. If the union can establish the validity of these claims, he said, it is likely the LRB will order the remainder of the money be paid by the company.

The guilty pleas were entered Monday before provincial court judge Harold Mahon who remanded the four to Dec. 6 for a pre-sentence report.

The four are: John Fredrick Phillips, 18-year-old son of Mayor Phillips; Margaret Shirley Berube, 25; Leonard Bruce Clark, 18, and Keith Kevin Slade, 17.

They pleaded guilty to breaking into a store and stealing food and a chain saw valued at approximately $2,000.

KIMBERLEY (CP) — The Association of Commercial and Technical Employees, Local 167, has approved a memorandum of agreement with Cominco Ltd.

Members here voted 82.5 per cent in favor of the agreement, which covers staff workers. Trail and Salmo ACTE locals began voting on the proposed contract Wednesday night. Results were expected today. ACTE and the United Steelworkers of America have been off the job at Cominco operations in the three Kootenay centres since July.

★

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Greater Vancouver Regional Hospital District has decided to press the provincial government for a stronger decision-making role in establishing hospital construction priorities, Mayor Art Phillips said Wednesday.

The GVRD board supported Phillips' motion that it be made the chief client, with the province, in any hospital-building program.

This would replace the independent hospital societies now responsible for construction decisions, Phillips said.

"It's rational that the district which bears so much of the financial burden in the hospital field should, in fact, be responsible for decisions," he said.

Under present hospital subsidy schemes, the provincial government pays 60 per cent of total construction costs while the GVRD pays the remainder.

Phillips said hospitals in Vancouver could be built faster and at a lower cost if the GVRD had the final decision on construction projects.

★

MERRITT (CP) — A 16-year-old Vernon boy will be tried Nov. 27 in connection with a Sept. 3 fire which demolished the Valnicola Hotel here, killing two people.

Put a snowplow on your car

Better traction and easier move-offs

Radial design hugs the road to keep the tread firmly on the surface when cornering or swerving. Lower rolling resistance and deep, biting tread get you moving even in the deepest snow.

Steel belts make it more puncture proof

Better handling and steering control

Better Value

Mountie's Revolver Holstered

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — A young RCMP constable still had his service revolver holstered when he was found bleeding to death beside his patrol car near Cloverdale, March 29, a B.C. Supreme Court jury was told Wednesday.

Charged with murder punishable by death in the shooting of 23-year-old Const. Roger Pierlet are John Miller, 28, of Fort Langley, and John Cockriell, 18, of Powell River.

Const. Mead said he saw a vehicle pulling away from Const. Pierlet's patrol car as he arrived at the scene.

"Then I saw Const. Pierlet lying on the road adjacent to his police car," the witness said.

"His uniform shirt was completely covered with blood. The only reaction I got were that his eyes were half-closed and turned slightly in my direction."

Const. Mead said he called an ambulance and radioed details of the suspect vehicle's direction to police headquarters.

"I returned to Const. Pierlet, removed his tie and covered him as best I could with a storm jacket," said Mead. "Moments later, his breathing stopped and he made a clenched fist with his right hand. His service revolver was in his holster, which was fastened."

Thomas Hart, a part-time radio operator at the RCMP Surrey Detachment, testified that Const. Pierlet had radioed in the licence number of the vehicle he was stopping and had asked for a covering patrol car.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A charge laid under the Combines Investigation Act concerning advertisements alleged to be "untrue, deceptive or misleading" was read in provincial court Wednesday against a company and two men.

Nick Lapshinoff, of 2314 Shelbourne, Gary Ernest Willis, of the Delta area, and Golden Canada Products Ltd. were remanded at the request of defence counsel Dermond Owen-Flood to Nov. 6 for election of trial method.

Lapshinoff and the company are charged with having published four advertisements purported to be "statements of fact but which were untrue, deceptive or misleading" published in Victoria newspapers.

The first, published March 17, 1972, in the Victoria Times, says:

"Ecology-minded sales personnel urgently needed for Golden International Company . . . Willing to take an executive position . . ."

The third, related to Feb. 19, 1973, in the Times, says:

"International manufacturing company required management personnel for B.C. $1,900 per month average, can be accomplished . . ."

And the fourth says that Feb. 20, 1973, they had published an advertisemtnt in the Colonist saying:

"Engineers, managers, business and technical people urgently needed . . . Must be willing to make a change in their profession. Income potential 2-3 times more than you have been able to earn . . ."

Willis and the company are charged with having published Jan. 11, 1972, in the Times and two days later in the Colonist an advertisement saying:

"Western Canada director required, income $2,000-$3,500 per month. Duties: Supervision, management . . ."

Prosecutor Gordon Macdonald said Baillie called the Langford forest ranger station July 28 to report a fire on his property, seven miles from Sooke.

Three ranger officials responded and spent an hour and a half extinguishing the fire, which had begun to spread from Baillie's yard to the bush.

Baillie told the court, "I did burn garbage, but I thought it was all right."

Baillie was also required to pay $63 for putting the fire out.

An 18-year-old man put on probation at Brampton, Ont. for 24 months in September for seven break-ins, was given a six-month jail sentence for two break-ins in Victoria.

Taylor boarded the freighter Ogden Importer, docked at Ogden Point, about Oct. 7 and stole drugs from the hospital room.

He forced open the door to the room with an axe.

He was found with $37 in his pocket and five sets of car keys from vehicles parked on the station lot.

★ ★ ★

Rumsby acted as a "lookout" while another adult and a juvenile entered through a smashed window and stole cigarettes and meat worth more than $200.

★ ★ ★

William Roy Turner, 26, of 1157 Johnson, charged Tuesday with eight counts of burglary and one count of attempted break and entry, was released from custody Wednesday on his own recognizance in the sum of $750.

He was remanded to Nov. 4 without plea.

Brian Howard Millar, 20, of 850 Admirals, was given a suspended sentence and eight months' probation for two counts of uttering bad cheques.

Millar, who earlier pleaded guilty, was also required to pay $222 compensation.

Mine Firm Evicts Striking Miners

TUNGSTEN, N.W.T. (CP) — A spokesman for the International Steelworkers of America said Wednesday he had been informed by Commissioner Stuart Hodgson that the management of the Tungsten Mine will reopen the food store in this company town.

The spokesman said the commissioner had also advised that Canada Tungsten president Fred Hall had agreed to 30-day eviction notices for families living in company housing.

Hall, of Toronto, could not be reached for comment.

All 93 mineworkers at Canada Tungsten Mines Ltd. were dismissed during the weekend after staging their second wildcat strike in five days last week.

Most of the workers were taken by bus Saturday to Watson Lake, Y.T., 185 miles southwest of here. The eight remaining families refused to leave company houses, and were stocked with enough food to last a week and a half.

Brian Shanahan, one of the remaining workers, said Tuesday the company had threatened to call in the RCMP if workers did not leave the company's houses by Oct. 29.

GOOD NEWS ABOUT THE CANADA SAVINGS BONDS YOU NOW OWN!

If you are one of the two million Canadians who already own past series of Canada Savings Bonds here's good news for you. The cash bonus payments announced last May have been increased to produce, from September 1, 1974 to maturity, an average annual yield of 10½%.

Everyone who owns unmatured Canada Savings Bonds, dated on or prior to November 1, 1973, will be entitled to receive these higher cash bonus payments on the dates payable, provided that the bonds have not been cashed in the meantime. Here are further details.

1. When a cash bonus becomes due, simply take your bond to any Bank or authorized Trust or Loan Company and Caisse Populaire and you will get your bonus immediately.
2. The cash bonus payments are in addition to all the other outstanding features of your Canada Savings Bonds. Bondholders who are taking advantage of compound interest privileges may continue to do so and will continue to be paid compound interest in the amounts specified at the time of issue of each series.
3. For tax purposes, the Government of Canada proposes to permit taxpayers to treat cash bonus payments either as interest income or capital gains. As a result, if holders include such interest under the proposed $1,000 deduction for interest income, the bonus payments will become exempt from tax. Alternatively the holder may find it to his advantage to include the bonus under the favourable tax treatment accorded to capital gains.

Uses Eyed For Old Firehall

Saanich's lands, planning and housing committee met in camera Tuesday to discuss whether the old firehall on Shelbourne should be sold.

Before going into closed session, however, lands commissioner Frank Harris told the committee the Greater Victoria Association for the Mentally Retarded had intimated it is interested in obtaining the property.

Harris said the association is interested in establishing a sheltered workshop for retarded adults.

Harris said application had also been received for the firehall to be leased as a day-care centre and as a social centre for an organization interested in French culture.

Recreation manager Bill Young suggested the firehall could be used as a drop-in centre for senior citizens but aldermen, led by Ald. Sandy Noel, said there is a limit to what taxpayers could be asked in supporting deficit operations.

Ald. John McDonald noted that if a second library branch was built at the corner of McKenzie and Cedar Hill, proceeds from the sale of the firehall could help buffer the cost.

United Way Reaches 31% Mark

With the United Way campaign now in its sixth week, local fund-raisers have collected $216,500 or 31 per cent of their goal.

Door knocking began Oct. 15 and many of the areas are now covered.

"We're getting good support from outlying areas, especially Sooke, View Royal, Sidney and North Saanich," said United Way spokesman Hugh Creighton today.

"One outstanding contribution we've had came from the employees of Maplewood Poultry Processors in Victoria who raised $1,106 among themselves," said Creighton.

Campaign chairman Bob Ostler is "cautiously optimistic" United Way will reach its $698,000 goal this year.

Just Another Complaint

A complaint against ICBC display advertising lodged last week by the Victoria Chamber of Commerre will be "processed just like any other complaint", Consumer Services director Michael Hanson said Tuesday.

But the chamber's challenge has been described as "nonsense and cheap politics" by Transport Minister Robert Strachan.

The chamber registered a protest claiming the ad contravenes the provincial Trade Practices Act because it does not mention any possible subsidies for Greater Victoria drivers paid from a gasoline tax.

ICBC will be able to apply up to 10 cents a gallon from the provincial gasoline tax on next year's Autoplan premiums to provide a more equalized rate structure.

Strachan, however, denied that the ads are misleading the public.

In making the complaint, chamber manager Brian Small said the ad, which says drivers will pay less for Autoplan coverage in 1975, failed to indicate the "total cost" of insurance.

Small said a person who drives 10,000 miles next year, using about 1,000 gallons of gas, would be paying an extra $100 to Autoplan because of the 10-cent-a-gallon gasoline subsidy.

Duncan IWA Executive Returned

Despite criticism by rank and file membership regarding its policies, executive of the IWA Duncan local was returned by acclamation at the union's annual meeting.

Fernie Viala, an executive member for 10 years and president for the last two, was re-elected for another two-year term along with his table officers of Local 1-80 International Woodworkers of America.

Before the election, the union leadership had been under fire from a group seeking stronger policies, but no opposing candidates were nominated. It was the first election by acclamation for many years in the Duncan local, which has had a history of vigorous campaigns.

Apricot Pit Plant Sweetened

A $25,000 loan to Quantum Resources Ltd. in the Okanagan valley will be used to process apricot pits, Economic Development Minister Gary Lauk announced Tuesday.

The new industry making use of an agricultural waste product is the only operation of its kind in Canada and will compete with similar processing of walnut shells from California.

The waste can be used to process an ingredient of vinyl floor covering. There are two full-time employees and additional manpower will be added on a seasonal basis at Quantum.

Equipment purchasing and working capital to get production started will be financed by the loan.

The Far Side of Britain —As Real As the Other

In the interests of our current economy kick, induced by my wife's seasonal panic at the approach of Christmas and certain bankruptcy, she has suggested discreetly that I might drop one or two of the magazine subscriptions to which I'm addicted.

The interesting thing to me is the fact that of the eight to which I subscribe the one I could least do without is a monthly publication that totally avoids reality, gives me a completely slanted picture of its subject and fills me with a restlessness that, for at least one day a month, makes me unfit for anything more productive that curling up with it and a box of bon bons. I could save a yearly $9.20 by cancelling, but I won't.

Not to put too fine a point on it, I'm in love with "In Britain" which gives me a totally idealized, completely distorted picture of what's going on in those precious islands — gives me, in fact, just exactly the picture I seem to crave.

The Britain of "In Britain" is a place of rustic charm and country pubs and nature pilgrimages on the Norfolk Broads and rambling accounts of delights to be found in the more remote counties (last month's was a journey through Kirkcudbrightshire in the west of Scotland, really gorgeous country) and undiscovered eating places in Soho and Chelsea and landscapes by John Constable as he saw Salisbury, Suffolk and Hampstead and as it is today (damn near identical) and stories and features devoted entirely to the lovely side of life in what we used to call The Old Country.

There is never, ever, a word about strikes or the national punishment of galloping inflation or political uncertainties or the shortage of housing or the problems of immigration, as trumpeted by Enoch Powell, or the lopsided balance of payments or any of Britain's current agonies.

Instead, "In Britain" dotes on the subject of British humor (there's a wonderful cartoon, by the way, showing the surgeon with a unicycle in his hand, climbing a ladder to a tight-rope slung across the operating table and saying to the patient, "I won't hide the truth from you, Mr. Clark. This is going to be an incredibly difficult operation,") and inconsequentials like the gypsy gathering in Westmoreland or the plowing matches in the southern counties or the long history of the Savoy Hotel.

J. B. Priestley, in a handsome new book called "The English," writes that "various contradictions and inconsistencies have left many foreign observers bewildered, and have at times even baffled the English themselves." My favorite of all magazines certainly does its level best to keep this confusion going.

The fact is, of course, that Britain stands alone as a completely schizophrenic country is which tradition and iconoclasm seem somehow to live side by side in harmony. No one man could begin to cover the diary of events that are listed each month, most of them deeply rooted in the past, yet if you pick up any newspaper you will see the continuing story of turmoil and ferment. As Priestley says, it is bewildering, but it is a country in which pageantry and heritage and a deep, calm sense of the past are just as available as momentous change. I suppose that is why I love it so.

This schizophrenia is something I discovered for myself in the years that I was a correspondent there, the years, in fact, in which I came to adopt "In Britain" as my favorite magazine. During the week-days almost all of my research and writing had to do with political or economic travails, all more or less hooked to the idea that Britain was slipping, with a giggle, into the North Sea. Yet every Saturday and Sunday my family and I, the latest copies of "In Britain" in our mitts, went on voyages of discovery that affirmed the fact that, far from sinking, there's no more orderly or solid country in the world.

Once, in a bookshop in Charing Cross Road, I purchased a small, ancient volume called "Twenty Country Walks Near London" and, just for a lark, we began to spend our weekends, boarding the green buses at Victoria, to follow the instructions. With only one exception, a huge tract of farmland covered by county housing, we found that not only were the walks still there, but that every style or hedge or oak tree or ha-ha (that's a dry moat, by the way) was exactly as it had been described in the old book. Moreover, each walk ended up at a recommended pub with pork pie and light ale and a coal fire blazing, and these pubs were still there and, so it seemed to us, with the same clientele they'd had when the book was written.

"In Britain," as I say, never gives the harsher news, but it certainly cannot be charged with dishonesty. The things that it chooses to document — the reputation of Savile Row for men's fashions, the continuing taste sensation of fish and chips wrapped in newspaper, a history of Guinness Stout, a dossier of recommended country hotels and so on — are just as real and perhaps more enduring that the beleaguered Britain we read about. Even the current bombings in London will just be an unpleasant echo one day, but the ha has will be there forever.

I mean, it is as simple as this: If you love Britain you'll love "In Britain".

Gov't Sets Office Start

Construction of a $2,165,000 provincial government office building at Blanshard and Burdett will begin in six weeks, Public Works Minister Bill Hartley said today.

Hinting the four-storey building may be used to house either the department of municipal affairs or the department of housing, Hartley said excavation on the site will begin immediately.

Located on provincial government land now used as a parking lot, the building will be adjacent to the Chateau Victoria and the Wilson Inn.

The minister said a $48,800 contract has been awarded to Southwest Contracting Ltd. of Victoria for excavation of the site and the building should be completed in 15 months.

The concrete building will provide 50,000 square feet of office space, "just less than the Belmont building," and can accommodate 160 people.

The building is designed to conform with all building code requirements, including earthquake standards, and is the third in a series of projects which will provide a total of one million square feet of office space.

The minister previously announced a 161,000 square foot addition to the B.C. Hydro building at Pandora and Blanshard, and a two-storey addition to the Provincial Law Courts building.

B.C. Faces Flu, Vaccine Shortage

British Columbia is facing a shortage of flu vaccine, at the same time as public health officials predict the first cases of a new strain will hit the province in November.

There is a world-wide epidemic of the Port Chalmers influenza strain, reported to produce moderately severe flu symptoms.

There is likely to be a shortage of the vaccine, provincial epidemiologist Dr. A. A. Larsen said Wednesday.

An unprecedented international run on the vaccine and limited production by U.S. drug manufacturers are cited as reasons for the shortage.

Larsen said flu vaccines have to be manufactured fresh each spring, before the world-wide impact of a new strain can be assessed, so manufacturers "are reluctant to produce large amounts."

He added one of the three major vaccine manufacturers has diverted supplies to meet an emergency epidemic in South America.

'Shattering Silence' On Ferry Irks Mayor

Mayor Peter Pollen said today his appeal to Victoria's business community to participate in purchasing and operating the Princess Marguerite ferry has met with "an ear-shattering silence".

But moments later at his press conference, Pollen did admit the response from individual businessmen had been "quite good considering the size of the city."

Pollen said his criticisms were really directed at organizations such as the Victoria Chamber of Commerce.

"It's really rather sickening and saddening that organizations like our Flat Earth Society, who scream and wail about the loss of this and that . . . when it really gets down to manning the barricades they are hiding in the basement with the women and children."

The mayor said, however, that the initiative by a group of businessmen, including himself, to acquire the Marguerite and run a regular ferry service between Victoria and Seattle is far from dead.

The substantial down payment already placed with Canadian Pacific would carry the initiative through until the end of this year, when about $500,000 would be needed for the purchase itself and to set up a company to operate the service.

P. G. Hartnell, owner of the Queen Victoria Inn, told the Times today he was considering joining the venture. He has just returned from Europe.

On another matter, Pollen told reporters city council members will go to Vancouver next Thursday to meet members of Vancouver city council and to look at various developments, including the Granville Street Mall and the False Creek plans.

Council will also visit the MacMillan-Bloedel arboretum, in relation to the proposal to establish a similar arboretum in Victoria's old Crystal Garden building.

Pollen also said he has suggested to Police Chief Jack Gregory that perhaps city policemen could be dressed in "a more friendly" type of uniform.

He said he feels the present uniform is "somewhat military", belying the force's conduct as one of the most courteous and helpful police organizations in the country.

"I am not suggesting dungarees and pink shirts," he said, "But in summer, maybe, we could dress them up a little more informally."

Advertising for the price of paper

Bulletin Boards Back As Message Medium

By LIZ HUGHES
Times Staff

Also on sale, this year only, a genuine Indian sitar, (slightly used) in good shape and going for a song.

Bulletin boards — purveyors of goods (new, slightly used, well-used and needing work) and services — appear to be coming back into style as a means of getting the message across and are ranked second only to the grapevine in effectiveness.

Laundromats, Camosun, UVic, health food stores and activity centres all offer cork boards where, for the price of a piece of paper, a person can advertise anything from feet and "acupressure" massages to a ride to Berkeley.

But all bulletin boards are not equal. They range from conservative to radical-chic and the "Microwave Oven For Sale" notice in the laundromat in Fairfield is not likely to be found pinned to the bulletin board outside the Sawan Natural Foods store on Yates.

Laundromat boards specialize in practical, for-the-home items — used baby buggies, budgie bird cages, kids' bicycles and used clothing. They also have the best boards in town for getting a babysitter on short notice: "Will babysit, lots of experience, any age, any time, your house or mine. Phone Cathy any time . . ."

University and college bulletin boards seem the best place to get a ride almost anywhere. "I'm going to Mexico. Need help with gas. Leave at your convenience." "Driving East, need company, preferably female. Call Don . . ."

The bulletin board at Sawan Natural Foods and the jumbo one at Open Space on Fort tend to the more imaginative pursuits of life. "Anyone interested in exchanging ideas on astrology or music — also to play the sitar." "Selling earth-bound possessions. Moving to higher state of consciousness . . . Call Larry . . ."

But one particular type of notice is common to all bulletin boards everywhere — the plea for a place to live. The pitch may differ, but the need is the same.

★

'Deliberate Over-Run' on N.I.P.

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

James Bay's tentative project list for spending Neighborhood Improvement Program funds totals at least $1.8 million — but that doesn't mean Victoria West will get only $200,000 of the $2 million officially allocated to the two areas.

This is based on the principle that a major portion of the expenditure — perhaps as much as $800,000 — will be recoverable sooner or later because it will go on land for housing that can be "recycled."

It's also recognizing the common sense of having more items on the area's shopping list than there are funds available, in case certain plans cannot be carried through for various reasons and the cash is under-used.

Priorities for spending already selected by James Bay residents following an intensive survey were listed with relevant rough cost estimates in a presentation Tuesday to an in-camera session of city council's caucus group.

Today the Times learned the major cost factor in the list is involved in land purchases, mainly for various forms of low-cost housing.

Six separate areas of James Bay are being eyed for this purpose, including two fairly substantial parcels on the western side of the community near the old VMD property.

The "recycling" aspect of the program will be the opportunity to assemble this land with N.I.P. funds and later dispose of it for development, either to housing co-operatives or to the provincial government.

Other major proposals in the shopping list include the purchase of the Cathedral School building at 521 Niagara — now used as offices by the department of human resources — for an activity centre for the James Bay New Horizons group of senior citizens; and the establishment of a new community centre for James Bay residents.

An official said the community's suggestions for spending N.I.P. funds generally met with council's approval, but further meetings will be held with representatives of the James Bay Community Association to further refine and confirm the list.

Meanwhile, council as a whole will get its first look at the N.I.P. proposals for Victoria West at its meeting next Tuesday.

Victorians Will Bask At 20 Degrees Celsius

By SUSAN RUTTAN
Times Staff

Next spring, Victorians will be out in their shirtsleeves in 20-degree weather.

They won't be chilly, because 20 degrees Celsius is 68 degrees Fahrenheit.

The weather office at the Victoria International Airport is switching on April 1 to Celsius (formerly Centigrade) measurement and Canadians will get their first big taste of metrication.

Weatherman Allan McQuarrie said Wednesday there will likely be a three-month phasing in during which the office will give temperatures in both Celsius and Fahrenheit.

When we'll just have to adapt the new system, he said.

"I think some people are a little afraid of the change," said McQuarrie.

The federal government is about to start a big information campaign to prepare the public for the change.

Celsius really isn't that hard. Just remember that zero Celsius is 32 degrees Fahrenheit and 100 degrees Celsius is boiling point.

For the rest, multiply the Celsius temperature by nine-fifths and then add 32 for the Fahrenheit temperature.

The switch in weather forecasts will be followed by a gradual change to the metric system in all Canadian measurements.

Tentative conversion date for metric road signs and speedometers is 1977, although the federal Metric Commission has no power to compel a switch to metrication.

A number of local schools are stressing metric measurement in primary grades.

Punishment for Oak Bay?

Is Oak Bay to be punished for questioning the wisdom of using the Highlands to absorb the capital district's future population?

That's the question acting mayor John Goult posed today after learning Victoria Mayor Peter Pollen called Wednesday for a regional plan to be dictated by the province if necessary.

At the same time Pollen called again for amalgamation of Oak Bay and the city, among other moves to ensure survival of regional government in Greater Victoria.

"Either he knows the province has plans he hasn't told us about," said Goult, who is also Oak Bay's director on the regional board, "or he's suffering from a mild attack of paranoia."

Oak Bay has been urging an impact and feasibility study before the Highlands can be rationally earmarked for future residential development, as proposed in the regional plan now before the regional board.

The municipality has also called for ample time to study the plan's implications and debate ammendments before approval. Board chairman Jim Campbell and Pollen have responded by noting the plan has been "in the gestation period" for three years.

Goult said today Pollen "has already won a great victory" because the plan he is so keen on has been approved in principle by the regional board.

"We are now hopefully going to be allowed to debate certain amendments proposed by the municipalities."

Of the amalgamation call, Goult said: "Oak Bay has sinned because it questioned the wisdom of using the Highlands to absorb new population.

"For that reason it seems Oak Bay will have to be amalgamated with the city and everybody in Oak Bay punished."

Goult added: "It's general knowledge that good old Peter (Pollen) is as volatile as a drop of water in a hot frying pan. And unless he knows of some threatened provincial action, his comments can't be taken too seriously."

Sociologist: Be Less Rigid To Cope With Longer Life

WINNIPEG (CP) — A United States sociologist says that North American society must plan for flexibility in individual lives in place of the current rigid segmentation of life stages.

Dr. Helena Lopata, chairman of the sociology department at Loyola University in Chicago, said Canadians and Americans haven't adjusted their life pacing to cope with greater life expectancy.

Speaking to a session on aging at the Winnipeg Centennial Symposium on the Dilemmas of Modern Man, she said it is no longer necessary to cram most major events into a small segment of the individual life span.

The dominant pattern of life has had the period up to 30 years for men as a time of education, occupation choice, marriage, fatherhood and settlement into a home, she said. For women, it was a time for education, finding a husband and withdrawing from society.

For both sexes, the stretch from age 30 to 65 usually is characterized by "rather uneventful and often monotonous stability," Dr. Lopata said, and the years after retirement are filled with difficulties.

Retirement may be traumatic for men who identified closely with their occupation and who still consider themselves healthy, competent and willing to work, she said. For women, who live longer than men, there were the strains of widowhood.

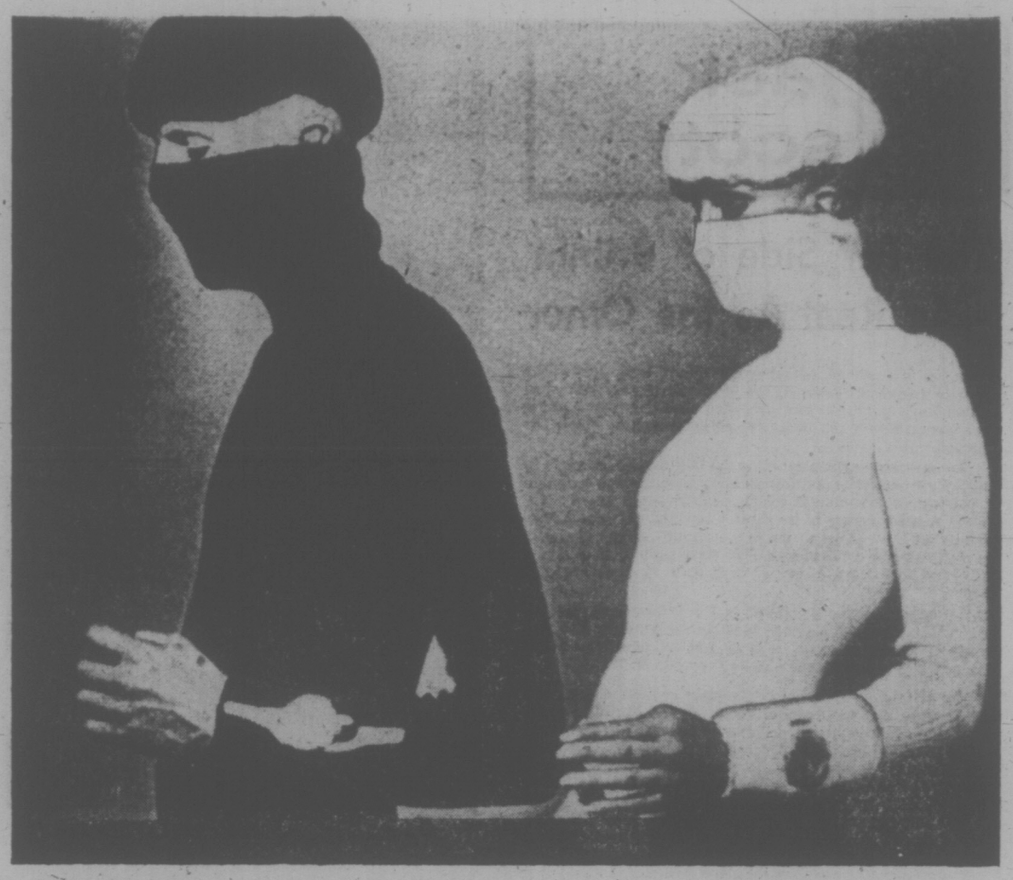
Later, at a news conference, Dr. Lopata said there is no reason why all women in North American society should be pressured to bear children at age 22, for example, when they actually have a long period of child-bearing potential.

Dr. Nathan Shock, chief of the Gerontology Research Centre at Baltimore, told the session the Soviet Union's Institute of Gerontology in Kiev is working on extending the reproductive span of women, but he said there are biological limits. Mothers aged 40 or more were more likely to have children with birth defects.

Dr. Shock said there was sharp rise in the average U.S. life span between 1900 and 1970, but in the 1960s, the average life for white males only increased to 68 years from 67.4, and for white females to 75.6 years from 74.1.

Sir Ferguson Anderson, professor of geriatric medicine at the University of Glasgow, said there should be more education for elderly people to help them cope with retirement, and more part-time employment opportunities for persons aged 60 to 74 years.

He said retraining courses might be offered to persons aged 55 "so that within the same skill or occupation, part-time employment might be made available it desired, for as long as the individual wishes to work."



EVEN THE MOST obvious distinctions between men and women seem to be the target of U.S. designer Rudi Gernreich who, it seems, considers man is man, woman is man, man is woman and clothes are just clothes. His unisex cold-weather outfits are guaranteed to keep their wearers warm and observers guessing.

Painting Is No Afternoon Fling

I am always astounded at television commercials for paint, where at 3:00 in the afternoon the lady of the house slips into a stunning silk pants suit, paints the dining room a smashing shade of mauve, and at 5:30 greets her husband at the door with a smug look and a pitcher full of martinis.

In the first place, she evidently keeps two quarts of mauve paint and a brush in the kitchen cabinet, next to the imported chutney, especially for decorating emergencies such as this. Those of us who are less organized must drive to a paint store, mull over a card featuring seventy-five shades of mauve, and buy a brush. (Of course there are brushes at home. Full of ecru enamel, they are permanently glued into a bowl in the basement that once may or may not have contained turpentine.)

Thus equipped, you hurry home, only to return to the paint store in 10 minutes for plastic drop cloths to cover the furniture. In the meantime the children have come home from school, have opened the can of Mysterious Mauve paint, and are applying it to their fingernails with your mascara brush.

It is now 4:30. In an hour Himself will be home expecting those lousy martinis. Sending the children outside with instructions not to touch the cat until their fingernails dry, you slip into your painting clothes—a pair of orange shorts and pink halter top — and begin feverishly slapping Mysterious Mauve onto the dining room walls.

During the next hour, the telephone rings three times. By the time you have declined a lifetime subscription to the "Hot Rod Digest," a vacuum cleaner demonstration with no obligation, and fifty dollars off on the funeral plot of your choice, the telephone receiver has more Mysterious Mauve on it than the walls do.

At that moment, you hear your husband outside, where he has paused to chat with the children.

"What in heaven's name is that gook on your fingernails? It's the most revolting color I've ever seen!"

Impaired Driving From Pot—Prof.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Marijuana smoking impairs the driving ability of most people, according to a University of B.C. professor.

"Driving under the influence of marijuana should be avoided as much as should driving under the influence of alcohol," said Dr. Harry Klonoff, professor of psychiatry at UBC, in a report.

He reported in the latest issue of Science Magazine on the results of a driving performance study comparing three groups of test subjects — those who smoked a low dose of marijuana, those who had a higher dose and those who smoked dummy cigarettes that smelled and tasted like marijuana.

His conclusion:

"It is evident that the smoking of marijuana by human subjects does have a detrimental effect on their driving skills and performance in a restricted driving area, and that this effect is even greater under normal conditions of driving on city streets."

The test volunteers, 43 men and 21 women, had to negotiate a complicated driving course laid out on a large paved area, and a 16-mile course laid out on city streets. An observer accompanied each test driver and the cars were equipped with dual brakes and, for the city streets, a dual steering wheel.

Klonoff said that when drivers who had smoked marijuana drove on the closed course they sometimes behaved as if they were preoccupied or possibly confused.

Mime Treatment for Disturbed

OTTAWA (CP) — When told to express fear in gestures, a boy may hit someone rather than put his arms up to protect his face. The abnormal gesture told psycho-educationist Pierre Girouard that the child was emotionally disturbed.

On the assumption that the body is the basis for expression in mime and for development of the human personality, Mr. Girouard has developed acting without words as a treatment for emotionally-disturbed children.

Recently he started a week-long mime festival at University of Ottawa with a lecture on mime as therapy, emphasizing that his theory is not complete, but can be helpful. He said he has developed certain hypotheses through 10 years of clinical observation of disturbed children at the Centre d'Orientation in Montreal.

"I was dealing with children aged 6 to 12 who were really over-gifted, in that their IQs ranged from 110 to 150. But they were very much disturbed emotionally, so that they presented symptoms associated with the mentally deficient.

"Using ego-psycho principles in pantomime, I tried to rebuild their personalities so they could adapt their personal lives to the real world around them."

The psycho-educationist, who has none of his audience's inhibitions about wordlessly conveying emotions on stage, said that in self-expression a "complete" person uses body, mind and emotions.

"Some children don't understand the alphabet, but they use their bodies freely to express themselves, so it's up to the psychologist to understand what is being said through gestures."

In the case of the boy who struck someone when told to express fear, a search of his experiences revealed that he was bordering on the psychotic and, when afraid, would hit out as if in anger. It was the only way he knew to express fear.

Mr. Girouard said the children were more enthusiastic about mime than drama, since mime, being wordless, ensured no prompting or forgetting of lines — no mistakes for others to see.

Children reluctant to express personal emotions, or lacking knowledge of the meaning of a given word, can call on experience.

"I asked a boy to play a vagabond, but he didn't know what the word meant. I suggested he think of something sad. The child thought about his divorced parents and started to cry. He had never before cried in front of me."

Mr. Girouard, who learned mime techniques from Canadian mimist Claude St. Denis, said that when a child plays a character, he uses what he knows of himself . . . It is really more of a psycho-gesture than mime.

"Mime is an art, an expression of emotion that instantly communicates. A mimist doesn't let his personal emotion be the meaning of a gesture, but a child using the concept of mime does. A child adapts a proposed character to his own ability of expression and thereby derives a refined perception of reality."

Anti-Gouge Plan Scrapped

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Federal Trade Commission has scrapped a proposal designed to stop the grocery industry from putting less food in packages and selling them for the same price.

Such hidden price increases, typified by the shrinking candy bar or the ever-lighter loaf of bread, may be costing consumers millions of dollars a year.

But FTC chairman Lewis Engman said the agency has been unable to come up with a way to stop the package lightening in a manner that would be meaningfoul to the average shopper.

He said the commission considered but rejected a staff proposal to require food manufacturers to put a label on any package containing less food but selling for the same price as a fuller version once did.

The label would have stated simply that the buyer is now getting less for the same price.

The practical effect of that approach would be for the industry to change package sizes every time the content dropped rather than have to admit to the buyer they were offering the same package with less in it.

Engman said in an interview the FTC is still worried about the problem but thinks the label approach would not be "all that productive in terms of consumer benefit."

He suggested that unit pricing — listing the cost per ounce or other measure of weight—may still be the best way to inform the shopper.

Sheldon Feldman of the FTC's Bureau of Consumer Protection, who helped draw up the label proposal, said the staff advanced the idea because, in its opinion, less food in the same size package for the same price was a case of outright deception that could only be stopped with a label requirement.

"In pure and simple terms," he said, "it's done to disguise a price increase. Most people equate it with candy bars but it doesn't just happen with candy bars. It happens with everything from peanuts to cake mix, and it's probably costing shoppers several million dollars a year."

Tension Remedies Out of Ordinary

NEW YORK (NYT) — A cup of herbal tea, a glass of brandy or a swig of Godfrey's Cordial (a mixture of opium, molasses and sassafrass) were among the popular 19th-century remedies for nervous tension. Today, a tablet or two of Valium (the most popularly prescribed drug) or a pitcher of martinis is the 20th-century passport from the State of Nerves to the Sea of Tranquility.

But not for everyone. Several people with pressure-packed jobs shun the pills and or liquor panacea for their own special method for calming jittery nerves.

Muriel Siebert, the first woman member of the New York Stock Exchange and the head of a securities firm bearing her name, relaxes by turning her back on the ticker tape and gazing out of her 49th-floor window overlooking the East River to "watch the world drift by."

Dr. Arnold Weinberg, the chief of medical services at Cambridge Hospital in Cambridge, Mass., is another visual escapist: he quiets his nerves by staring at nature photographs he took while vacationing in Kenya. The photos, he explained, take his mind off his work by "evoking pleasurable memories of quiet places."

For Tedda Fenichel, the deputy press secretary to Mayor Abraham O. Beame, the way to relieve tension is to go ballooning 2,000 feet above the city.

"It's so peaceful and beautiful up there that you forget that City Hall even exists," said Miss Fenichel, who plays pachinko, a Japanese version of pinball, when a balloon isn't handy.

Doug Henning, the 27-year-old magician starring on Broadway in "The Magic Show," is a yoga enthusiast. He said the Hindu exercises help him calm down after a show (before a show, Henning relaxes by practicing transcendental meditation).

Walking up and down the football field was the way Weeb Ewbank, the former coach of the New York Jets, worked off his pre-game jitters. ("He said he did it to inspect the turf," said a Jets' spokesman, "but we all knew the real reason was to get out of the locker room and spend an hour by himself.")

Martine van Hamel, a principal dancer with American Ballet Theatre, said that stepping up and down in the tiny resin box backstage was her method for easing her nerves before a performance.

Pauline Trigere, the designer, said that she eats "anything in sight—peanuts, cheese, junk food" when she's under stress at the office. (At home, she works off her nervousness by cleaning her well-stocked closets and by rearranging her dresser drawers).

Carol Rinzler, the publisher of Charter House Books, Inc. and the author of "Nobody Said You Had to Eat Off the Floor," keeps a bag of chocolate chips in her desk to nibble on when things get hectic.

Arnold Palmer, the golfer, said he prefers being "a bit keyed up" before a tournament because "the extra adrenalin helps you play better." It also helps you ride better, according to Ron Turcotte, the jockey who rode Secretariat to the Triple Crown. He said pressure and tension gives you a competitive edge.

Women's Year Plans Low Key

elizabeth forbes

Low-key handling of a two-day consultation meeting held recently in Ottawa by the secretary of state to explain details of Canada's programs for International Women's Year (1975) may have created some disappointments.

So says Norie Preston, head of Victoria's Status of Women Action Group, and one of 80 representatives of women's groups invited to attend that meeting.

This attitude, not only in agenda arrangements but in coverage by press and television, coupled with "a bombshell" announcement that, with IWY only three months away, there were plans to change the state department chairperson responsible for the year's program, raised a depressing thought in the minds of every woman present.

It was that "perhaps" the new Secretary of State Hugh Faulkner is not as enthusiastic about IWY as was his predecessor, Gerrard Pelletier, under whom the program was devised and organized.

During the meeting a strongly-worded telegram went to Faulkner, calling upon the federal government to prove the honesty of its commitment to the aspirations of women, as implied in the recent throne speech, by rescinding the proposed staff change.

It was also pointed out that failure to take this action would jeopardize any headway made in government relationships with the voluntary sector.

Susan Findlay, whom it was said would be replaced, chaired the two-day consultation meeting. She is the founder of the women's year program in Canada and it was she who wrote and received for the state department, the $2.5 million budget, recently authorized by the government for IWY projects.

Through her work in the past year she has gained the respect and trust of thousands of Canadian women.

Mrs. Preston says opinions were voiced as to the government's real intent in so mismanaging staff arrangements at this point in the preparations for IWY.

Some delegates were convinced that the down-grading of the program now developed, or a radical change in its direction, would be inevitable, if Susan Findlay is replaced.

Volunteer organizations which have already submitted projects will, as representatives at the meeting see it, undoubtedly suffer, not having the time or staff to revise previous work.

Regarding the budget announced by the state department, Norie Preston explains that grant funds of $505,000 in 1974-75 and $500,000 in 1975-76 have been assigned specifically for IWY projects.

These activities include IWY consultation, seminar series, cultural events, a native women program, a women's rights publication, a young women's program, international travel to conferences for representative Canadian women, promotion, including an animated film, brochures, posters, displays and contingency and program salaries and operating expenses.

However, when the amounts are broken down into regional and national allocations, Mrs. Preston points out they do not amount to "all that much."

Total allocation for the five regions — Atlantic, Quebec, Ontario, Prairies and Pacific (British Columbia and Yukon) from April 1, 1974 to March 31, 1975, was given as $375,000.

Included in that total is $35,000 for group understanding and citizen's rights — approximately $7,000 a region.

Nationally, a sum of $130,000 has been allocated as follows: women's program, $60,000; native women's program, $65,000 and group understanding and citizen's rights, $5,000. This, remember, for the whole of Canada.

"Cartainly there will not be enough money, either nationally or regionally, to fund all the projects being finalized by women's groups," Norie Preston warns.

"This means that groups must revise their thinking, show more resourcefulness and initiative and try and plan for funds of their own to back the many worthwhile ideas they are bringing forth."

Grants budget for the period from April 1, 1975 to March 31, 1976, will be assessed and allocated to regional and national budgets at a later date.

Announcement was made during the consultation meeting that during 1975, the national program will sponsor a series of seminars entitled Interchange 75: A Forum of Action on Women's Issues.

Through these seminars it is hoped to increase the ability of women to participate in all aspects of society, and to encourage those in established institutions to take positive steps to bring the necessary political and institutional change.

PRESTON
. . . grants disappointing

Each seminar will be attended by approximately 30 people from across Canada.

Women selected will be invited because of their special interest, knowledge, and individual involvement with the specific issue of each seminar rather than as representatives of a particular women's group.

Pregnant Staff Have Say

VANCOUVER (CP) — Expectant mothers employed as stewardesses on Canadian airlines will be able to continue working during advanced stages of pregnancy as a result of a decision made public Wednesday by the regional manager of the federal labor standards branch.

Bruce Dodd said the decision was made as a result of his investigation into complaints from three stewardesses.

Pacific Western Airlines employees Gail Anderson and Janet Asselstine of North Vancouver and Transair employee Donna Klemm of Winnipeg said they were laid off without pay because they were pregnant.

Dodd said PWA informed him they have rescinded their previous practice of laying off pregnant employees, a policy based on the airline's agreement with the Canadian Airline Flight Attendants Association. That agreement called for notice of pregnancy and layoff after four months of pregnancy.

The three stewardesses complained their layoffs violated the federal labor code which states a woman cannot be laid off solely because she is pregnant.

Dodd said the labor code allows the individual to decide whether she wants to continue working.

"Some may not be capable after three months while others may be capable up to seven months," he said.

Expectant mothers can take advantage of another section of the labor code which allows them to take leave of absence 11 weeks prior to and six weeks after giving birth and collect unemployment insurance benefits.

Memory-Erasing Drug Tested

WASHINGTON (AP) — Doctors are experimenting with a memory-erasing drug that can rid a surgical patient of unpleasant recollections about the operating room.

Called lorazepam, the drug still is experimental and available only for medical research.

When administered intravenously before surgery, a patient can remain awake in the operating room under a local anesthetic and not remember the experience.

"Anesthesiologists frequently are faced with a situation where they prefer to have patients awake while anesthetized with a regional block technique. However, the patient desires to have no recall of the operating room or even leaving the hospital room," said Dr. David Heisterkamp of the University of Colorado medical centre in Denver.

Heisterkamp and Dr. Peter Cohen, also of the University of Colorado, reported on their research Tuesday during a meeting of the American Society of Anesthesiologists.

The doctor said the drug is under consideration by the United States Food and Drug Administration. If it eventually becomes more widely available, Heisterkamp and Cohen said it might find other applications in medicine where blocking recall of the trauma connected with medical treatment would benefit a patient.

The drug has been available abroad under the trade name Atiben for several years, the doctors said. It is been used largely as a sedative.

The Colorado doctors have studied nearly 100 patients. Their report Tuesday was about results with the first 69.

Patients were given the drug 45 minutes before surgery. Thirty minutes later they were shown a double-size picture of a dollar bill and asked to describe it.

Then they underwent surgery in which they remained awake under a local anesthetic. During surgery the patients were asked if they recalled the dollar bill and again 24 hours later.

A group of control patients not given lorazepam also were shown the dollar bill and asked to recall it.

Those administered the drug at 5-milligram doses had no recall at all. Most of those receiving 3-milligram doses also had no recall.

Control patients had perfect recall, the doctors said.

Still uncertain is what side effects the drug might have. Mild adverse reactions were seen in two patients, the doctors said.

Even if it receives government approval, "this is the type of drug that will be used selectively," Heisterkamp said.

Completing a Pass

DEAR ABBY: I've been dating this real neat guy who keeps telling me that I don't have to worry about his getting me pregnant because he was injured while playing football. Should I believe him?—Nancy.

DEAR NANCY: No. It sounds to me like he's trying to complete a pass. Kick him in the end zone.

DEAR ABBY: Concerning the man who was married for 25 years and wanted his wife to give him one weekend off from his marriage every month: How I wish I were married to him. That's exactly what I want.

I suggested it to my husband once, and he hit the ceiling. Everyone but a wife gets a vacation. I mean a chance to really get away from the same old routine. Why does marriage have to be a prison?

I wish I were younger. I'm 56 — too old to start over, or to go it alone. Besides, I have no special training, so I guess I'll just have to go on as I have, even though my husband and I have little in common except our children.

So in order to be supported, and keep the high regard of our children (now married), I'll continue to allow my husband the intimacies I no longer enjoy. Talk about prostitution!

I honestly think that with all the changes taking place today women will eventually get a break, and have the sexual freedom men have. It's too late for me, but not for my daughters.

You can't help me, Abby. Nobody can. But it would be interesting to know if I'm all alone in my outlook. Or are there other women who feel this way?—Born Too Soon.

DEAR BORN: I'm sure you're not alone. I hear from thousands of women your age who feel trapped in dull, tired marriages, but they ask how to improve those marriages. You didn't ask, so I'll not offer any advice. I can tell you, though, that the answer is not in the "sexual freedom" you wish you had.

DEAR ABBY: My formerly favorite nephew who lives in another state was married last June. I sent him a generous cheque for a wedding gift. I heard nothing from him, but noticed that when the bank sent my cancelled cheques, the above-mentioned cheque was among them.

Isn't it customary for people to write thank-you notes for cheques?

I recall how I laughed when I read in your column that a bride and groom had received a cheque for a wedding gift, and on the back they endorsed it and scribbled, "Thanks."

Not a very proper thank-you, but it was more than I got.—Ticked Off.

UBC Nursing Students Now Being Registered

VANCOUVER (CP) — Students completing the first two years of the new four-year bachelor's degree program in the University of British Columbia's school of nursing can now become registered nurses.

The Registered Nurses' Association of B.C. will allow students who have completed the two years to write examinations which would make them eligible to register with the association.

Dr. Muriel Uprichard, director of UBC's school of nursing, said the earliest date students will be able to write RNABC exams will be in the summer of 1975. The new bachelor's program only went into effect in the fall of 1973.

Dr. Uprichard said the school has received more than 300 applications from registered nurses wanting to enter the third year of the new program.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Forecast for Friday, Nov. 1
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Be wary where money is concerned. Check digits — handwriting — on checks. Overpayments could occur due to carelessness. On positive side, you find quality object you have been seeking. You also learn who is a friend — and otherwise.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Cycle remains such that you make the most of material at hand. Important; new contact could open door to creative endeavors. You get credit for past efforts — views are vindicated and reward is in offing.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): finish rather than begin — find ways of reaching more people. Something occurs behind closed doors that could benefit you. Know it and don't fear the unknown. A whispered suggestion is valid. Do something about following through on it.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Love, self-expression, hearing the sound of your own voice — these are featured. You no longer feel repressed, pushed back or intimidated. You discover that you have allies, friends in high places. Revel in the discovery!

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Accent is on getting the "right people" together to complete a profitable transaction. Don't be shy. Take — insist on — credit. By so doing, you actually will earn respect of professional superior. Another Leo — and an Aquarian — could figure prominently.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Travel, versatility, social events — these fall into your personal pattern. You are more active than usual—but avoid scattering efforts. Restless associates could "get on your nerves." Keep your balance. Good news comes from one who has recently visited one close to you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22): Costs, projections, agreements all figure prominently. You may find pace has slowed. This ultimately works in your favor. Know it and don't push panic button. Aquarius, Leo and Scorpio persons are likely to be in picture.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Communicate with one who shares views, same goal. Differences of opinion should not be taken as signal for opposition. Listen and learn. Someone close to you is trying to impart information of value. Gemini is involved.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Home front dominates. Basic issues require attention. You win through diplomacy. You lose if you attempt to force, push or chide. Taurus, Libra individuals are in picture. You receive compliment on your voice.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Illusion, romance — these are featured. You may not be seeing too clearly where opposite sex is concerned. Face facts as they exist. Your creativity is challenged. Show that you do have style, policy and charm. Refuse to give up something of value for nothing.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Study Capricorn message for valid hint. Be aware of money situation, costs, appraisals, tax loopholes. Build on solid structure. Cancer individual knows plenty of answers. Be willing to ask. By so doing, you gain surprising amount of co-operation. Act accordingly.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): One who was at a distance comes closer — you have a mini-reunion. Sense of humor proves a valuable asset. Relative figures prominently. Best now to finish rather than to initiate project. Aries is involved.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have a dominant personality, a presence. Others are aware when you enter a room. You are unique, creative and many claim you have a way which arouses envy and creates atmosphere of challenge. You are spoiled by opposite sex and have youthful appearance, no matter what your chronological age. November should be your most important month this year. You recently made domestic adjustment — all to the good.

Pure Pleasure Seen

LONDON (UPI) — All the pleasure of sex — without sex.

All the satisfaction of alcohol, gambling and gluttony without drunkeness, bankruptcy or obesity.

For better or worse that's the world psychologists say is within the realm of possibility around the turn of the century.

What this will do to the man-woman relationship and the family that results from it, to the brewers and distillers and food growers and processors, was not discussed by the scientists asked to predict future trends in psychology.

Dr. Mike Smith of the University of Wales Institute of Science and Techonology assembled a panel of 50 experts to suggest the probable developments. Some of their more interesting points were reported in an article in New Scientist.

"Since the 1950s", he said, "We have known that such centres exist deep in the mammalian brain. The American psychologist, Dr. James Olds, managed to implant electrodes into these centres in the brains of rats. He found that the rats would work hard at pressing a lever when the only reward they received was a small electrical impulse to the electrode in their brains.

"When the electricity supply was turned off, the rats quickly lost interest in the lever.

"It is not inconceivable that our knowledge of the anatomy of the human brain and our surgical techniques, will have advanced to a point where a device the size of a portable cassette recorder could deliver carefully controlled electrical impulses to the brain.

"Self-stimulation of pleasure centres could well make sex, alcohol, gambling and eating obsolete as modes of human gratification."

Gallery Head Chosen

He succeeds retired diplomat B. C. Butler as head of the 20-person board of directors.

Elected to complete the gallery board were Mrs. Virginia Gareau, Mrs. Hilda Hale, Mrs. Gloria Whelen, Pat Martin-Bates, Bruce Brown, Foster Isherwood, Don Wagg, Toby Jackaman, Fred Pollard, Jim Mitchell and Jim Lambeth.

Gallery bookkeeping involves the management of four separate funds: National Museums, Trust (including Canada Council grants), Operating (which is the day-to-day housekeeping and salary fund) and L.I.P. capital grant.

The treasurer's report indicated an operating deficit of $26,903 but an over-all credit balance of $66,826.

Both the retiring president and gallery director Richard Simmins stressed the fact that the gallery had entered a new era of reorganization and democratization.

Upon election of the gallery as an associate of the National Museums Corporation, $195,000 had been received for expansion. A further $295,000 will be made available in the coming year for an addition to the building.

"We have come at last to a point where art and things of the spirit are regarded by the government to be as important as highways," said Simmins.

Grants Face Cuts

In line with Human Resources Minister Norman Levi's attempt to trim the department's budget, two grants sought by Victoria community group may be cut back.

Levi has told the department's advisory committee that groups applying for funds will have to do without some "extras."

The cutbacks will affect the Northridge Community Association and Victoria Self-Help Society, if Levi accepts the recommendations.

Northridge applied for a grant of $565 in July to buy supplies such as paper, postage, hall rentals and mineograph and typing equipment.

The board recommended the figure be cut to $290 and that the group investigate the possibility of finding used duplicating and business machines on its own.

Victoria's Self-Help Society also applied for money recently, and the committee recommended in principle to award the money but also suggested a reduction.

BEHIND MASK is a police official, but behind two similar masks Monday were the two men who tried to extort $30,000 from Roger Hameon, manager of the Royal Bank of Canada branch of 1108 Government. City police asked anyone finding either of the masks to call them at 384-4111. One mask was royal blue, the other grey.

STEPPING DOWN CLARIFIED

Butler said after reassessing her increasing responsibilities as mayor, she chose not to contest the regional board seat.

Butler said the two men who are contesting the seat, Ald. Dave Hill and former alderman Donald MacLaurin, both have aldermanic experience and "I feel confident that either of the two candidates ... would have a strong voice both to contribute to and benefit from the region.

Candidate Support Mutually Dropped

A fundamental disagreement on housing policy between the newly-formed Association of Concerned Electors and one of the three candidates it was fielding for the Nov. 16 civic election in Victoria has resulted in a mutually-agreed severance of connections.

Ann Tarasoff, the candidate in question, and a spokesman for A.C.E both said Wednesday the dispute arose over the question of whether the association should support massive housing programs rather than the creation of smaller housing schemes through neighborhood improvement programs.

Mrs. Tarasoff, president of the Capital Region Tenants Association, favored emphasis on large housing projects as the only effective solution to the present housing crisis.

But Mrs. Joan Johnston, A.C.E. chairman, said her group's feelings "just aren't as strong as those of the tenants' association" on the housing question.

The A.C.E. slate is now reduced to two — Kay Lines and John Warren. Other candidates running in Victoria are incumbent aldermen Alf. Hood, Percy Frampton and Sam Bawlf, and Cornelius Babie, Robert Ellis, Murray Glazier, Edward Kop and Margaret Richards.

Hark, Hark Witches Are Out . . .

Witches and warlocks planned to dance and wed, a medium hoped to conjure Harry Houdini and sundry spirits prepared for a night on the town along with millions of trick-or-treaters.

At Salem, Mass., scene of the historic 17th century witch trials and burnings, witches planned a ball tonight at the local national guard armory and invited everyone to attend.

At the stroke of midnight, self-proclaimed warlock James Best, 39, plans to wed his witch bride, Lady Astarta, in Denver. They'll shed their flowing robes and anoint each other with oil, wine and a kiss.

"It's a nude wedding, but then, we conduct all our rituals in the nude," Best said.

The wedding will not be legally recognized, so Best and his bride also plan a legal ceremony.

At Niagra Falls, Ont., a seance was planned for midnight — the anniversary eve of the death of magician-escape artist Harry Houdini, and Anne Fischer, a psychic medium from Albany, N.Y., will attempt to conjure Houdini's spirit.

The ceremony will be held at the Houdini museum, and officials say it will be the "final attempt" to communicate with Houdini. All past efforts have failed.

CON WON'T BE FREED

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — They're opening the San Quentin gates for Ewing Scott, 78, but he won't leave — on principle.

Scott, who has served 17 years for the murder of his socialite wife claims he was innocent and to accept parole would be to admit guilt.

MARTIAN INVASION STILL BELIEVABLE

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — A modern version of Orson Welles' 1938 radio program depicting a fictional invasion from Mars was broadcast on WPRO Wednesday night. Some listeners took the broadcast seriously and were frightened. Others realized it was just a dramatization but were angry.

The Providence Journal-Bulletin said more than 500 persons called the newspaper during the night to ask about the program.

The broadcast, like the one that caused widespread hysteria the day before Halloween 36 years ago, featured voices pretending to be newsmen giving an account of the landing of Martian invaders. It was based on H. G. Wells novel War Of The Worlds.

The Martians "landed" in New Jersey in the 1938 broadcast. In the WPRO production, they were depicted as landing on Rhode Island and Southern Massachusetts.

Police said switchboards were jammed. Some callers asked the best escape route.

WPRO explained before, during and after the broadcast that it was a fictional account only.

Jay Clarke, the station's program manager, who played himself as a newsman who was the last survivor before being killed by the aliens, said the show was a "halloween spoof."

"We sure got a lot of phone calls," a police spokesman said. "I couldn't tell you how many, but they were coming hot and heavy.

"The way they sounded to me, the majority of them sounded like they were really scared," he said.

The Providenee Journal-Bulletin said it received an estimated 500 calls about the broadcast, many from citizens thinking the end was at hand.

The paper quoted Bruce Whitney of East Providence as saying he had been "awakened from a sound sleep. Our neighbors' children are crying and throwing up they're so scared. I'm really upset."

State police also received calls from citizens asking for information. WBSM radio in New Bedford, Mass., said it received at least 15 calls, including one from a lady who said she wanted to reassure her child, but was not sure herself that it was a fictional account.

Lover Who Came In From Cold

LONDON (Reuter) — A British sex therapist described today how he cured a man who could not make love unless his feet were in cold water.

Dr. Robert Chartham said he had been intrigued as to how the man coped.

"It appears he would run cold water into the bath, sit on the edge and his wife would sit on his lap," he said.

"He told me she was getting fed up and could I do something for him.

"Just as he was leaving, I suggested that in the meantime he might like to try filling a plastic bag full of ice cubes and putting it in the bed at his feet.

"A week later he rang to say it had worked marvellously."

Too Busy For His Fiancee

LONDON — Michael Wilson, 29-year-old Welsh fiancee of wealthy spinster Rachel Fitler, flew into London today and said he was so busy on a six-day vacation on the channel island of Guernsey that he hadn't had time to send a postcard to his elderly bride-to-be.

PARIS — Cellist Mstislav Rostropovitch said Wednesday he would not return to the Soviet Union until there was total artistic freedom in his homeland. Rostropovitch and his opera singer wife left the Soviet Union May 26.

MORRISTOWN, N.J. — Rev. Nancy Wittig, one of 11 women ordained last July to the Episcopal ministry, has resigned as a parish curate. She had held the post as a deacon since last August and said her resignation was submitted because the parish leadership did not support her efforts to be recognized as a minister.

CHICAGO — The city agreed Wednesday to settle a police brutality suit by paying a Chicago family $131,000 in a case where a pregnant woman was struck by a policeman and her son was subsequently born with defects. The suit said the boy's mother, Diane Moon, 24, was pregnant when policeman Michael Winfield struck her across the stomach. Winfield was fired in 1969 after another brutality complaint against him.

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Harold Wilson is planning visits soon to Washington and Moscow, Foreign Secretary James Callaghan announced Wednesday.

WASHINGTON — More than one-fourth of those listed as overseas employees of the United States state department actually are Central Intelligence Agency operatives, former state department officer John Marks, co-author of The CIA and the Cult of Intelligence, says.

EDMONTON — A 22-year-old stripper named Debbie became the first Miss Nude Edmonton in what organizer Pierre Cochard promised will be an annual event. The contest was without incident, except for a brief appearance by the city's morality squad which left before the main event began.

DETROIT — A man who suffered burns over 60 per cent of his body in a collision with a gasoline truck has received $1.5 million in an out-of-court settlement. The 31-year-old Wayne County man, whose identity was kept secret under terms of the agreement, suffered the burns in February, 1971, when a gasoline truck toppled on his car on a Detroit-area road.

CHRISTMAS SEALS SEEKING TB FUNDS

In the next few days Christmas seals will be delivered to 640,000 homes in B.C.

Campaign donations go to the B.C. Tuberculosis Society whose target for funds raised this year is $500,000.

The society aims to cut down respiratory diseases by educating the public, constructing medical facilities and funding research projects.

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

When today's deal was played in a major team-of-four championship a few months ago, both South declarers arrived at the same game contract via the identical sequence of bidding. But in the play there came a parting of the ways.

Both sides vulnerable.
North deals.

♠ 7
♥ Q J 10 7 2
♦ K 10 2

WEST
♠ A K 8 3
♥ 8 5 3
♦ J 6 4
♣ J 9 7

EAST
♠ J 10 2
♥ A 9 6 4
♦ Q 7 5
♣ 6 4 3

SOUTH
♠ Q 9 6 5 4
♥ K
♦ A 9 8 3
♣ Q 8 2

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♥	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
2 ♣	Pass	2 NT	Pass
3 NT	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Eight of ♥.

At each table West's opening lead was the eight of hearts, dummy played low, and East won the trick with his ace. At trick two, both East defenders made the same lead, the jack of spades.

When the deal was played the first time, our South declarer covered the jack with the queen. West won this trick with the king, and returned the three of spades to East's 10. East then played his remaining spade, and West couldn't be prevented from making two more spade tricks with his ace and eight. And so declarer lost the first five tricks, to incur a one-trick set.

On the replay of the deal, South did not cover East's jack of spades with his queen (at trick two). With the jack winning, East continued with the 10 of spades. South did cover this lead with the queen, and West won the trick with the king. But South was now home with his contract, since all West could make in spades from here in was his ace. Thus all declarer lost were three spade tricks and one heart.

It is difficult to say which declarer played the hand correctly. If East had the J-x of spades, rather then the J-10, the winning play by declarer would have been to cover the jack with the queen. In this (presumed) set-up, South's nine-spot would now effectively prevent west from cashing more than three spade tricks. In this situation (with East possessing the doubleton J-x), if South did not cover with his queen, the defenders would make four spade tricks.

And so, even in expert games, one is sometimes confronted with a pure guess as to how to play a hand.

FUN WITH FIGURES

By J. A. H. HUNTER

"What did you pay for the oranges?" asked Andy. "I saw Dellers had some at only three for 19 cents."

Beryl smiled. "Yes, I got some of those, and also some others at four for 31 cents," she replied. "Just $1.50 for the lot."

Thanks for an idea to F. C. Asbury, Toronto, Ontario.

(Answer tomorrow).

Yesterday's answer: YOU was 945 (odd).

Jobs Remain in Vegetable Plot

The jobs in the vegetable patch to be done now are sort of leftovers from the earlier part of October. They haven't become urgent, and may be enjoyed in a leisurely way for the weather is the kind we dream about for this season.

First, find out by a shovel test of soil 12 inches deep between plants, whether the soil is damp enough at the roots of your winter vegetables. I know many people who will not water any plant unless the sun takes the temperature above 70 degs. F. Meanwhile the soil below becomes drier each day and the winter cabbages and the rest will not be crisp and tasty. What happens to the ornamental part of the garden will be seen next May and June.

Leeks, parsnips, swiss chard and late lettuce need a good soaking at their roots once weekly when you do the kale, savoy and brussels sprouts. When fall rains take you over you leave out the artificial watering, but the odd sprinkling of rain does not penetrate dry soil.

The new raspberry canes which grew this year made much headway after you cut down the old fruited canes. If they are more than five and a half feet long, you may cut them off at that height. The only reason is to prevent loosening of the shallow roots by wind moving the longer canes. We wait until the raspberry leaves begin falling so as not to encourage more growth.

One of the most exciting of all late fall garden jobs has been the lifting of potatoes. Some years it is as late as middle of November. The exercise of digging into the rich soil and uncovering the fine crop is more than heartwarming, it's body warming too.

Use a digging fork. It does less harm to the tubers if you come up against them. Once you loosen the whole mass where the old potato stems marked the spot, you do well with your hands to uncover and take out the tubers. Damaged ones will not keep, although they are good to eat within a week or so.

Lay the potatoes in a dry airy place out of sunlight for four or five hours to dry the surfaces. After putting them into burlap sacks, store the sacks in a completely dark, cool, dry and airy place. If light reaches the sacks, the potatoes become green tinged and unfit to eat.

Until this week, the Jerusalem artichoke plants were growing and the tuberous roots, too, we hope. Leaves were green. A tiny sunflower opened at the tip of some stems. Now the early morning frosts have browned the leaves. Those near the ground went first; then progressively those higher on the stems as air temperatures also reached the freezing point.

As frost comes to your garden and the same thing happens to your Jerusalem artichokes, you can cut the stems back to ground level, or an inch or two above, and lay them over where the tuberous roots will remain in the ground. Several degrees of frost will thus be excluded from the tubers. They like cold, but not hard frost.

Storage in the cold soil is the ideal way of keeping these valuable winter tubers. Dig them as you need them. If new to you, you will find them a delightful addition to Chinese type cooking for they resemble water chestnuts in texture but have more flavor.

COMMANDOS FREE 15

THE HAGUE (Reuter) — Fifteen huge Dutch marine commandos smashed into the chapel of Scheveningen prison today to capture four armed rebel convicts and free their 15 hostages.

Screaming and firing guns into the air to terrify the convicts, the marines, members of an elite close-combat special group, ended the 105-hour prison siege without bloodshed.

Hague Police Commissioner Kees Peyster said one of the convicts made a move to shoot back but was discouraged when several of the marines, all huge men especially trained in hand-to-hand fighting, fired over his head.

Peyster told a news conference after the 4 a.m. assault that the marines would have killed the convicts, who included a Palestinian guerrilla hijacker, if they had opened fire with the two pistols that had been smuggled to them in prison.

But a senior police officer who asked not to be named told Reuters that the raiding party used a thermal lance to burn through the locks of the chapel door.

Peyster said 32 marines took part in the operation which was all over in 15 minutes. Fifteen men made the first assault while 17 others stormed in as a second wave.

The convicts did not make known their major demand — a plane to fly them out of the country — until Tuesday night.

Van Agt said the decision to free the prisoners by force was taken because the behavior of the convicts, and especially that of Brouwers and another Dutchman, 26-year-old Daan de Nie was becoming close to panic.

Tel Car Dayliner Tangle

Two young men escaped serious injury when their telephone company car tangled with the E & N Railway dayliner at a private crossing north of Chemainus River bridge at 10:15 a.m. today.

Chemainus RCMP sent the pair to hospital in Chemainus for examination, the only apparent injury being to a finger. Their names were not available.

Nearby resident Stanley Hall said it appeared the northbound dayliner caught the right front corner of the B.C. Telephone Co. car on Amos Road crossing, "bounced it around and the trunk swung back and hit the mid part of the dayliner," making the sedan a "tangled mess."

Meal Plan Successful

PARKSVILLE — Meals on Wheels in this community is a thriving business just one year after being set up by the Society of Organized Services.

More than 3,000 meals were prepared and served to people unable to cook their own because of ill health, age or disability.

In addition to the benefit of regular hot meals the program provides outside contact to those unable to leave their homes.

Most But Not All They Want Urged for Landlords by Cragg

The provincial government should give a clear signal to landlords to resume apartment construction when the new rent increase ceiling is announced this session, government adviser Professor John G. Cragg said today.

"Landlords should be given most, but not all, of what they are asking."

Cragg, professor of economics at University of B.C., has presented a one-man report to the cabinet after studying cost increases faced by landlords during the rent increase freeze.

"For example, if the government announces a rent increase ceiling of 14 per cent and inflation continues at its present rate, they will have to raise it to about 18 per cent next year. They would be further ahead to raise it to 17 or 18 per cent this year and get construction going again.

He said a rent control program tends to build up steam that has to be let off as gradually as possible.

"However, a lot of steam has built up in the kettle and it has to be let out."

Cragg said the government showed great courage but not much political sense in getting into the rent control business to begin with.

"I admire them for it but it tends to be a losing proposition from a political standpoint. Unless inflation cools off dramatically, governments that go into rent control are faced with the prospect of being blamed for the large rent increases that follow when the program is phased out.

"My advice to the government is to bite the bullet, explain the reason for the rent increases, and let a lot of steam out of the kettle."

The cabinet is expected to announce the new rent increase ceiling early in the session and will set up a new commission to handle he rent control pragram.

Cragg said the commission's first decision should be to find a way to get out of the rent control business as soon as it can.

Prolonged rent control programs tend to be counter productive, he said.

In about two or three years the government should be completely out of it but retain some standby legislation in the event inflation gets out of hand.

The 8 per cent rent increase ceiling performed a great service to tenants because inflation was leading to very severe increases in some cases but now the government's main problem was to devise some sort of graceful retreat.

Historically, governments tend to move into the rent control business during times of severe inflation and a shortage of accommodation, he said.

Renters benefit briefly but the controls just make the apartment shortage worse because construction comes to a halt. Governments then face two unpleasant choices; either continue the controls or take the blame for the large rent increases that come when controls are phased out.

Cragg said New York city chose to continue the controls and has become the classic example of how not to run a rent control program. The supply of apartment space dwindled there and in some cases landlords closed their buildings, evicted tenants and left the buildings empty, rather than have to pay maintenance costs and collect low rents.

Park Rent Hike

Rents will be hiked $10-$20 a month at Hidden Valley mobile home park as soon as provincial guidelines permit, the 160 tenants have been informed.

The increases represent 13-27 per cent on existing rents which have been static all year.

Dave Caul, secretary of Wagon Train Estates Ltd., operator of the park at Florence Lake, said new rents would be $85 monthly for single-width sites and $95 for double-width pads, probably next year or soon as the current 8 per cent restraint on rent increases is lifted.

In support of the intended move, Caul said the company lost $40,000 on Hidden Valley operation last year and had found it necessary to refinance the property at 15 per cent interest, which adds to the operating burden.

He said the owners look upon the park as their own retirement project and are not too concerned about profit-making at this time but want to cover the additional cost of maintaining their investment.

At present, all developed sites within the 70-acre property are filled, of which 140 have been occupied in the past two years. Half the acreage has been developed, but the remainder is zoned for mobile homes should the company decide to proceed with subdivision, Caul said.

He indicated there is a brisk demand for mobile homes in such a setting, although about 20 homes a year change hands, and at increasing values.

Some owners have sold this year for between $4,000 and $6,000 over their purchase cost, he said. "Why shouldn't they? If they've done a proper job of landscaping and skirting (screening for the building supports), why shouldn't they appreciate like other houses?"

Mobile homes as a source of lower-cost housing are gaining political support in municipalities where there has been a tradition of resistance to prefabricated dwellings.

In the capital region so far, all mobile home parks have been situated in unorganized areas, outside municipal boundaries. The latest of these opened Wednesday on a view site in Sooke overlooking the harbor.

Arctic Crash Cause Sought

Times News Services

EDMONTON — Searchers probed the dark waters of the Arctic today for the 32 bodies of an oil exploration crew killed in a plane crash Wednesday off Melville Island, about 1,000 miles south of the North Pole.

The two survivors of the crash, meanwhile, are unlikely to tell their story of the disaster for at least a couple of days.

A department spokesman says it is "too soon to even suggest anything as the cause" of this crash.

A Royal Canadian Mounted Police official said the "plane went through a thin covering of ice and the majority of it was under water when we arrived."

The survivors were on an ice floe when they were rescued.

A spokesman for Peben Contractors of Edmonton, which is involved in Pan Arctic's exploration tests on Melville Island, said there were "indications the plane split on impact since 12 bodies were found on ice a considerable distance from the point of impact."

Zip-Top Cans Zapped

Today is the last day B.C. wholesalers can sell beer, ale, cider or soft drinks in zip-top cans to B.C. retailers, and retailers have until the end of the year to sell this stock.

By provincial law the zip-top beverage can goes the way of the dodo on Jan. 1.

The provincial government objects to the zip-top because it produces two pieces of litter per can the can and the metal tab, pollution-control branch spokesman George Poole said today.

Also, he said, the fish and wildlife branch has found that certain animals and birds seeing the shiny metal tab pick it up and swallow it.

He said the new zip-top regulation was to be put into effect earlier this year but there were delays to give producers a chance to find a replacement can to the zip-top.

Empty zip-top cans will continue to be refundable for 2 cents each until the end of 1974.

QUEBEC FARMERS BURY CALVES

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hundreds of calves were slaughtered Wednesday as beef and dairy farmers in two more Quebec regions continued the growing protest over low prices paid to provincial beef producers.

In St. Bruno, 120 miles north of Quebec City, about 1,200 farmers slaughtered 600 calves and buried them in a 15-foot deep hole. They knocked the animals unconscious with special pistols and slit their throats before throwing them into the common grave.

Farmers from St. Benoit and St. Eustache, two communities 15 miles north of Montreal, staged a three-mile procession on a nearby highway bearing placards, animal skulls and a hanged calf.

The protests began with two separate incidents last week. Abouty 10 farmers blocked the Trans-Canada Highway near Villeroy, 45 miles south of Quebec City, for about an hour Friday.

Last Sunday about 400 beef producers in Louiseville, 90 miles northeast of Montreal, blocked a highway during a four-hour protest. Other farmers spread manure on the streets and lit a bonfire on the main street where they roasted a calf and a pig.

They then took the carcasses of 10 calves slaughtered earlier to the home of Yvon Piquotte, Liberal national assembly member for Maskinonge, and dropped them on the front steps. Piquotte was not home at the time.

Provincial Agriculture Minister Normand Toupin announced a $2.6-million increase in government subsidies to beef farmers earlier this week. He said the increase, which would work out to 13 cents a pound, would be granted by December or January.

Developer Won't Chop Sequoia

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

Saanich's giant Layritz sequoia will be spared.

George Roberts, developer of the property at 4362 Wilkinson, where the ashes of pioneer nurseryman Richard Layritz are buried under the historic tree, told the Times today his company never planned to remove it.

Roberts, president and one of three shareholders of Layritz Farms Ltd., said his company had bought the property four years ago, hoping to make it into a low-cost housing subdivision.

"We had no thought of sacrificing the beautiful trees to achieve the subdivision," he said.

Layritz planted the tree in 1889. His widow died earlier this month, asking her ashes be buried near her husband's.

Saanich Mayor Ed Lum is heading a campaign to have the tree dededicated but has to receive the co-operation of the property owners to achieve this.

When Mrs. Layritz died the Times carried a story, outlining the drive being made by Saanich council and others to save the tree.

Since then, Roberts said his company has cut the grass and landscaped the area around the tree.

Contacted earlier this month, Roberts had said it would be "quite involved" to try and have the area on which the tree stands set apart.

He explained this was because his company owned [illegible] acres in three parcels, the [illegible] on which the roadside tree stands being eight acres.

Stating the need for mobile home parking space was an urgent one in the Victoria area, Roberts said his company had tried to sell the property to both Saanich and the provincial government for this purpose and failed.

He said the municipality's freeze on sewer development and the provincial government's agricultural land reserve had put "layers of ice" on his company's project.

The company now has the property [illegible] for sale.

This time, however, he was not writing on behalf of Layritz Farms but as controller of Triangle Homes Ltd., which sells mobile homes.

"We have heard that the provincial government is in favor of quality mobile home parks and may even have a few in progress," he wrote. "We ask you therefore, on behalf of the many B.C. manufacturers and dealers and prospective mobile home dwellers to go full speed ahead; develop parks or subdivisions on Vancouver Island for this form of low-cost housing."

The frustration at not being able to sell the Layritz property was apparent in one sentence:

"Individuals with land available for mobile home development," he wrote, "are frustrated at every turn by prejudice, bureaucracy and enough freezing to start the next ice age."

WASHINGTON (WP) — The U.S. government reported Wednesday that an economic indicator it calls Unit Labor Costs rose at an annual rate of 13.9 per cent in the last three [illegible] ing pressure [illegible] further layoffs — or all three — in the months ahead.

Over-all demand and total economic output have declined in the last year. Businessmen have not yet made commensurate cutbacks in their use of labor. Output per man-hour, which economists call productivity, had therefore also declined.

Total compensation per man-hour, however, has been rising.

Unit labor costs have therefore risen even more.

Businessmen are therefore under pressure. A businessman whose unit labor costs go up has only three alternatives: raise prices, reduce profits or lay off some labor.

Labor, however, is hardly to blame for the rising unit labor costs, according to Wednesday's statistics.

While total compensation per man-hour has been rising, it has not been rising as fast as prices.

MEETINGS ON NORTH PLANNED

Public meetings to assess voters' opinions about northern development in the province will be held in a series of communities following the fall sitting of the legislature, the minister without portfolio responsible for northern affairs said Wednesday.

Alf Nunweiler said he wants to acquaint people in the north with the government's development plans.

He criticized statements from four northern mayors who said Premier Barrett's recent trip through the centre of the province was for public relations more than a communication exercise.

The "childish action" by mayors, he said, could jeopardize the relations between his ministry and the federal government, which up to now have been improving.

The province, he added, will not be pressured into commitments or deals concerning northern development.

Union Says CKDA Staff 'Intimidated'

Intimidation by management has brought "three or four" resignations from the Canadian Union of Public Employees broadcast division at radio station CKDA, a union organizer claims.

Six charges have been filed with the Canada Labor Relations Board alleging unfair labor practices, including interference in the formation of a union, intimidation of members and employment discrimination.

Richard Hughes, CUPE broadcast division organizer, said he had received a number of letters of resignation from CKDA staff members who had previously supported the organizing move.

He would not say how many had signed up with the union originally, nor how many are left. But he said the local intends to see the matter through. Capital Broadcasting System Ltd., the station's parent company, has 39 employees.

The hearing of charges is not expected to take place before December.

"We're not going to back down," Hughes said. "The charges have been laid and the proof will be in the pudding when the hearings are held."

He called it a "disturbing pattern" of incidents followed by resignations from the union. "They have obviously been blatantly intimidated by management."

CKDA management had assumed a stance "familiar across the country" in similar organizing attempts by the broadcast union. Hughes said the local station's attitude was close to that of Canadian Association of Broadcasters, which is "strangely disturbed about having unions represent people who work in this industry."

In Vancouver, people fired from radio jobs for union activity find there is a blacklist in the industry, another intimidating factor for Victoria members to consider, Hughes indicated.

At its recent national convention, the CUPE broadcast division denounced the anti-union campaign of the CAB directed toward staffs of CKDA and its sister station CFMS, Vancouver stations CKLG and CFUN and Quebec station CJRB.

A special committee was formed to examine CAB activities and apply pressure to the CLRB and federal labor department "to administer justice" thwarted by an inability to cope with "illegal anti-union activities throughout Canada."

CKDA president Dave Armstrong declined comment on Hughes' remarks but offered to make public the company's reply to the union allegations of unfair labor practices.

The suggestion that management's views are anti-union is a "distortion of this company's position," the letter said. "The employer believes that employees have a right to freely choose whether or not they wish to join a trade union or, to be represented by a trade union without interference or pressure from either the trade union or the company."

Seiner Hits Rock, Goes Down

The Maple Leaf Sea, a 70-foot B.C. Packers seine boat, sank Wednesday after hitting a rock at 6:30 p.m. in Decanso Bay off Gabriola Island.

All five aboard were rescued within minutes by another company boat in the area.

Steve Carpenter of Richmond was skipper.

The $200,000 boat will be salvaged, said B.C. Packers spokesman Don Maine.

ESCAPERS SHOT IN HOLD-UP BID

MONTREAL (CP) — Two of five men who escaped from St. Vincent de Paul penitentiary Oct. 23 were shot by police today at the scene of an attempted robbery. There were conflicting reports about whether one of the men was killed.

Reports from the scene, a Royal Bank branch in the city's northeast end, said Jean-Paul Mercier had been killed. A police lieutenant said later at a nearby hospital that the escapee was still alive but in critical condition.

Two other would-be bandits — one believed to be Richard Blass, who also took part in the St. Vincent de Paul break-out — escaped on foot.

A number of employees and customers were reported injured.

Blass and a fourth escapee Edgar Roussel are wanted for questioning in a double gangland-style slaying in an east-end nightclub Wednesday morning.

At least one of the five is also being sought for armed robbery of two loaded cigarette trucks last week.

"We are following up every lead," a Montreal Urban Community police detective said Wednesday night.

"We are leaving no stones unturned. Blass is a man of violence and is extremely dangerous. We just can't afford to have him on the loose.

He Lost His Job, But Saved His Life

As a result, he lost lost his job — but saved his life.

Berger, 25, had been looking for work in the north to help pay some bills and a contracting firm put his name down with six others, one of them Roy Erickson, a neighbor who lived one block from him.

The plane crashed Wednesday, killing 32 persons.

His wife Mona, 20, said she remembered him saying he had a "weird feeling" he shouldn't go, adding that he had a premonition "the plane is going to crash."

He climbed into his pickup for the drive to the airport. A few minutes later the vehicle lurched toward the ditch. The right rear wheel had rolled off.

It took him about 30 minutes to make repairs and he still could have made the flight, but for some reason he couldn't explain, he headed home.

"I still haven't come up with any answer. Why didn't I catch a ride with my neighbor who was killed?"

Later, when he telephoned the contractor, an official told him he was fired under company policy that anyone who failed to show for a flight could not work for the firm again.

"All they said was 'You've got your life, so count yourself lucky.' "

Riots Shake Saigon

SAIGON (WP) — Widespread violence broke out here this morning and much of the city was closed off by police as large groups of anti-government protesters tried to converge on the downtown area.

In suburban Gia Dinh, thousands of Roman Catholics gathered and hundreds of them charged police barricades. Pitched battles broke out between the demonstrators armed with sticks and the riot police dressed in military uniforms and wielding bamboo shields and iron clubs.

Two police jeeps were burned. More than 30 demonstrators were wounded by 11 a.m., five critically. Helicopters carrying top police and military commanders hovered over the scene.

Acting Archbishop of Saigon Huinh Van Nghi went to the scene and asked officials to lift the barricades to let the people march to the National Assembly building. Officials refused.

Closer to the downtown area 200 Buddhists, including Sen. Vu Van Mau, head of the new Buddhist peace front, clashed with police at another barricade. Mau and others were wounded when police threw stones at them.

Speed Cut Effective Monday

Pat Bay Highway motorists will have to tread lightly on the gas pedal after 9 a.m. Monday.

Highways Minister Graham Lea will erect the first 50 mph speed limit sign then to launch the province's new reduced speed limits program — to be effective when and where signs are posted.

The first sign will appear at Island View and the Pat Bay Highway and a department of highways spokesman said all speed reductions should be made in the area within three weeks.

The new limits will be introduced throughout the rest of the province as signs are manufactured in the department's Langford sign shop and shipped to regional department offices.

Cost of manufacturing and installing the 2,000 signs is estimated at $20,000.

Big Hike Forecast For Beer

OTTAWA (CP) — A poor 1974 barley crop and soaring world demand for malting barley will mean higher beer prices across Canada, the president of a Winnipeg malting company said today.

C. F. Edwards was elaborating in an interview after he and other members of the Brewing and Malting Barley Research Institute had presented a brief to the Senate agriculture committee.

"Because of the generally poor quality of this year's crop and the strong world demand . . . prices and premiums have been at record levels," Edwards told the committee.

Asked later what this would mean to beer-drinkers, he said brewers are faced with "very steep" cost increases, not only for malting barley, but also for other ingredients and for labor.

"They'll likely go to the provinces and ask for higher prices."

William Sisler, managing director of the institute, told the committee the government should watch the situation closely because there is a potential world market for 100 million bushels of Canadian malting barley.

Home Cash Gets Ottawa Priority

Times News Services

OTTAWA — The possibility of federal action to encourage the redirection of capital and labor from "non-essential construction" to such areas as housing was raised by Prime Minister Trudeau following a five-hour meeting here with the 10 provincial premiers.

Several of the premiers had indicated they would take unilateral action to "slow down construction projects in non-essential sectors," he told a news conference.

The federal government, he said, "is also thinking along the same lines and directing itself along the same lines."

Trudeau's comments came as Housing Minister Barnett Danson said major government announcements "within the next few days" could trigger an upswing in Canada's sagging housing market.

He told the Commons he would "welcome any innovative thinking on how to bring down mortgage interest rates without spending still more money."

Efforts are afoot to make more money available at lower interest rates and to expand the Assisted Home Ownership Program, he said.

Finance Minister John Turner said on the premiers' meeting, he thought the private session had afforded an opportunity to explain the federal viewpoint and "the problems of dealing with 10 premiers."

On the suggestion that action should be taken to encourage the transferral of funds and labor from "non-essential construction," Turner said that the issue had been raised by several of the provinces.

Some of the premiers, he said, felt it would be useful to adopt a scheme whereby spending would be concentrated on construction of housing and production-producing plants.

One of the premiers clearly in support of this scheme was Saskatchewan's Allen Blakeney.

He suggested that non-essential construction would include such things as shopping centres and post offices.

Dave Barrett of B.C. also mentioned post offices as an example of the kind of construction which could be postponed in order to re-direct resources to essential areas, such as housing.

Barrett said he thought Ottawa was "on the right track" in its economic policies. He termed the meeting "one of the most productive hearings I've attended and said it was apparent that the participants had done their homework.

Barrett said the provinces were given "a very fair hearing" at the meeting.

Barrett, the first premier to emerge from the afternoon meeting, said Trudeau and Turner listened attentively to all economic policy proposals put forward by the premiers.

The response of the federal leaders was fine, Barrett said, but it was impossible to guess how many ideas put forward by the premiers would be accepted when Turner brings down his budget next month.

Eight other premiers also pronounced themselves pleased with the closed conference.

The 10th, a tight-lipped Premier Peter Lougheed of Alberta, had no comment on the meeting.

Lugheed, who held private talks with Turner and Trudeau after the general meeting, said he had a duty to report to the Alberta legislature, now in session, before commenting publicly.

The Lougheed meeting apparently was devoted to a general discussion of the contentious issue of sharing of petroleum revenues.

600 CALVES BURIED in a pit Wednesday were the bloody contribution of farmers in the St. Bruno region of Quebec to the growing protest over low prices paid Quebec livestock producers. The farmers first used a stun gun on the calves, then slit their throats before dumping them in the pit, which was later filled with earth. Producers say animal buyers have paid only 15 to 40 cents a pound for live veal at fall auctions while it costs 60 cents a pound to raise them. (See story on Page 39.)

NEWS BRIEFS

Man Found Dead, Wife Dies Later

A man and a woman died in an apparent murder-suicide in a house on Livesay Road near Welch this morning.

When police arrived they found a man dead and a woman, believed to be his wife, injured. She died en route to Resthaven Hospital. The couple were in their early 40's and had two small children in school.

BCFP Earnings Down Sharply

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Forest Products Ltd. announced earnings during the third quarter of 1974 of $3.2 million or 41 cents a common share, down sharply from second quarter earnings of $1.17 a share. The reduced earnings were blamed on further deterioration of the lumber and plywood markets and the continuing impact of inflation.

Three Killed In House Fire

VANCOUVER (CP) — Three people were killed in a fire at a rooming house in downtown Vancouver early Thursday. The blaze broke out at about 7 a.m. and quickly engulfed the top floor of the old two-storey building, inhabited primarily by elderly roomers.

Massive Rent Hike Faces PNE Land

City council proposes an annual rent of $900,000 in lieu of taxes. The present lease provides for an annual rent of $1.

Planned 100% Assessment Likely Dumped for '75

A return to the old property assessment and taxation system — abandoned earlier this year — is expected to be recommended to the B.C. legislature when it reconvenes Friday.

The recommendation will come from an all-party committee which has been studying property taxes and completed its meetings Wednesday.

The government is expected to accept the recommendations and present legislation to the house early next week.

A return to the former system would mean that the new Assessment Act, passed at the spring session, would be delayed for at least a year. New assessment rolls being prepared under that act would be held in abeyance.

Those rolls would have had all property assessed at 100 per cent of its actual value.

If the committee recommends returning to the old method, rolls prepared in 1973 for use this year would be used again for 1975. Those rolls have property assessed at 50 per cent or less of its actual value, depending on classification.

A return to the former system would also mean one more year for the Assessment Equalization Act, legislation which prohibits assessment increases of more than 10 per cent on any farm or residential property in any one year.

ANOTHER BARRETT

There'll be more than one Barrett in the legislature when the session resumes Friday. The premier's teenage daughter, Jane, is one of 14 pages who has been brushing up on rules of the house in preparation for the sitting.

Professor John G. Cragg, the man who prepared a one-man report for the B.C. cabinet after studying the rental situation, said today landlords should be given most, but not all, of what they are asking. For Cragg's reasoning on this and other aspects of the rental dilemma, see Page 39.

B.C. SUGAR TAB TO JUMP AGAIN

VANCOUVER (CP) — The price of sugar in British Columbia has jumped $2.50 a hundredweight this week and further increases are expected immediately.

Bill Davies, B.C. Sugar Refining Co. general sales manager, said Wednesday the price has gone to $51 from $48.50, "and it will probably be up again today."

A Canada Safeway spokesman said the company has not yet increased the retail price following the latest wholesale increase.

Safeway now sells a two-pound bag of white sugar for $1.17, a five-pound bag for $2.75, 10 pounds for $5.49, and 25 pounds for $13.55.

"The market is spiralling upwards and the latest flurry of increases is due to reports from eastern Europe, that sugar crops are not going well and that those countries are coming into the world market to buy," said Davies.

Canadian sugar prices, he said, are based on the London, England, market figures, "and at the moment we're $3.60 behind them."

He said the Toronto and Montreal price Wednesday was $54.60 a hundredweight.

Meanwhile in Ontario, George Higgs, former president of the defunct Ontario Sugar Beet Board, said Wednesday that re-establishment of the industry "should be looked upon as vital" to the economy.

"What we are going to pay for sugar in Canada in the future will shock you — it'll simply knock you off your feet," said Higgs, a farmer.

Jeans Makers Blue Over Grants

TORONTO (CP) — Grants totalling more than $2 million to two United States-based manufacturers of blue jeans from the federal and Ontario governments are squeezing Canadian casual pant manufacturers out of business, a member of the Canadian industry said Wednesday.

"We're phasing out our plant because my tax money was used to help our American competitors put us out of business," Richard Sinclair, vice-president of Hamilton Carhartt Manufacturing Ltd., Toronto, said in an interview.

Sinclair said his firm will shut down early next year and he predicted almost all other Canadian manufacturers either are, or soon will be, in the same position.

Morton Shulman (NDP-Toronto High Park) brought the issue to the floor of the legislature Wednesday, calling the situation "a damn scandal."

The federal government announced in August, 1972, an outright grant of $867,000 to Levi Strauss Canada Inc., a subsidiary of Levi Strauss Inc. of San Francisco.

In return, Levi Strauss, the largest manufacturer of garments in the world, promised to build a plant in Cornwall, Ont., now in operation which would employ more than 350 Canadian workers.

The H. D. Lee Co. of Canada Ltd., a subsidiary of H. D. Lee Co., Inc. of Shawnee Mission, Kan., which is a subsidiary of VF Corp. of Reading, Pa., was named recipient of a federal grant May 11 for $1,136,400 to build a plant in North Bay, Ont., now under construction. It will employ 640 persons in addition to the 135 employed now at the Lee plant in Napanee, Ont.

Shulman charged Wednesday that the Ontario government also gave at least $10,000 through the Ontario Development Corp. to a Levi Strauss subsidiary for expansion in Brantford, Ont.

The Brantford plant is known as Great Western Garment Co. of Canada, a branch of an Edmonton-based company wholly owned by Levi Strauss [illegible] jeans [illegible]

"The situation is so absurd that even my own kids wear Lee's and Levi pants," Sinclair said. "They've been

The Far Side of Britain —As Real As the Other

In the interests of our current economy kick, induced by my wife's seasonal panic at the approach of Christmas and certain bankruptcy, she has suggested discreetly that I might drop one or two of the magazine subscriptions to which I'm addicted.

The interesting thing to me is the fact that of the eight to which I subscribe the one I could least do without is a monthly publication that totally avoids reality, gives me a completely slanted picture of its subject and fills me with a restlessness that, for at least oneday a month, makes me unfit for anything more productive that curling up with it and a box of bon bons. I could save a yearly $9.20 by cancelling, but I won't.

Not to put too fine a point on it, I'm in love with "In Britain" which gives me a totally idealized, completely distorted picture of what's going on in those precious islands — gives me, in fact, just exactly the picture I seem to crave.

The Britain of "In Britain" is a place of rustic charm and country pubs and nature pilgrimages on the Norfolk Broads and rambling accounts of delights to be found in the more remote counties (last month's was a journey through Kirkcudbrightshire in the west of Scotland, really gorgeous country) and undiscovered eating places in Soho and Chelsea and landscapes by John Constable as he saw Salisbury, Suffolk and Hampstead and as it is today (damn near identical) and stories and features devoted entirely to the lovely side of life in what we used to call The Old Country.

There is never, ever, a word about strikes or the national punishment of galloping inflation or political uncertainties or the shortage of housing or the problems of immigration, as trumpeted by Enoch Powell, or the lopsided balance of payments or any of Britain's current agonies.

Instead, "In Britain" dotes on the subject of British humor (there's a wonderful cartoon, by the way, showing the surgeon with a unicycle in his hand, climbing a ladder to a tight-rope slung across the operating table and saying to the patient, "I won't hide the truth from you, Mr. Clark. This is going to be an incredibly difficult operation.") and inconsequentials like the gypsy gathering in Westmoreland or the plowing matches in the southern counties or the long history of the Savoy Hotel.

J. B. Priestley, in a handsome new book called "The English," writes that "various contradictions and inconsistencies have left many foreign observers bewildered, and have at times even baffled the English themselves." My favorite of all magazines certainly does its level best to keep this confusion going.

The fact is, of course, that Britain stands alone as a completely schizophrenic country is which tradition and iconoclasm seem somehow to live side by side in harmony. No one man could begin to cover the diary of events that are listed each month, most of them deeply rooted in the past, yet if you pick up any newspaper you will see the continuing story of turmoil and ferment. As Priestley says, it is bewildering, but it is a country in which pageantry and heritage and a deep, calm sense of the past are just as available as momentous change. I suppose that is why I love it so.

This schizophrenia is something I discovered for myself in the years that I was a correspondent there, the years, in fact, in which I came to adopt "In Britain" as my favorite magazine. During the week-days almost all of my research and writing had to do with political or economic travails, all more or less hooked to the idea that Britain was slipping, with a giggle, into the North Sea. Yet every Saturday and Sunday my family and I, the latest copies of "In Britain" in our mitts, went on voyages of discovery that affirmed the fact that, far from sinking, there's no more orderly or solid country in the world.

Once, in a bookshop in Charing Cross Road, I purchased a small, ancient volume called "Twenty Country Walks Near London" and, just for a lark, we began to spend our weekends, boarding the green buses at Victoria, to follow the instructions. With only one exception, a huge tract of farmland covered by county housing, we found that not only were the walks still there, but that every style or hedge or oak tree or ha-ha (that's a dry moat, by the way) was exactly as it had been described in the old book. Moreover, each walk ended up at a recommended pub with pork pie and light ale and a coal fire blazing, and these pubs were still there and, so it seemed to us, with the same clientele they'd had when the book was written.

"In Britain," as I say, never gives the harsher news, but it certainly cannot be charged with dishonesty. The things that it chooses to document — the reputation of Savile Row for men's fashions, the continuing taste sensation of fish and chips wrapped in newspaper, a history of Guinness Stout, a dossier of recommended country hotels and so on — are just as real and perhaps more enduring that the beleaguered Britain we read about. Even the current bombings in London will just be an unpleasant echo one day, but the ha has will be there forever.

I mean, it is as simple as this: If you love Britain you'll love "In Britain".

Gov't Sets Office Start

Construction of a $2,165,000 provincial government office building at Blanshard and Burdett will begin in six weeks, Public Works Minister Bill Hartley said today.

Hinting the four-storey building may be used to house either the department of municipal affairs or the department of housing, Hartley said excavation on the site will begin immediately.

Located on provincial government land now used as a parking lot, the building will be adjacent to the Chateau Victoria and the Wilson Inn.

The minister said $48,800 contract has been awarded to Southwest Contractign Ltd. of Victoria for excavation of the site and the building should be completed in 15 months.

The concrete building will provide 50,000 square feet of office space, "just less than the Belmont building," and can accommodate 160 people.

The building is designed to conform with all building code requirements, including earthquake standards, and is the third in a series of projects which will provide a total of one million square feet of office space.

The minister previously announced a 161,000 square foot addition to the B.C. Hydro building at Pandora and Blanshard, and a two-storey addition to the Provincial Law Courts building.

B.C. Faces Flu, Vaccine Shortage

British Columbia is facing a shortage of flu vaccine, at the same time as public health officials predict the first cases of a new strain will hit the province in November.

There is a world-wide epidemic of the Port Chalmers influenza strain, reported to produce moderately severe flu symptoms.

"There is likely to be a shortage of the vaccine, provincial epidemiologist Dr. A. A. Larsen said Wednesday.

An unprecedented international run on the vaccine and limited production by U.S. drug manufacturers are cited as reasons for the shortage.

Larsen said flu vaccines have to be manufactured fresh each spring, before the world-wide impact of a new strain can be assessed, so manufacturers "are reluctant to produce large amounts."

He added one of the three major vaccine manufacturers has diverted supplies to meet an emergency epidemic in South America.

Ask The Times

Q: What is the best course that would prepare you for the audiovisual field in the United States? A.N.

A: Community colleges in B.C., including Victoria's Camosun College, have various types of communications courses teaching film, photography, radio and television work.

'Shattering Silence' On Ferry Irks Mayor

Mayor Peter Pollen said today his appeal to Victoria's business community to participate in purchasing and operating the Princess Marguerite ferry has met with "an ear-shattering silence".

But moments later at his press conference, Pollen did admit the response from individual businessmen had been "quite good considering the size of the city."

Pollen said his criticisms were really directed at organizations such as the Victoria Chamber of Commerce.

"It's really rather sickening and saddening that organizations like our Flat Earth Society, who scream and wail about the loss of this and that . . . when it really gets down to manning the barricades they are hiding in the basement with the women and children."

The mayor said, however, that the initiative by a group of businessmen, including himself, to acquire the Marguerite and run a regular ferry service between Victoria and Seattle is far from dead.

The substantial down payment already placed with Canadian Pacific would carry the initiative through until the end of this year, when about $500,000 would be needed for the purchase itself and to set up a company to operate the service.

P. G. Hartnell, owner of the Queen Victoria Inn, told the Times today he was considering joining the venture. He has just returned from Europe.

On another matter, Pollen told reporters city council members will go to Vancouver next Thursday to meet members of Vancouver city council and to look at various developments, including the Granville Street Mall and the False Creek development.

Council will also visit the MacMillan-Bloedel arboretum in relation to the proposal to establish a similar arboretum in Victoria's old Crystal Garden building.

Pollen also said he has suggested to Police Chief Jack Gregory that perhaps city policemen could be dressed in "a more friendly" type of uniform.

He said he feels the present uniform is "somewhat military", belying the force's conduct as one of the most courteous and helpful police organizations in the country.

"I am not suggesting dungarees and pink shirts," he said. "But in summer, maybe, we could dress them up a little more informally."

Advertising for the price of paper

Bulletin Boards Back As Message Medium

By LIZ HUGHES
Times Staff

Or how about a "mystically-instructed" kitten, guaranteed paper trained (recycled paper only) — comes in orange and black, just right for Halloween.

Also on sale, this year only, a genuine Indian sitar, (slightly used) in good shape and going for a song.

Bulletin boards — purveyors of goods (new, slightly used, well-used and needing work) and services — appear to be coming back into style as a means of getting the message across and are ranked second only to the grapevine in effectiveness.

Laundromats, Camosun, UVic, health food stores and activity centres all offer cork boards where, for the price of a piece of paper, a person can advertise anything from feet and "acupressure" massages to a ride to Berkeley.

But all bulletin boards are not equal. They range from conservative to radical-chic and the "Microwave Oven For Sale" notice in the laundromat in Fairfield is not likely to be found pinned to the bulletin board outside the Sawan Natural Foods store on Yates.

Laundromat boards specialize in practical, for-the-home items — used baby buggies, budgie bird cages, kids' bicycles and used clothing. They also have the best boards in town for getting a babysitter on short notice: "Will babysit, lots of experience, any age, any time, your house or mine. Phone Cathy any time . . ."

University and college bulletin boards seem the best place to get a ride almost anywhere. "I'm going to Mexico. Need help with gas. Leave at your convenience." "Driving East, need company, preferably female. Call Don . . ."

The bulletin board at Sawan Natural Foods and the jumbo one at Open Space on Fort tend to the more imaginative pursuits of life. "Anyone interested in exchanging ideas on astrology or music — also to play the sitar." "Selling earth-bound possessions. Moving to higher state of consciousness . . . Call Larry . . ."

But one particular type of notice is common to all bulletin boards everywhere — the plea for a place to live. The pitch may differ, but the need is the same.

★

'Deliberate Over-Run' on N.I.P.

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

James Bay's tentative project list for spending Neighborhood Improvement Program funds totals at least $1.8 million — but that doesn't mean Victoria West will get only $200,000 of the $2 million officially allocated to the two areas.

This is based on the principle that a major portion of the expenditure — perhaps as much as $800,000 will be recoverable sooner or later because it will go on land for housing that can be "recycled."

It's also recognizing the common sense of having more items on the areas' shopping list than there are funds available, in case certain plans cannot be carried through for various reasons and the cash is under-used.

Priorities for spending already selected by James Bay residents following an intensive survey were listed with relevant rough cost estimates in a presentation Tuesday to an in-camera session of city council's caucus group.

Today the Times learned the major cost factor in the list is involved in land purchases, mainly for various forms of low-cost housing.

Six separate areas of James Bay are being eyed for this purpose, including two fairly substantial parcels on the western side of the community near the old VMD property.

The "recycling" aspect of the program will be the opportunity to assemble land with N.I.P. funds and later dispose of it for development, either to private operatives or to the provincial government.

Other major proposals in the shopping list include the purchase of the Cathedral School building at 521 Niagara — now used as offices by the department of human resources — for an activity centre for the James Bay New Horizons group of senior citizens; and the establishment of a new community centre for James Bay residents.

An official said the community's suggestions for spending N.I.P. funds generally met with council's approval, but further meetings will be held with representatives of the James Bay Community Association to further refine and confirm the list.

Meanwhile, council as a whole will get its first look at the N.I.P. proposals for Victoria West at its meeting next Tuesday.

Victorians Will Bask At 20 Degrees Celsius

By SUSAN RUTTAN
Times Staff

Next spring, Victorians will be out in their shirtsleeves in 20-degree weather.

They won't be chilly, because 20 degrees Celsius is 68 degrees Fahrenheit.

The weather office at the Victoria International Airport is switching on April 1 to Celsius (formerly Centigrade) measurement and Canadians will get their first big taste of metrication.

Weatherman Allan McQuarrie said Wednesday there will likely be a three-month phasing in during which the office will give temperatures in both Celsius and Fahrenheit.

When we'll just have to adapt the new system, he said.

"I think some people are a little afraid of the change," said McQuarrie.

Celsius really isn't that hard. Just remember that zero Celsius is 32 degrees Fahrenheit and 100 degrees Celsius is boiling point.

For the rest, multiply the Celsius temperature by 9-5 and then add 32 for the Fahrenheit temperature.

The switch in weather forecasts will be followed by a gradual change to the metric system in all Canadian measurements.

ishment for Oak Bay?

...ay to be punished for questioning the wisdom of ...highlands to absorb the capital district's future ...n?

...t's the question acting mayor John Goult posed today ...learning Victoria Mayor Peter Pollen called Wednesday ...a regional plan to be dictated by the province if necessary.

At the same time Pollen called again for amalgamation of Oak Bay and the city, among other moves to ensure survival of regional government in Greater Victoria.

"Either he knows the province has plans he hasn't told us about," said Goult, who is also Oak Bay's director on the regional board, "or he's suffering from a mild attack of paranoia."

Oak Bay has been urging an impact and feasibility study before the Highlands can be rationally earmarked for future residential development, as proposed in the regional plan now before the regional board.

The municipality has also called for ample time to study the plan's implications and debate ammendments before approval. Board chairman Jim Campbell and Pollen have responded by noting the plan has been "in the gestation period" for three years.

Goult said today Pollen "has already won a great victory" because the plan he is so keen on has been approved in principle by the regional board.

"We are now hopefully going to be allowed to debate certain ammendments proposed by the municipalities."

Of the amalgamation call, Goult said: "Oak Bay has sinned because it questioned the wisdom of using the Highlands to absorb new population.

"For that reason it seems Oak Bay will have to be amalgamated with the city and everybody in Oak Bay punished."

Goult added: "It's general knowledge that good old Peter (Pollen) is as volatile as a drop of water in a hot frying pan. And unless he knows of some threatened provincial action, his comments can't be taken too seriously."
